Hotels and Intoxicants

Sometimes we need to be reminded that we live in the twentieth century and in the new world. One of the hoary superstitions with which prohibitionists have to contend is that meals and beds cannot be given to travellers at a reasonable rate, unless the hotelkeeper receives huge profits from the sale of intoxicants.

Let us test this theory by personal experience. Take case of Toronto. About the middle of the day a very large proportion of the people of Toronto are in the condition of travellers. They cannot go home to lunch, so they buy a meal somewhere, down town. Do they prove that cheap meals cannot be served with profit unless there is a liquor license? Quite the contrary. At least nine-tenths of the money meal-served in Toronto were served in places where there was no license for the sale of intoxicants. The abolition of the sale of the sale of intoxicants will have no appreciable effect on the tremendous business of serving midday meals in Toronto.

Outside of Toronto the conditions may be different. But all the rural districts in Ontario, in the main, are in favour of prohibition. It is the city population that is said to be opposed to prohibition. Yet it is in the city that one of the strongest objections to prohibition—the impossibility of serving food without intoxicants—is found to be without foundation.

The question of sleeping accommodation remains to be considered. It may be that this problem has not been worked out as scientifically as that of the supply of food. The cheap hotel room is still shunned as likely to be dirty or uncomfortable. But why? Why should not the traveller who is willing to do without luxury and splendour, obtain a small but clean, airy, comfortable room for a dollar a night or less? The same commercial enterprise that has provided a cheap, clean lunch, may provide the cheap, clean bedroom.

Let those who want splendid furniture, marble pillars, and bellboys, ready to gratify their every wish and whim, be provided with these luxuries. But those who cannot afford these things should not be forbidden to travel, or compelled to take the risk of lodging in a dirty or unsafe place. Business enterprise ought to be concentrated on the problem of sleeping accommodation for travellers at moderate prices. — Toronto Star Weekly.

War Notes

The British and French are still pressing on Western front, on Monday capturing several more villages making a gain of a mile on a fifteen mile front. Combes garrison still holds out but the Allies are nearly around it and this week will see its finish. The French are trying to squeeze the enemy out of Peronne, rather than bombard it and put the city in ruins.

In a raid of 12 Zeppelins on the south of England, three of them approached London and two of the monsters were brought down by anti-air craft guns, one crew all meeting death, the other made prisoners. This makes three brought down on English soil. Tuesday's papers tell of another raid on N. E. England, with 29 casualties.

On the other fronts nothing is being lost by the Allies and many gains are made. A revolution threatens in Greece headed by Venizelos. The German-Bulgar drive on Southern Roumania, which looked dangerous has been repulsed.

On some Balkan fronts snow has fallen to a depth of three or four feet and on all sides, Russia included, desperate efforts are being made to secure advantages or victories before winter sets in.

It is now a certainty that the war will drag on into 1917, entailing many hardships and necessitating continued activity in Red Cross and Patriotic Fund lines.

The limit of German devilishness has surely been reached if it be true that they are inoculating prisoners with tuberculosis germs and sending them home to infect others and to die. If this be true surely the neutral governments will rise in their wrath and say this thing must stop. If it be true it is time for German people of influence in Canada to condemn by voice and pen such a descent to barbarism. If it be true it is a clarion call to the young manhood of the country to swell the ranks of the battalions preparing for the front to help wreak vengeance on an enemy that would stoop so low.

WHY YOU ARE NERVOUS

The nervous system is the alarm system of the human body. In perfect health we hardly realize that we have a network of nerves, but when health is ebbing, when strength is declining, the same nervous system gives the alarm in headaches, tiredness, dreamful sleep, irritability and unless corrected, leads straight to a breakdown.

To correct nervousness, Scott's Emulsion is exactly what you should take; its rich nutrient gets into the blood and rich blood feeds the tiny nerve-cells while the whole system responds to its refreshing tonic force. Free from harmful drugs. Scott & Bowne, Toronto, Ont.

Hawkins—Marshall

A marriage of much interest took place Thursday at 10 o'clock in St Paul's Cathedral, when one of London's most charming and popular girls, Amy Heartsease, only daughter of County Registrar Joseph Marshall, ex-M.P., and Mrs. Marshall, Cedar Terrace, was united in holy matrimony to Rev. Edwin Hawkins, formerly curate of St. Paul's Cathedral, now rector of Durham.

The ceremony, which was performed by his Lordship the Bishop of Hexham, was witnessed by a large number of guests, including many of the clergy of the diocese, friends of the groom and of the family of the bride, F. G. Killmaster presided at the organ. Seldom has a fairer bride been given in marriage even in St. Paul's Cathedral, scene of many weddings of fashion and beauty.

She was especially lovely in her nuptial robe, a graceful creation of white satin, with long train, and garniture of tulle veil, which fell to the hem of her gown, was caught by a spray of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower of sweet peas, lilies and bride-roses.

There were no attendants, Rev. Harry B. Ashby, this city, and Rev. Arthur Charles of Windsor performing the duties of celebrant.

Lieut. Athol Marshall of the Canadian Engineers, Valcartier, came for his sister's wedding.

Owing to the war and the fact that the bride's other brother, Corp. Harry Marshall of the 11th Howitzer Battery is in the fighting line at the present time, no reception was held after the ceremony.

The bridal party, with Mr. and Mrs. Marshall and Lieut. Marshall drove to Cedar Terrace, where the time was only taken by Mr. & Mrs. Hawkins to change into travelling clothes before leaving on a motor honeymoon trip. The bride donned a smart tailored suit of navy blue and a pearly velvet hat.

Mrs. Hawkins has taken a most active part in patriotic, philanthropic and church work, and will be especially missed in St. Paul's Cathedral and St. John's Church, London Township.

A golf enthusiast, and particularly skillful in her favorite game, the bride has been the captain of the London Hunt Ladies' Golf Club.

M. C. Beckett—Grey's New Inspector

M. C. Beckett is no longer license inspector for North Grey. He is now License Inspector for the County of Grey, according to an announcement made by the Provincial Secretary's department last Friday afternoon. Although the appointment was made by the government, it was upon the recommendation of Mr. J. D. Flavell, chairman of the license board. The appointment is a promotion for Mr. Beckett and carries also with it an increase in salary as well as in work. The salaries for the new inspectors are placed between $800 and $1800 according to the size of their territories; and the average salary will be about $1200. Mr. Beckett has as yet had no advice from the department in connection with this.

There are already about 50 inspectors appointed and there are still seven to be appointed. The inspectors who are retained in the service, are, the board believes, the pick of the staff. Many, as is the case with Mr. Beckett, have had their territories largely increased. Mr. Beckett received his appointment first to the large inspectorate of North Grey on motion of the late Sir James Whitney who on the 25th of March, 12 years ago moved his appointment in the absence of Mr. Hanna. One year after, Mr. Beckett was made a provincial constable, he having in that time made sufficient record for himself as to cause the government to believe that his services would be valuable in other parts of the province.

Since that time he has grown steadily in favor, and though Mr. Beckett is not advertising the fact, he has reason to be proud of the circumstance that he obtained this appointment without having either formally applied for it, or having sent petitions praying his appointment, and this in face of strongly backed applications from other aspirants in the county. He has been a resident of O. Sound for thirty years.

Mr. Beckett commenced his new duties at seven o'clock Saturday night, the hour the new inspectors set west into force. This morning (Monday) he received the department's formal notice of appointment with other instructions and information relative to his new position. — O. S. Advertiser.

Lieut.-Col. D. C. McKenzie

The Globe last week referred to the recent suspension of the above gentleman—a former Durham boy—from his position at the head of the 141st Battalion, without cause being assigned, and agrees with the Colonel that it has the appearance of political animus, as Col. McKenzie says he is the last Liberal commander to be put out.

The suspension caused a painful sensation in Fort Francis and beyond it, judging from a recent issue of the Fort Francis Times, which says: "There is no more popular man at the head of the lakes to-day than D. C. McKenzie, if one can judge by the expressions of opinion freely given on the streets, in the clubs and hotels." A fine double-column cut of the Colonel appears on front page.

The battalion officers are indignant and non-commissioned officers and men addressed a long telegram to the Col. expressing "supreme confidence in your loyalty, integrity, and whole-hearted devotion to King and Country. For 20 years you have been a father to us of the Rainy River District and you will not fail your king, dishonour the khaki, nor lose our devotion. This is no time for domestic dissension, political intrigue or personal spite."

This telegram was read at a banquet at Port Arthur, gotten up by officers and leading citizens of the twin cities as a mark of esteem to McKenzie.

Later word from Ottawa we are informed, says all is right there. The "ingger in the wood pile" seems to be in Winnipeg, with confederates at Fort Francis.

Proposals are made to make McKenzie a candidate for the Dominion House and in any case he is demanding an investigation into the charges and by whom made.

The Battalion Band, highly efficient it appears, have disbanded as a protest, and are now scattered to the disgust of the citizens and soldiers. Recruiting, we fancy, must be at a standstill.
