Thanksgiving Day

Paper contributed by Mrs A. Tuck and read at Thanksgiving Women's Institute Meeting.

The first day of Thanksgiving was celebrated about a year after the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock for it was on Nov. 21, 1620, that the Mayflower with 102 Pilgrims cast anchor off Cape Cod. The first year of their life in the wilderness had been a period of deaths, constant hardships and dangers. But in spite of these drawbacks they had achieved a certain degree of success as their Indian friends had taught them how to plant and fertilize corn. This fact appealed to their governor as a special reason for proclaiming a period of thankfulness.

When, after the ingathering of the first harvest, Governor Bradford sent men to shoot wild fowl, that the infant colony might in a more special manner rejoice together, he little dreamed to what proportions the pious act would grow. For three days the settlers entertained many of their Indian friends, deer and wild turkey being the principal items on the menu.

The eye of the imagination beholds at the least the Puritan women handing about to their guests, bowls of delicious food with a grave and simple courtesy which must have made its impression on the Indian mind. The religious exercises which accompanied every day of that first Thanksgiving were doubtless intended to serve the double purpose of expressing their own gratitude to God and impressing on the minds of their Indian guests the beauty and truth of their worship.

In 1795 President Washington proclaimed a general Thanksgiving to acknowledge the nation's many and great obligations to Almighty God and to implore Him to continue and confirm the blessings enjoyed. But it was only an occasional feast until after the Civil war when the President of the United States annually issued a Thanksgiving proclamation, from which time it has spread to Canada and many other parts of the world.

Simple in its nature, it is set apart to the exercise of those home bred affections which bring families together. Of all the religious festivals of the year, Thanksgiving Day is the only one that is celebrated by all the people. Christmas and Easter are celebrated by christians only while Jews and people of other creeds have their special feast days. But there is only one Thanksgiving day for all of whatever faith without distinction as to creed or belief.

Let us be humble in our Thanksgiving and remember that our gratitude should show itself neither in exultation over our prosperity nor in expected benefits to come but in the hope of such inspirations as may make us fit instruments of God's work on earth. Has the year been prosperous? Then help somebody in need.

That fields have yielded ample store Of fruit and wheat and corn, That nights of restful blessedness Have followed each new morn, That flowers have blossomed by the path That tread our working days, That love has filled us with delight We offer heartfelt praise. Not only for the earth's rich gifts, Strewn thick along our way, Her look of constant loveliness We thank our God to-day. But for the spirit's subtle growth The higher better part, The treasures gathered in the soul The harvest of the heart.

Miss McPhail's Aylmer Speech

Amongst the sturdy blows in the East Elgin campaign, this lady had her share. Her homely thrush are effective and generally logical. Here is part of her Aylmer speech as reported:

"Miss Agnes McPhail, of North York, went right to the core of the problem at the outset of her able address. 'There was a time not so many years ago when you could pack a twenty acre field with farmers and their wives, and not a paper in the country would have commented on the fact. Now if a few farmers get together to discuss the price of hogs, or talk politics, so many reporters crowd into the room that they can't all get around the table. This shows that we are getting there; the common people are asserting themselves and will eventually obtain their just rights.'

'They used to say that U. F. O stood for 'Us for ourselves.' United for office and various other selfish things. We say it stands for 'Us for others.' It is far more nearly related to democracy than the anocracy of the old parties. If the National Liberal and Conservative party is not United For Office, what are they there for?'

'We have but a little over eight million people in Canada, and three million and three quarter million square miles, which gives us about two and three quarter people per square mile. We have half a million in Toronto, and three quarters of a million in Montreal, with all their attendant sins—and we want them bigger. There is no room in Toronto for the school children in Toronto schools, while the housing problem is acute in every city in the land. In the country there are abandoned farms and vacant houses and fourteen hundred schools with ten or less pupils. We are not out to kill the towns and villages, they are necessary to us but we are also necessary to them. Which was created first? Did they build the town first and let the people go out and settle around it, or did we first clear the land?'

The speaker also took a strong objection to the propaganda put out by the National Liberal and Conservative party, especially in regard to the United States. 'There are three great groups in the Anglo-Saxon people, Great Britain, Canada and the United States, yet our Government is trying to stir up bad feelings between Canada and the United States. Premier Meighen must have been up in an aeroplane—certainly he was up in
