----Jumping to Conclusions.

If you travel on a liner it is wise not to jump to the conclusion that everyone who wears a yachting cap is a steward. A passenger on the Baltic asked a passer-by to get him a chair, and rewarded the man with a shilling for doing so. Half an hour later he heard that he had tipped Sir Thomas Lipton! Sir Thomas has been telling the story himself, which is a sign of seeatness on his part. Tennyson and the late Duke of Norfolk were also in their time and bragged about it.
