We never accused Miss Davidson or Miss McKenzie of being boisterous, but I tell you when they are laid up with the cold, things appear quiet. However we wish them both speedy recovery and able to take their ac customed places in the school rooms

The annual meeting of the Presbytrian church was held Thursday evening last and was fairly well attended. While there is not a great large batance over, everything was settled up to the satisfaction of all, having atmost reached their allocation in Missions. All organizations are apparently prosperous and the ladies are taking the lead. Sickness appears to be about the only thing that affects the attendance and it does not come empty handed either. Messrs G. Aitken and E. Reid were the retir ing managers which was filled by Messrs N. Dodds and W. Nelson. It know, is sufficiently recovered to rewas decided to re-decorate the church

From Geneva we went to Paris, crossing the frontier at Bellegards. For several hours our route seemed to lie between two ridges of the Mountains. A good road lay beneath us on the right and from it the ground sloped steeply up to bare perpendicular rocks which in many places resembled castles or fortresses. Here and there a great arched doorway in the rock, reminded one of the Pied Pipers' Retreat. On one sharp point of rock a black eagle with shoulders raised on a white marble tree stub peered down into the valley below and made one wonder what he saw The journey took about thirteen hours to Paris and Frame's coaches met us and conveyed us to the Lycee Louis le Grand, the University of France, where we stayed by special invitatation as the Head Masters wished to honour the Canadians.
