Rioting in Quebec

A serious riot broke out in Quebec city last week when officials, under the Military Service Act were trying to round up strikers. A mob quickly gathered and for a time ran amok like a bull in a China shop, first venting their wrath on two newspaper offices, the Chronicle and L'Evenement, because they supported conscription. Plate glass windows and many fixtures were smashed to atoms and a rush was made to the Auditorium in an effort to seize or destroy papers relating to exemption proceedings. These however had been removed and in their maddest they set fire to the building.

Some spectators allege the police stood idle spectators of the mischief and the Mayor at last called out the Militia and read the Riot Act. The sight of the bayonets had a quieting effect.

Sir Robt. Borden has demanded of the Mayor an explanation and full account of the proceedings in an effort to fix the blame for the unseemly, untimely and unpatriotic ebullition.

Most loyal citizens will have no trouble in fixing blame. It lies in liberty this government and the last have allowed such firebrands as Barassa to spread sedition among his countrymen. Were the Review merely to copy some of his diatribes, arrest would likely follow, as happened to a New Ontario editor, yet the original has free course.

Not having been placed behind the bars long ago, as he deserved, we think it is not too late yet. To have the loyal sentiments of Canada flouted by an irresponsible but clever Frenchman is something that should not be allowed for a day.

Alas! Bloodshed

Later news from Quebec tells of the tragedy, at least four deaths having occurred. Major-Gen. Lessard is in full charge and the city is under martial law. All firearms have been removed from hardware stores as a precautionary measure. Troops from Toronto and London are in charge and their presence is gall and bitterness to the natives. It was a mistake we think not to bring troops from Halifax, Kingston or any place but Toronto, which city to the average Quebecker, stands, rightly or wrongly, as the centre of anti-French sentiment. We predict some warm passages in parliament this week, but it may be hoped good sense and the fitness of things will prevent exhibitions there. Is the government big enough for the task?

That German Drive

Failed in its Main Object and Hindenburg is not yet in Paris

The force of the big drive is now spent and the Allied line has not been broken though it was too near being so to be comfortable. Germans are now reported to be "digging in" preparatory to another attempted advance, but reserves having reached the Allies, it is scarcely possible that another advance can be made.

Gen. Foch, a brilliant French strategist, has been placed in full command of all allied troops, including Americans, so there is now no possibility of divided councils, or individual attempts to take initiative. Experts think this should have been done long ago.

The enemy plainly planned to break through where French and British forces joined, intending no doubt to drive the latter to the sea and then turn on the French. He failed. The British at Arras have put up an extraordinary defence not only baffling the enemy attempt to advance there, but driving him back taking prisoners and guns. Amiens, an important centre, is in danger, but the French at that point are holding on well.

At other points some villages have been recaptured, and on the whole the outlook is that the enemy is baffled in the meantime and is bound to be beaten in the future.

The German casualties have been enormous, due to their adherence to mass formations advancing against machine guns, and cannot fail to affect the morale of their army, and of the nation when the truth comes to be known.

The long-distance gun is still firing on Paris and one shot fell, as it happened on a church crowded with Good Friday worshippers killing and wounding many.

The submarine menace is still great though ship building on both sides of Atlantic is striving to make good the loss.

CRAWFORD

Sugar making has come once more. Every farmer seems to be getting prepared for hard times this year.

Mr and Mrs Jas. Stinson who have been spending the winter months with relatives here, returned to their home in Chrichton, Sask.

Miss Etta Twamley Sundayed at Mrs Wm. Anderson's.

Mr and Mrs Jas. Stinson, Sr., have moved to their new home in Elmwood.

Mr John Redford who has been at Mr Wm. Cook's for the past number of years, has gone to spend the summer months with his sister, Mrs Jas. Stinson, Chrichton, Sask.

We are indeed very glad to report that Mrs J. Hopkirk who has been ailing with a severe attack of pneumonia is able to be around again. Miss Annie is also improving.

Mrs John Honess spent a couple of days last week with her parents in Elmwood.

Living High at Christmas

Mrs. S. M. Haslett, Winnipeg, never loses her interest in Durham and Durham boys. She enjoys the letters that appear in the Review and those that she receives direct from the front. She encloses one from her nephew, Signaller Thos. Lauder, from which we venture to extract a few paragraphs:

France, Feb. 1918
"So you have had cold weather out there? It has been pretty fair over here, only we had one cold week when out on a month's rest."

We were out for both Christmas and New Year so you may be sure we had a pretty good time. Our Xmas dinner was a dandy, almost as good as one would have at home. Each of us Sign lers donated 10 francs towards it and I now I will give you the menu as near as I can remember it. First: tomato soup, then roast goose, potatoes and cauliflower, next lettuce and tomato salad, next Xmas pudding, nuts oranges and other fruits. We had lots of cigarettes and cigars too so you can judge for yourself what kind of a dinner we did have. We Company Sig's also had a dinner with the Company. So we fared pretty well, don't you think so?

We are now back off rest and the battalion is up the line but will be out soon now. I was left out this time with details for which I am not the least bit sorry. Our march back off rest took 3 days during which time it rained for the whole march. We were always glad when the day's march was over and we could rest for awhile.

I met some old boys out of our old battalion a few days ago and I sure was glad to see them. One was Karl Leshan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Lenahan, now of O Sound. We were both old pals in civic life and were mighty glad to meet."

James Carson and Andrew Hinkley left Tuesday morning for Penzance, Bask., to take up a position there.

A reception was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr and Mrs Farquhar McKinnon in honor of their son, Pte. Danie McKinnon who has just returned from France. An enjoyable evening was spent in music, singing and speeches after which Hector R. McLean read an address and Allan C. McLean came forward and presented him with a purse containing forty dollars. Mr F. McLean made a very feeling reply, thanking all present for their kind wishes. Lunch was then served and every one joined in singing God Save the King before departing for their homes.

Misses Ollie McLean and Katie McTaggart spent a few days with North Line friends and took in the McKinnon reception. Congratulations to Miss Mary McIntosh and Pte. A.
