General Currie Heads March Through the Capital of Overseas Forces and His Majesty Takes Salute.

The march through London on May 3rd of the Overseas troops provided a unique Empire pageant for the dense crowds of cheering people with which the route was lined.

H. R. H. Prince Arthur of Connaught accompanied Lt. Gen. Sir Arthur Currie at the head of the Canadians, who led the procession.

The following message from the King was handed each man on the dispersal of the parade: "Officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the overseas forces:

"It is with a heart full of pride and gratitude I take your salute to-day as you march in triumph through London. The people of the British Dominions beyond the seas by their instant readiness to share in the trials and responsibilities of the great war have shown to the world the unity of the British Empire.

Under the direction of a committee of members of Parliament, presided over by Mr. J. G. Butcher, M.P., Peace Committees have been formed all over the kingdom, which have arranged that the general illumination of the whole kingdom will commence at eleven p.m. on the night fixed.

As the use of valuable fuel is to be deprecated at this time, the Admiralty and War Office are supplying the large surplus stocks of Dover flares, rockets and handlights at the very lowest possible prices, so that for even the smallest communities they may be cheap enough.

The flares, the invention of the late Wing Commander Brock, brilliantly illuminate an area of three miles diameter. They burn for seven and a half minutes, weigh ninety pounds, stand three feet high by eight inches diameter, are non-explosive and are fired by friction so that they are safe enough even to the most inexperienced. Eight of these flares will maintain the illumination for an hour, and conveyed to mountain tops in sufficient number the whole Empire should be made bright as day for an hour even on the darkest, moonless and cloudiest night.

Great Peace Pageants. But the bonfires will not be confined to the flares alone. All the waste brushwood and hedgerow clippings, which at this time of year are usually burned up, are being collected to make bonfires on "the night". They will make a dull red glow, with a maximum of smoke, but they will serve. Then there is to be a wonderful series of peace pageants to be given in various great centres in aid of St. Dunstan's Fund for soldiers blinded in the war. St. Dunstan's, which has the patronage of Queen Alexandra, is striving now to enlist the help of 20,000 voluntary performers, for whom costumes are being prepared. It is to be a gigantic production with scenic and mechanical effects never before attempted or even thought of in connection with open air displays.

The reducing process also makes the wire harder, for the steel becomes packed together more tightly as it passes through the die.

If the drawing process were continued long enough, the wire would become brittle. It is therefore necessary to stop drawing and run the bundles through an oven to anneal the wire and to make it soft.

Finally, the wire passes through a molten zinc galvanizing bath and runs through a shredded asbestos wiper that carries off the surplus zinc. It is then cooled and wound on reels.

A motor plow that has been invented in Denmark can be driven by steam, benzine or petroleum.

BRITAIN PREPARES FOR PEACE REVELS

GREATEST OF ALL CELEBRATIONS TO BE HELD IN JUNE.

General Illumination of the Whole Kingdom at 11 p.m. on Night Fixed—Pageants and Plays.

The date of the celebration of peace in Britain is yet uncertain, though June is still spoken of, says a London despatch. He is wise who refuses to prophesy, but it is safe to prophesy that night reveals do come off they will be fast and furious, with bonfires and beacons and snobs and crackers, and with the sanction of the War Office, a barrage of star shells and Verey lights, with long white beams from scores of searchlights illuminating the whole.

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house. SPINNING STEEL.

Intricate Process Used in Manufacture of Steel.

Steel for wire making is delivered to the wire mill in bars four inches square, a yard long and about one hundred and fifty pounds in weight.

The bundles are first immersed in a vat of dilute sulphuric acid, called a pickling solution. Then after most of the acid is got rid of in a hot-water bath, the rods are run very slowly under successive sprays of water.

The rods are then dipped in milk of lime to neutralize any remaining traces of acid, in order to protect them from further atmospheric action, and to provide them with a lubricant during their subsequent passage through the steel die.

It is now wire-round, smooth and without kinks. It is drawn through one die after another, each smaller than the one before, until it is reduced to the required size.

The reducing process also makes the wire harder, for the steel becomes packed together more tightly as it passes through the die.

If the drawing process were continued long enough, the wire would become brittle. It is therefore necessary to stop drawing and run the bundles through an oven to anneal the wire and to make it soft.

His First Shave

He's starting right

Dad is happy to find that his boy won't have to put up with what he went through—dull blades, tingling face, half-removed stubble.

Instead the lad will experience only the cleanliness and comfort, the sense of physical well-being that follow a cool, clean, satiny shave such as only an AutoStrop Razor can give. This and the fact that the AutoStrop Razor sharpens its own blades, and is not taken apart for stropping or cleaning, has led thousands of dads everywhere to recommend the AutoStrop Razor to their sons.

OYSTER PEARL INDUSTRY.

Japanese Farm Where Bivalve Is Encouraged to Produce Jewel.

There is an extensive salt water farm in Japan, where the gardeners encourage oysters to make pearls. The farm has an area of about fifty square miles, and the water varies in depth from five to fifteen fathoms.

The oysters are first immersed in a vat of dilute sulphuric acid, called a pickling solution. Then after most of the acid is got rid of in a hot-water bath, the rods are run very slowly under successive sprays of water.

The rods are then dipped in milk of lime to neutralize any remaining traces of acid, in order to protect them from further atmospheric action, and to provide them with a lubricant during their subsequent passage through the steel die.

BITS OF HUMOR FROM HERE & THERE

Will You Walk Into My Parlor? A Mr. Cobb has married a Miss Webb. He knew that they were meant to be joined as soon as he spied her.

Tender-Hearted. Mrs. Gamp—Good morning. Green Grocer—Good morning, ma'am. Mrs. Gamp—I want three-penny'orth o' Brussels sprouts. I want to help them distressed Belgians.

How He Got It. A colored veteran just back from the other side when questioned about an iron cross he was wearing explained: "Boss, it was a extra decoration. De Kaiser himself sent it to me by a special messenger what dropt daid jus' befo' he give it to me."

An Appealing Feature. General March was talking about the impressions soldiers received in the war. "One," he said, "when I asked him how he felt, said he was too busy to feel, and when I asked him what appealed to him as the most remarkable thing about the war, answered: "The number of bullets that missed me."

Decision. "You know, Pat, it is said that a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches." "Is that so?" "Yes. Pat. Now, which would you prefer to have—a good name or riches?" "Well, you can give me the riches. Me name's O'Toole, and that's good enough for any man."

No Money Needed. Anxious Mama—"Little Dick is upstairs crying with the toothache." Practical Papa—"Take him around to the dentist's." "I haven't any money." "You don't need any money. The toothache will stop before you get there."

For Ever! Two Rhinelanders—not from choice, but from necessity—were having an argument about the music—and musicians—of their native lands. "Talk about long playing," said Pat. "Why, your countrymen wouldn't get a look-in with us. I know of a fellow who played 'Kathleen Mavourneen' on the piano for several hours."

What's in a Name? No man is so well known as he thinks he is, says Enrico Caruso, the world-famed tenor. To illustrate his point he tells the following incident: While motoring in New York State my automobile broke down, and I sought refuge in a farm-house while the car was being repaired. I became friendly with the farmer, who asked me my name, and I told him it was Caruso. The farmer teared to his feet and seized me by the hand.

"Little did I think I should see a man like you in this here humble kitchen, sir," he exclaimed. "Caruso! The great traveller! Robinson Crusoe!"

Well Lubricated. The motorist emerged from beneath the car and struggled for breath. His helpful friend, holding the oil can, beamed upon him. "I've just given the cylinder a thorough oiling. Dick, old man," said the helpful friend. "Cylinder," said the motorist, heatedly, "that wasn't the cylinder; it was my ear."
