Blood Shed in Border Cities

The riotous indulgence in liquor running that has disgraced Ontario for months past had a fatal sequel on Saturday last. Ray Spracklin, who was appointed Inspector and detective with special powers in an effort to cope with the situation that existed, shot a man named Tumble early last Saturday morning.

The Inspector in the performance of his duty demanded from this man, a hotel keeper, admittance to his residence but was refused whereupon, Spracklin made entrance through a window. He was confronted at once with the proprietor who whipped out a pistol, Spracklin alleged, and pressed it against his (Spracklin's) body. It was one or the other and the Inspector was first and shot his opponent with fatal effect for he died in 10 minutes. He at once went and gave himself up.

Deceased's father and wife swear that he carried no "gun," the other party is certain he did. Anyway, the Coroner's jury who would be in possession of all the facts, have exonerated Spracklin, declaring it to have been self-defence.

Meanwhile the Rev. Inspector, while awaiting trial would not make a good insurance risk.
