PALESTINE AS A TRADING CENTRE

COMMERCIAL POSSIBILITIES OF THE HOLY LAND

Among Its Future Industries Will Be Agriculture, Cattle Raising, Jam and Soap Making.

In the minds of most people the Holy Land is hardly associated with trade and industry, yet as a matter of fact Palestine was one of the few provinces of the Turkish Empire where economic activities were pursued with energy and success. This is brought out effectively by comparing the value of Turkish trade as a whole with that of Palestine. Before the war, says the London Economist, the imports and exports of Turkey amounted annual together in some $243,-325,000, which for a population of about 25,000,000 works out at $10 a head. The trade of South Palestine alone (with a population of 375,000), which flowed through the ports of Jaffa and Gaza, totalled some $12,166,-250. This gives $30 a head of the

Both imports and exports have gone up in value during the last decade or two. In 1886 the imports amounted to $1,167,960, and the exports to $583,-980; the figures for 1900 were, respectively, $1849,270 and $1,289,622, while for 1913 they were $6,375,115 and $3,649,875.

Two causes have contributed chiefly to bring about this commercial expansion. The railway system is one; the character of the population the

The geographic position of Palestine, now, as throughout the ages, makes it the highway between Asia Minor on the one hand and Egypt and Arabia on the other. It was therefore a vital link between the heart of the Turkish empire and its outlying parts, and this will explain why the Turkish government devoted more attention to railway construction in Palestine than in any other province. The first line was completed, between Jaffa and Jerusalem, in 1892; to-day Jerusalem is linked up with Haifa, a splendid fall far short of the requirements of the country. The skeleton of a rail-

Palestine may not perhaps be made into a land flowing with milk and honey, but its possibilities are nevertheless encouraging. Agriculture will, of course, continue to be the main source of the country's wealth, yielding oranges, wines and olives, to say nothing of the splendid barley grown in the Gaza district, which enjoys a well deserved reputation for excellence. Cattle breeding has also been attempted, on a smale scale, with satisfactory results, and experience shows that there are good prospects in this direction in the future. Moreover, the industries that are likely to thrive will be based on the tillage of the soil. The manufacture of wine, brandy and raisins is held by competent authorities to be capable of great expansion; jam making has a future in Palestine; the manufacture of soap will be facilitated by the abundance of oil; and there is an opening for the cigarette industry, which will be able to depend on home grown tobacco of excellent quality.

HUNG PRISONERS UP BY HANDS

Germans Tortured British and Russians for Small Offences.

Appalling stories of the torture of prisoners of war in the hands of the Germans are told by the correspondent of the London Daily Express in Copenhagen, who has just paid a visit to the camp established at Sandholm, ten miles from Copenhagen, for repatriated British soldiers. One man from Doberitz, seen by the correspondent, produced a strip of rubber ten inches long and of triple thickness, which he had smuggled out of Germany. He said: "With this weapon the German cook knocked man after man senseless if the prisoner was suspected of trying to get a second helping at dinner. The cook slashed prisoners across the face, the jaws, and the ears. Victims were carried outside and cold water was dashed over them to revive them."

While the man was speaking a British sailor came along and confirmed the account, showing how the instrument had been used on the jaw and neck. He said the Russians were treated with special barbarity, being forced to kneel for hours with their hands behind them, now and then raising their feet from the floor while the German sentry carrying his rifle aslant, struck the Russians in the chest and face with the butt, if they did not hold up their feet as long as pleased him.

In other cases, the wrists of Englishmen were lashed to stakes, their toes just touching the snow-covered ground, and they were left there for an indefinite period. Many so strung up were prodded with bayonets. These punishments were inflicted for such offences as refusing to be worked to death, the correspondent says.
