VIVID TALES OF HUN BRUTALITY

HOW A GERMAN DOCTOR RE- WARDED HIS NURSE.

Typical Instances Which Go to Prove the Utter Bestiality of the Teuton Character.

"One of the patients in the French hospital," says Gunner Depew, an American serving in the Foreign Legion, "was a German doctor, who had been picked up in No Man's Land, very seriously wounded. He was given the same treatment as any of us—that is, the very best—but finally the doctors gave him up. They thought he would die slowly, and that it might take several weeks.

"But there was a nurse there who took special interest in his case, and she stayed up day and night for some time, and finally brought him through. The case was very well known, and everybody said she had performed a miracle. He got better slowly.

"Then a few weeks later, when he was out of danger and was able to walk, and it was only a question of time before he would be released from the hospital, this nurse was transferred to another hospital. Everybody knew her and liked her, and when she went around to say good-by to all the men who were sorry and gave her little presents, and wanted her to write to them. She was going to get a nurse she knew in the other hospital to turn her letters into English, so that she could write to me. I gave her a ring I had made from a piece of shell case, but I guess she had hundreds of them at that.

"But this German doctor would not say good-by to her. That would not have made me sore, but it made this French girl feel very bad, and she began to cry. One of the French officers saw her and found out about the doctor, and the officer went up and spoke to the German. Then the French officer left, and the German called to the nurse and she went over to him and stopped crying.

"They talked for a little while, and then she put out her hands as if she was going to leave. He put out his hands, too, and took hold of hers. And then he twisted her wrists and broke them. We heard the snap.

"Didn't need to shoot him. There were men in that ward who had not been on foot since the day they came to the hospital, and one of them was supposed to be dying, but when he heard her scream it is an absolute fact that there was not a man left in bed.

"I need not tell you what we did to that German. They did not need to shoot him after we got through with him. They did shoot what was left of him to make sure, however.

A Story From Belgium.

"While visiting at Lyons I met a girl there who was staying with some people I knew, and she told me, a little bit at a time, what she had been through. I do not know whether she was a Belgian or not, but she was in Belgium at the outbreak of the war. When the Germans took the town she was in they put up signs on the doors notifying the inhabitants that all the girls must report in the square the following morning.

"This girl and her sister reported with the rest. They were divided into two classes, and the class in which the two sisters were was told to report at the station the next morning. They went home and broke the news to their mother, who was quite old and who took it very hard. They had no idea what they were being sent away for. The mother begged permission to keep one of the girls, and the Germans placed the other sister in the class that was to stay.

Kill Three Who Refuse.

"Three girls who refused to go were dragged to the streets and killed in cold blood, and the mother of one girl who refused to let her go, was shot. The girls were drilled to the courtyard of a big hotel, mustered with a roll call and loaded into cars. After a nine-hour journey they were taken from the trains to a large building partly in ruins, and there the German soldiers were waiting for them. The girls were not given food or fire.

"Late that night, after the Germans were through with them, they were made to go outside and dig potatoes from the hard ground, but they were not allowed to eat any of the potatoes. They also had to make beds, chop wood, haul timber and do all the dirty work that has to be done wherever German swine are penned.

"They were not allowed to write to their people, nor did they receive any word from outside. Fresh batches of girls arrived from time to time, but they were not allowed to mix with those who had been there before them.

"When the girls reached such a condition that they were no longer of use to the Germans they were sent back to Belgium. This girl had killed her child, as, indeed, all of the girls had. When she got home she found her mother had been killed, but she never saw her sister again or knew what had become of her."

Very fat fish should not be given to young children. More than fourteen thousand British non-combatants—men, women, and children—have been murdered by the Kaiser's command.

LION HUNTING.

The Modern Rifle Has Effectually Subdued the King of Beasts.

It is small wonder that the lion and the tiger, largest and most powerful of the cats and except for the leopard the most savage of all the larger carnivora, have made a vast impression, sometimes erroneously, on not only the native men of the regions that they inhabit, but also on visiting sportsmen, observers and writers of large intelligence.

The lion, for instance, though better known than the tiger, has been pictured as devoid of fear, as stronger than an ox, as swifter than a horse, as the king of beasts, when in reality it possesses not one of these characteristics. Yet its great size and strength and its killing, often man-eating, propensities have made it truly a creature to be feared and seriously reckoned with by those who live within its habitat.

In the old days of clubs, spears, battle-axes, crossbows, etc., one wonders how the lion that once inhabited the south of Europe, all of Africa and south-western Asia was successfully combated by man and eventually driven out or exterminated. Undoubtedly this was accomplished by taking advantage of the fact that lions rarely go in large numbers and that small armies, fitted out with various devices and contraptions for taking the big

Cincinnati man tells how to dry up a corn or callus so it lifts off with fingers.

You corn-pestered men and women need suffer no longer. Wear the shoes that nearly killed you before, says this Cincinnati authority, because a few drops of freezeone applied directly on a tender, aching corn or callus, stops soreness at once and soon the corn or hardened callus loosens so it can be lifted off, root and all, without pain.

FROM DARMSTADT TO PARIS.

Escape of French Boy From German Prison Camp.

A night escape from the German prison camp at Darmstadt, being shot at repeatedly as he ran; a dangerous trip through a hostile country until he reached the banks of the Rhine, an icy swim for an hour against a strong tide, finally reaching the Swiss shore near Schaffhausen, were some of the experiences that Maurice Muller had to undergo before he arrived in Paris and applied to the American Red Cross for assistance.

Emile Desroches, a friend who was with him when he slipped out of the prison camp and dived into the Rhine, began singing the "Marseillaise" in defiance, as with powerful strokes he made for Switzerland and liberty. A German patrol fired in the direction whence the sound of the singing was coming. Whether struck by the German bullets or carried away by the treacherous tide, Desroches has not been seen since.

In November, 1914, Maurice, who was then fifteen years old, and his brother Georges, twelve, were bundled into a train that was leaving Ostend for Germany and taken to Darmstadt, just up the river across from Schaffhausen, where they were put to work at hard labor. Insufficient nourishment soon made the younger boy physically unfit and last October he was in such an emaciated condition that it aroused the pity of even the Germans and he was sent on to France.

Last evening as Muller sat in front of a substantial meal supplied by the Red Cross, he said to his younger brother, who has been in Paris for some time: "This beats the dog meat, potatoes, and rutabaga they used to serve us at Darmstadt."

A Red Cross representative is helping to find work for them.
