Tolerance.

"John said unto Him, Teacher, we saw one casting out demons in thy name. And we forbad him, because he followed not us. And Jesus said unto him, forbid him not, for there i no one that can do a mighty work in my behalf and be able to speak lightly of me." Much history is the history of intolerance. But that is not Christ. He said we are to love God with our four-fold powers-mind, body, spirit and soul, and our neighbor as ourself. That attitude is not past, but we hope it is slowly dymg, that it will, like the monsters of the ice age, become an extinct species. There is much talk of the organized forces of Christianity getting together. In fact, they are already together in ways not never to mean the want of strong belief in what is right and wrong. It is possible to believe everything, and so believe nothing. A man said to me once, "I don't care what a man's religion is, so long as he lives it." He might as well have said, "I don't care what a man's politics are, so long as he lives them." Bolshevism is one kind of politics. Would he like to have his neighbors become Bolshevists, and appropriate his farm and his home? Anarchy is one form of politics. Would he like to see his house in flames, some night? It does matter mightily what a man believes, whether it be in religion or politics. To tolerate others' opinions is good, but there are some things we must not tolerate. Intolerance becomes a virtue, beyond a certain point, and I am not certain but we need an inoculation of intolerance to-day. And goodwill is always intolerant, yet always tolerant. Christ was the most tolerant of leaders, yet against wrong, injustice spiritual blindness, class hate, he was a flame of intolerance. It is all a matter of being tolerant at the right place.

Why We Blush.

Any shock or emotion which makes the heart pump an extra supply of blood into the arteries and veins which supply the face will give rise to blush-

The emotion, of course, must be one of the variety which causes the heart to beat faster than usual. Excitement. embarrassament, or anger will cause this, while fear, which retards the acion of the heart, will produce a pale white look.

Because the shock or emotion must tomed, some persons blush far more readily than others. A person who is not in the habit of listening to gertain language will blush from embarrass ment when he hears it the first few times, but if the experience is continued he will become hardened and lose the ability to blush-which is the reason that blushing is considered to be one of the attributes of innocence
