How to Fight War Weariness

What is this noxious fever that threatens to sap our strength and rob us of final victory? Like many other maladies, it persisted unrecognized for centuries, without the glamor of an official name.

In the early days of the world struggle, bullets were scanned by enormous crowds and war enthusiasm was fed on cable news. To-day it needs the stimulus of a victory on a Gargantuan scale to rouse a semblance of our former heart strings.

What is the remedy? What prophylactic will ward off the fever? In Germany the people are fed on paper victories and chimera of rejoicing peal from the steeple on the smallest provocation.

BEES IN THE SPRINGTIME

Fine Weather Necessary When They Are Taken From Cellar.

PAINFUL DISEASE CURED

Interesting Information for Dairy-men Regarding Success in New Treatments for Inflammation of Udder—Late Spring Suggestions For the Farmer.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

THE arrival of spring brings up the question, "When and how shall I set my bees out of the cellar?" to the minds of all farmer beekeepers.

The ideal cellar will permit the beekeeper to keep his bees confined much longer than will an unfavorable cellar. This is desirable. A fairly dry, dark, easily regulated and ventilated cellar when the temperature can be maintained at 45 degrees Fahrenheit is ideal.

As a rule, the farmer-beekeeper will do well to carefully select opportune weather and to give the colony some protection after setting out. Watch the weather forecasts closely and when the wind gets around to the south and east, with a prospect for rain on the morrow, start in the evening and move out as far as possible.

Quite a number attended the presentation given to Duncan Cameron of Bothville from this side and the sum of $35 of aparse given to him.

The Red Cross ladies are always attending to their meetings regularly. We saw Joseph Campbell who is home from Owen Sound hospital where he spent over a month for treatment for one of his eyes. He is some better but not very good yet.

Live Stock Reminders.

A regular and ample supply of salt will always be found helpful in promoting the thrift of live stock. When pasture is provided for pigs much less concentrated food is required. In view of the present labor shortage pasture will be particularly valuable this year.

PRICEVILLE AND LIMITS

Durham Women's Institute will present their sketch "Priceville in 1862" in Priceville hall, Friday, May 31st, under Red Cross auspices. Don't miss it.

Fine growing weather but no rain of any account although we had thunder on Sunday evening. Seeding is getting pretty well done with the most of farmers but quite a lot to do yet with a good many.

The woods are beginning to show the effects of the warmth of the past week by getting covered with their summer garment. The black flies and mosquitoes are making an impression on both man and beast wherever they put their sharp stings.

The grain has grown nicely especially where it was sown early. Fall wheat is no good, only patches around the fence corners and where the frost didn't get at it so severe.

Some have planted their potatoes and some have not put in their potatoe stuff yet.

Quite a number of our young boys left for training during the last couple of weeks. We hear from our boys often and he is in the trenches in France and all he has to say is that we may know what kind of life it is to be there.

Do Farmers Need Advice?

The government seems to think so. Production Associations are busy along the same line, and there isn't a doubt but the average farmer smiles as he reads much of it, and is inclined to think that the writers are too often arm-chair men akin to the man who advised farmers in view of the scarcity of honey to keep a bee!
