The day has often been given ried on as usual. over to frivolity and light-heartedness, to hunting and other amusements It is the last holiday of the year, 24th of May is the first, that lends it self to open air pleasure and in normal times a measure of this may be justi fied. This year though under present War conditions a serious view of the day should be taken. An acknowledgement, to the Almighty for blessings, which the day stands for, might well be accompanied by a humbling of heart, and united petitions to the King of Kings to so over rule events that righteousness and peace may be established by a victory for the Allies that will be decisive and enduring.
