Robert Stead, Famous Canadian Author, Once More Takes Up the Pen to Produce An Absorbing Story of Dominion Life

"Neighbours," a Happy Novel of the Northwest, is Hailed as His Greatest Book
 Romance and Authentic Record of Colorful Period of National Life Combined in Novel of the Homestead

Of all Canadian-born, Canadian-writing authors to-day, Robert Stead stands out as that one who most steadily and unflinchingly has pointed Canada at her best. His former novels, "The Homesteaders," "The Cowpuncher," and "Dennison Grant," have established for him a wide reputation throughout Canada, and for that matter all of the British Empire and the United States. It was Stead who made the experiment not so long ago, of publishing his first book in Canada, through a Canadian firm (Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton Limited), and printed by Canadian presses. The experiment was so successful that the book outsold the best selling imported titles of its season, and the Stead books have been proving the truth of the All-Canadian theory ever since.

ROBERT STEAD,
 Author of "Neighbours," "Dennison Grant," "The Cowpuncher," "The Homesteaders," etc.

This latest novel is in many ways Stead's greatest. It is very simple writing, with evidence of a fine restraint and understanding, and demonstrates again his unrivalled knowledge of the country of its setting. The love story of two families of young people, who have been children together in the east and take up adjoining homesteads in the Saskatchewan country, is its main theme. And a beautiful and absorbing love-story it is, with a touch of suspense toward the close which makes it all the happier in the end. The life of the Homestead neighbourhood is told with delightful humour, and a more delightful evidence of real knowledge of the settlers' country and the characters which make it up.

"Neighbours" is a book which should be found on every library table in Canada this year, and on every shelf in every library for the years to come, for its charm is not greater than its real value—a picture of a changing time—a time which held some of the greatest realities and the greatest sweetness of our history. Robert Stead has assuredly won "The Immortal Garland" in "Neighbours."

Living up to our Motto— "For Home and Country"
 Prepared and read by Mrs. M. Knechtel, Durham, at the October meeting of the Women's Institute.

It is a great thing to have a great motto and it is a greater thing to live up to it. We have a great motto "For Home and Country." It has been said that the three greatest words in the English language are, "Heaven, Home and Mother." In our motto we have one of these specifically mentioned "Home" and mother indirectly, for "what is home without a mother?" Hence you will be impressed with the greatness of our motto, "For Home and Country." The idea of home is to set before the mind and the ambition of life, a condition of things that is ideal and the ideal is always above the real though not above the possible. So the purpose of our motto, "For Home and Country" is to set before us the glorious possibilities of Home and Country and to stimulate all to strenuous and well sustained effort to advance by every way possible the interests of our "Home and Country."

In speaking of "Our Country" there is much that might be said to flatter ourselves and give cause for commensurate pride and deep seated loyalty. For truly we have a great land, we may well be proud of our place in the family embraced by the name of the British Empire, the greatest Empire the world has ever known. Canada is the greatest and most influential daughter in the Royal Household. We may speak with pardonable pride of our brief but glorious history as a colony developing into nationhood where now we stand as one of the sister nations of the world, a self governing nation for such is Canada in the fullest and best sense of the word. We can never forget the heroic and gallant part of Canada in the last great world war. It was simply glorious. We speak of our growth and development, not only in population and wealth and progress and the science of self government, but we speak also of our national greatness from the standpoint of our natural wealth of almost inconceivable proportions in forest, mine, fisheries and agriculture, the importance of our manufactures and their variety, as well as the many branches of agriculture including stock, grain and fruit raising, etc. All these things and many more such advantages and by no means forgetting our excellent and exceedingly attractive climate, make Canada a great and glorious country which we may with peculiar pride designate as "our own country."

But the greatest thing in this great country of ours is not its inconceivable dimensions and vast areas, nor its great natural resources so imperfectly developed as yet, nor its vast wealth already developed and realized in our fertile agricultural areas and great and populous towns and cities. Not even our system of government, our educational systems with schools, colleges and universities, not even our splendid churches everywhere lifting their lofty spires or tiny minarets toward the skies, not any one of these nor all of these combined constitute the greatest thing in this great land we call "our country."

The greatest asset of any land and the one thing above all others to determine her destiny is "the home." So the homes of Canada are the greatest and most important consideration in our national life because the character of these "Homes" determines the future history of our country and the destiny of our nation. The greatest thing is the home and the home is the family life of the little circle embracing husband and wife, father and mother and little children. That is ideal: It is God's plan. The home is one of the first and one of the very few Divine institutions in the earth. God instituted a Home when He found a companion and helpmate for Adam and Eve and their children constituted the first family.

We have homes established and new homes are being established all along. The worth-while character of these homes is determined not by the size of the building that houses these families, not by the elaborate furnishings of these homes, not by the evidences of wealth that appear, but rather the true conception of life that evidences itself in the principle of love and self-sacrifice. Love for God, love pure and genuine between the husband and wife, and self-sacrificing yet wise and considerate love of parents for their children: that love which begets love, evidencing itself in sacrifice and service for each other, not all on the part of either each to the other. There should be love and service of parents to children and love and service and self-denial of children toward the parents and love and sacrifice of the whole family for a needy world outside, near at hand and also far away. All our land should be influenced and Canadianized and christianized by the home and effort of christian homes and families directly in our own communities and indirectly through education and missionary and evangelizing effort in foreign speaking communities and in settlements. So that our motto "For Home and Country" imposes upon us the responsibility of Home and family life in all its exalted christian character and the necessity of making it possible for all the homes in all our fair land to come immediately and directly under the regenerating power of being Canadianized by education and christianized by the power of the Gospel itself.

MULOCK
