Fire Prevention

One of the most interesting and useful pamphlets we have seen of late is one dealing with "Fire Protection on the Farm and Elsewhere" published by the "Attorney General's Department, Toronto." Send for it to this address to-day. Read it and hang it up for constant perusal.

It deals with Fire protection very largely, shows the danger of carelessness of smokers of gasoline, of oily waste, of dust danger in factories &c. Gives full instructions as to installing lightning rods and why, points out some common electrical dangers, and much else.

It also shows how to treat wood and clothing to make it fire resistant and scores of other useful hints that if followed up would surely stop the dreadful fire waste of Canada. Send for it at once we urge.

Here are a few sentences from the introduction to this splendid pamphlet: "Canadians have proved themselves 'great fighters' they have the heroic valor and resourceful intelligence necessary to overcome their enemies.

The next war, though a peaceful one, should be none the less strenuous against the strongly entrenched demon "Fire."

Unfettered fire is one of our worst enemies. It kills, devastates, and destroys in a ruthless manner.

If we can make as good progress in our fight against fire as we have against the Hun we will have won a great battle.

Aggressive action is needed. Everyone should co-operate in the work of Fire Prevention and help to educate and bring people—young and old—to a realization that they must be more careful about their "habits." Statistics regarding the cause of fires show that we are the most careless people on earth.

In normal times the fire waste in five of the principal countries of Europe averaged 33c per capita. In Ontario in 1918 there were 9588 fires, causing a loss of $14,856,329, and instead of 33c per capita as in Europe ours mounts up to $6 for every man, woman and child in the province.

Taught by experience and the serious lessons of life, as a progressive people, let us strive to better our conditions.

Vast strides are being made in the preservation and improvement of the health of the nation by educating the children in hygiene; and let us hope that results of equal importance to the wealth and prosperity of the nation may be obtained by educating the children in fire prevention methods, so that their careless habits, as well as our own, may be changed.

Don't simply read but study every one of the following articles. They have been compiled with great care for your benefit. Learn what you ought to do to avoid fire, and do it now. Neglect may mean sorrow and suffering, even loss of life—loss of valuable stock that money cannot replace—loss of the savings of a life-time.

A Seasonable Fish Story

By Gilbert McKechnie

Chesper Fish Wanted. Organize to Re stock our Streams.

A recent issue of the Globe devoted an editorial showing that the Province of Ontario does not realize a fair proportionate share of the fish for food business of the Dominion, as compared with other Provinces, and showing up statistical evidence of their contentment, and also citing that the Ontario Government justifiably feels somewhat proud of their fish distributing business during the past year. It gives them credit for what they have done, leaving great room for marked improvement in the future.

This may to a certain extent be true, as they have evidently been doing a good work as far as it goes, and are entitled to credit for what they have been trying to accomplish. But after all they have only been scratching on the surface of what might have been accomplished years ago, or in other words, central points have been benefited. But outlying towns and villages and rural districts have not yet found the effects of this central distributing fish business, because they have not yet been reached, therefore have not yet received any benefits therefrom, and now since the Government has taken the first initiatory steps, let us hope that they may continue the good work they have undertaken, until it is proclaimed a grand success.

The citizens supplied are evidently pleased with the efforts they have put forth. Then let me urge upon them the desirability of making greater efforts to develop fish production and by care, perseverance and determination that also can be accomplished, and with a plethora in the market, brought about by increased production. But reach out further, and bring in the highways and byways not yet reached in the past.

A great future is awaiting them in this respect. The towns and villages are anxiously waiting to reap the benefits reached in the past and at central places, and are aware that if the great lakes are properly handled can be made to produce unlimited quantities of fish food, at prices within the grasp of the poorest citizen of the land.

The vast area of those great lakes to draw from should certainly be made a great source of wealth, being so located as to give easy access to all portions of the Province, and other portions of the Confederated Provinces, and a good work accomplished that will last away in the future.

After eliminating any further reference to the fish for food problem of the great lakes and leaving their anticipated further increase in the hands of the government, let me express the hope that in whatever action they may take, that it will have the effect of making a general and material reduction in the price to such an extent that in future central points may not be the only places benefited, but that the same privileges may be extended to other outlying towns and villages and other sections.

In the counties of Haron and Bruce and other counties lying to the south of them, until the shores of Lake Erie are reached, they are not favored with as many small streams and rivers, as are to be found throughout this district of country, and what creeks they have are chiefly of the class of black mucky bottoms, differing in this respect from the county of Grey where small spring creeks are extremely numerous and have gravel bottoms, and the larger rivers belong to the same class.

This class of creek or river thick speckled trout must have, a creek with a mud bottom they have no use for, a rock bottom suits them all right. Hence, for the reasons I have cited the County of Grey is recognized as the home of the speckled trout, and all will feel as proud as the government for the good work done, if they will yet finish their job.

Another scheme of great importance awaits them and one that is largely interesting to another class of citizens. We have already reached the man who cautiously counts the cost of his fish as an item of household expenses. Now we are going to deal with the sportsman or angler, a different type of citizen. Not that what they appreciate to the full the advantages derived from the reduction of fish cost as brought about by the government, but their thoughts go beyond this; they want fish also, but not the class alone that please the other fellows in the catching. They are after sport and fish combined and they have made up their minds they are going to have it, if possible and available. The angler does not despise the classes of fish to be found in mud or marl bottomed inland lakes, but that is not the class he is especially after; he is after a different class of fish altogether, he is after the beautiful, sparkling, speckled trout, and finding it, has, or thinks he has, reached the climax of his ambition, he has got to the spot where the speckled beauties abound!

He enters the deep ravine or he climbs the rugged bank, he ventures out on the half sunken, half decayed log, or he may venture on the rocky elevation, known as Morlock's point, from which he spies the speckled beauties darting about in every direction, as if reveling in the brilliancy of a midsummer day, with old Sol doing his utmost to complete the grandeur and magnificence of the scene.

MULOCK

Such are the feelings enjoyed by the angler when he reaches the climax of his ambition.

During the fishing season it is quite a customary occurrence for many of the people residing in the counties cited to some full of mirth and joyful anticipations to the county of Grey to enjoy a good day's sport with the rod and fly. They are here but a short time when they discover that the old spot, where the trout were so plentiful in the past, was being gradually depleted. The streams have been fished to such an extent that they are nearly "fished out." Why is this the case? Why permit such a state of things to exist? Simply because no properly devised scheme has been adopted, either by the anglers themselves, or by the local government, to have the creeks and rivers re-stocked. Re-stocking would ensure a supply for the future as abundant as in the past and a day's angling enjoyed equal to old times when their species was propagated equal to the demands made on them.

Then let me urge upon the people the necessity of forming some kind of a Club or Association, having for its object the laying of the matter in the hands of the Government and working in unison with other counties, similarly situated, and having similar objects in view. Union is strength, and a great deal may be accomplished by infusion of energy and perseverance, but without a definite course of action matters may remain indefinitely just as they are. Besides, now seems the most opportune time for the formation of a fish Association to bring this question to the front, as there will be an election at no distant date, and as all political parties should be equally interested in this question, a bold united push cannot do otherwise than press the matter upon the attention of the Gov't. The Gov't. in return will naturally recognize the justice and necessity of the case to such an extent as to make them think why didn't we attend to this matter years ago?

The rivers in Grey chiefly have their source in the eastern part of the County and flow westwards, at last finding refuge and rest among the waters of Lake Huron. The leading highway between Guelph and Owen Sound is known as the Garafrax Road, and each of the following named rivers crosses that highway, Mattland, Beaty Saugeen, Big Saugeen, Rocky Saugeen, Styx, Sabie, the Sydenham and Beaver rivers flow in to the Georgian Bay.

Inspector Wright visited the school here recently.

Mr Alex McGillivray, Chatsworth, and his son, Pte J. R. McGillivray, recently home from overseas, were welcome visitors here Monday of last week.

We welcome Mr. and Mrs. Spence Hopkins into our burg as neighbors, also Mr and Mrs Levine of Durham and Mr Dunn of Toronto.

Sorry to report Miss Edith Vickers is seriously ill with pneumonia. Under the skillful treatment of Dr Jamieson we hope to hear of her speedy recovery.

Master Dugald Hastie spent a week's holiday with his friend little Miss Myrtle McDonald.

Pte J. F. McLean who has recently returned from overseas spent Monday with his friend John Clark, also attended church here Sunday.
