Royal Ratepayers.

It is generally presumed that all Royal residences are free from rates, but this is by no means the case. The only three that escape this taxa-ion are Windsor Castle, Buckingham Palace, and the greater portion of St. James's Palace. In the case of St. James's Palace, the King, as an "act of grace," pays to the Westminster City Council rates on those portions of the old palace that are occupied by his entourage. Queen Alexandra pays the full rates upon Mariborough House, which now amount to over $30,000 a year, and the "ne pays rates on Sandringham, ottage, and Balmoral. These are all n arms as being the private residences the and as "Royan and the the stratt sense to the word."
