Aeroplane Has Crossed the Atlantic

One of the Same Breed in Durham on July 1

The program committee of the G. W. V. A. (which means the whole bunch of them) have secured the prime attraction of an Aeroplane exhibition for the great Dominion Day Demonstration in Durham on 1st of July.

The machine will not only fly, it will do a lot of coveting stunts; it will nose dive it will loop-the-loop, (with you in it if care to pay the price,) will rise and fall in spirals, and do other hair-raising manoeuvres, such as war-work has developed. Be sure you see him make the start from the ground; it explains many things better than merely seeing him in the air.

Then Tommy Holmes is to be there, Canada's youngest holder of the Victoria Cross. It will do you good to see the striping, the young David who with bombs instead of sling and stone, captured his Goliath in the shape of 19 husky Germans.

We cannot begin to enumerate all the features that will be crowded into this memorable day. There will be a Sham Battle by returned men on the grounds; there will be basket ball, Races, men and horses, wire-walking, four bands supplying music, &c. Why there's enough for two days. Come in in the forenoon; for 11 a. m. till the sun is in the west, there won't be a dull minute.

And then that 'Trip around the world' in the rink at night, will cap the climax of a day of surprises. There will be music and dancing, both a concert and indoor circus and only 25c admission to Rink.

The committees are making every arrangement to greet the largest crowd ever seen in Durham and send everyone home with a smile.

Death of Mrs. Ben. Whitmore

After a lingering illness of nine months, Mrs. Ben Whitmore passed away on Monday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dugald McKechnie, in her twenty-fourth year. The deceased was a bright young woman, and was born in Glenelg to snship, where she resided until the family removed to Durham fourteen years ago. For some time she was employed as a milliner in Toronto, and was a few months with the Durham Furniture Co. She was wedded only a year ago last 12th June, and besides the bereaved husband, an infant daughter, Aileen survives, who will never remember a mother's love. The sorrowing parents have had more than their share of grief, having lost their oldest son Percy in action last September. Mrs. McKechnie is at present ill with heart trouble. Mrs. Whitmore was their oldest daughter (Sadie), the remaining children being Miss Nellie at home, Neil in Toronto, Mary (who resides with Mrs. W. McCracken, her aunt), Archie, Carrie, Charlie and George J. at home.

The funeral took place from the parental home here at 3 p. m. Wednesday to Durham cemetery, Rev. F. G. Hardy assisted by Rev. S. M. Whaley, conducting the mortuary services. The sympathy of many Durham and Glenelg friends goes out to the sorrowing parents, husband and other relatives in their sad bereavement.

Soldiers' Aid Commission

Branch Established in Durham

Mr. Jackson, an agent of the Provincial government was in town on Friday charged with the duty of forming a branch of the Soldiers' Aid Commission here. He made good use of the soldiers' reception in the hall in the evening. He set forth the aims and objects of this institution, which in no way conflicted with the G. W. V. A., or indeed with any other body. It had three main objectives: 1—The suitable reception of returning soldiers, 2—Helping them to secure employment, and 3—Handling complaints.

The individual soldier he pointed out had small chance to secure recognition if he entered complaints, owing to the red-tape procedure so often involved in constituted authority. The strength of a Society could overcome this difficulty. He dealt with the scheme of settling soldiers on the land, the provision for Government loans in the initial stages, and in addition to this outlet he said there were no fewer than 65 other courses in vocational training, and the object of the Society, from headquarters downward, was to bring the man and a fitting job together.

The local Society starts out with the following officials and we hope it will have a large measure of success.

Pres.—Rev. F. G. Hardy.

Vice Pres.—Mr. E. D. McClocklin.

Secy.—Treas.—Peter Ramage.

Finance Com.—Mrs Wolfe, Mrs Gilbert McKechnie, Miss L. Walker.

Employment Com.—Messrs R. H. McWilliams, Wm. McGowan and A. A. Catton.

Weekly Half-Holiday Starts Friday

This Friday afternoon will be the first weekly half-holiday for Durham business places during the summer months. All customers will kindly keep in mind that stores will be closed. The post office will also be closed each Friday afternoon

Feeding the Crows

The matter of providing refreshments for such crowds as Durham will see on July 1, is a matter of concern. The hotels of course can do much but arrangements are being made by the Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church to serve meals in the town hall and the other churches are making similar provision on lawns or in empty buildings which we will specify next week.

Come out with confidence then; abundance for all at regular rates.

Good-bye to Rev. Mr Ashton

Memorial Tablet to be Unveiled Before He Goes

Rev. Mr. Ashton, of Mulock and Glenelg Baptist churches, will preach his farewell sermon on Sunday next at Mulock, 11 a. m. old time. It will be a memorial service, for that day will be unveiled the memorial tablet placed in the church to commemorate the great sacrifice made by Lieut. Cecil Gun, including his Scottish bride. Cecil made an appropriate reply. Another unique toast was that given to Misses Mamie and Jessie Munro, returned nurses, moved by C. Ramage and replied to by Miss Jessie, and another to the I. O. D. E., moved by Mr Irwin, and replied to by Rev. Mrs (Dr.) D. B. Jamieson.

The night was intensely warm and this with counter attractions, lessened the usual crowd at the hall. Reeve Calder was in the chair, the band supplied excellent music and after brief welcoming addresses by the chairman and Rev. D. Whaley and Cole, the speaker of the evening, Rev. Mr Hardy gave the official welcome in an attractive speech.

He struck an optimistic note in regard to the present unrest over the world, revealed by strikes and walk-outs in many places. He believed more were to come, but we would pass through them. A 'Common Consensus' would result in adjusting the differences between capital and labor and the gospel aided by science would guide and control the unrest. The Bible and its teachings, he said, was still a great force and he believed all industrial problems can be settled by the gospel of Christ. The necessity of the hour was to remove suspicion between capital and labor and all could assist in this. He justified the church in interfering in these questions, for in the final outcome the church was the greatest friend of the laborer. He closed by an earnest appeal to all to get together and remove suspicion.

After an interruption to allow Mr Jackson to form a branch of the Soldiers' Aid Commission, (referred to in another column) the presentations were proceeded with, the chairman giving the record briefly, Mr C. Ramage presenting the address of welcome and Mr T. Allan a club bag to each.

The list is as follows:

Harry Falkingham, enlisted in 64th battery, to France in 1917, and was in most of the battles.

Cecil Long, long in the British navy, was sailing our lakes when war broke out, he applied for naval service and was accepted. Saw much North Sea work and was captured at Dundee, said the chairman, by a Scotch lassie.

Ed. Hutton, also 64th battery, and in many engagements.

Fred Kelly, joined 37th battery in Jan. 1915 to France in March 1916 and there till April 1918

Wilfred Lake, joined in Aug. 1915 overseas April 1916, wounded in Aug. '16.

Mack Saunders, Jan. '16, overseas Oct. '16, France Jan. '17 in 58th battalion. Was wounded twice.

Walter Thompson, joined 147th in '16, France 1917, did much construction work.

Gordon Wilson, enlisted Jan. '18 to France in July and was wounded at Arras in Sept. was later at Cambrai.

Archie McComb was unable to be present but address and bag given to friends. He went over in Oct. '17 France in 1918, and suffered gassing once.

As each appeared they were given hearty applause. At the close Mr Fred Kelly as spokesman again thanked all for many kindnesses shown both here and overseas.

God Save the King closed the proceedings.

Banquet and Presentations

To More Returned Soldiers

After an interval of two months the fourth reception of returned soldiers was taken up by I. O. D. E., who, on Friday evening last, invited returned men and their friends to a most sumptuous banquet in Library basement, which was thoroughly enjoyed. At the close there were brief speeches with toasts to the soldiers, moved by Mr Whaley and replied to by Mr Fred Kelly, a special one also to the representative of the navy presented by Lieut. Cecil Gun, including his Scottish bride. Cecil made an appropriate reply. Another unique toast was that given to Misses Mamie and Jessie Munro, returned nurses, moved by C. Ramage and replied to by Miss Jessie, and another to the I. O. D. E., moved by Mr Irwin, and replied to by Rev. Mrs (Dr.) D. B. Jamieson.

Mrs. J. W. Whaley, (nee Miss Gertrude Sutherland) of Ft. William, is on a lengthy visit at her uncle's, Mr. W. B. Vollet. She spent the winter months in California and some time later with her brother in Vancouver.

Mr. Fred Beercoft, a former miller in the employ of Mr. John McGowan, spent the week end with the family here. Fred has recently returned from overseas where he earned the rank of Lieutenant and had refused higher promotion. He saw service in many branches of the army. His home is in Penetanguishene.

Miss Evelyn Coult of Toronto, is holidaying at her mother's in Bentinck.

Mrs. (Dr.) Gilmour, a daughter of the manse, Dornoch, has arrived here from Dalnuir, Scotland to spend the summer with her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Sil-lars.

Clerk, asking about Durham's request for an extra maintenance, a matter that was put in in time to be dealt with at last January session. The situation is muddled and Mr. Calder, we believe, is going to wait on the council to assist in cleaning the matter up.

Congratulations to Miss Maggie Bell, daughter of Mrs. Robt. Bell, Glenelg, who was united in marriage Wednesday to Mr. Fred Cuff of Bentinck.

High School Inspector Levan made his official visit here on Friday and Monday last and found the High School in good standing and was well pleased at the progress being made.
