Moving Pictures in the Desert.

Pictures instead of politics at the House of Commons, with a special seat reserved at each performance for the Prime Minister! That would cause a sensation, wouldn't it?

Yet the national exchequer of the West African Republic of Liberia is swelled by letting out the House of Representatives as a twice-weekly movie. The admission price is thirty cents, and the President of the Republic has his own reserved chair.

Mr. Cherry Kearton, the well-known English explorer, has described an even more remarkable movie he came across in the wilds of Uganda. It was a private show owned and operated by the Kabaka, or ruling chief. Here, thousands of miles from civilization. Mr. Kearton was rendered homesick by seeing a film of Piccadilly Circus! Another man, when journeying with a Greek caravan from Smyrna to Bagdad, witnessed a picture-show in the desert. Acetylene gas provided the projecting power, camel bells the orchestra, sand the seats, and the sky the roof.

Moving pictures in Royal palaces, public schools, battleships, and liners are no longer unique. But a pictureshow in a church, and another in a prison, is something quite out of the ordinary. The first takes place occasionally at the Church of the Holy Redeemer, in New York, and the second at the State Penitentiary. Stillwater, Minneapolis. Operator and orchestra are furnished by the prisoners, and all those of good behavior are

The world's smallest public picture theatre can accommodate seventy people, and is situated on the side of a mountain in Colorado, at a place called Vanadium. The films are thrown off on the mountainside each week as the train passes through. To return them it is necessary to carry them on horseback to a distant town.

Dr. Lipinski herself has gone three weeks without eating, although she managed to keep her strength at a fairly normal scale by frequent drinks of water. She is continuing her experiments in a laboratory on the outskirts of Paris, despite the fact that she lost her sight several years before the war, and has given a mass of evidence to the doctors which is expected to reform the treatment of many neurasthenic and digestive maladies.

Think over the acts of your life carefully before you ask for exact justice.

It is estimated that American women spend about $500,000,000 on hats each year.

A French statistician concludes that at the age of fifty a man has slept 6,000 days, worked 6,500, walked 800. amused himself 4,000, spent 1,500 eating, and been ill only about 500 days or about 3 per cent. of the time.

We Have Too Many Brains. The world war gave unprecedented opportunities for the study of injuries to the brain. There were instances in which individual fighting men lost as much as teacupful of brain substance without impairment of their mental faculties.

Extraordinary! The reason is not easy of explanation. But apparently nature provides us with more brain material than we need to think with, and we can spare quite a bit of it without serious consequences, unless some essential struc-

Bird Invented First Incubator. The first and original incubator seems to have been the clever invention of an Anstralian bird of large size called the "brush turkey." saves the fowl a great deal of time and trouble. The hen turkey lays her "clutch" of eggs in a neat circle, and then she and her mate scratch together a big A SPLENDID TONIC pile of leaves and other forest trash to cover them. Decomposition of this vegetable material produces heat, whereby the eggs are kept at proper temperature for incubation.

From time to time the male bird gives the heap a scratching over, as if to make sure that the temperature developed is neither too high nor too low. He does not permit the newly hatched young ones to emerge, however, until they are fully fledged and able to take care of themselves. Then he helps them to get out.
