SWINTON PARK

PRICEVILLE & GLENELG

We intend to start at the foundation of Priceville this week and to do so, we must climb up the big hill on the Old Durham Road, east of the old bridge and get to the Post Office kept by the late Wm. Ferguson and called Artemesia P. O. To this office mail came once week carried by the late Frederick Armstrong in a satchel and on foot. This was in the early 50's when conveyances now in use were only a dream in the future.

In those days letters were closed and sealed with sealing wax, as envelopes were not then in use. However they got to their destination all right. From Tom Nichols all the way up to near the Toronto line, were inhabited by colored people and now there is none of that race to be found from Priceville to the Toronto line. A hotel stood where the Presbyterian manse is in the latter part of the 50's and the beginning of the 60's. Pastor Rev. Mr. Jones had no word of going to college for a couple of score of years or more. And the scent of the booze disappeared when the old hotel was torn down or burnt, we don't remember which.

The first hotel was kept by the late Sager Tryon on the north side of the Old Durham Rd., then the late E. B. McMillan succeeded Mr. Tryon. The first store was on the side of the hill west of the Sauregn kept by the late Wm. Purdy and its only a few years since the present proprietor, W. G. Watson took it down. He should have kept it as a reminder of old times.

On the other side of the old bridge a store (later the old manse) was kept by the late J. H. Yeomans in the latter part of the 50's. The building was destroyed by fire a few years ago. In 1857 the late John McDonald (brother of Mrs J. H. Hunter) erected a grist and saw mill and was well patronized when in operation.

SWINTON PARK'S BIGGEST PICNIC

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

In Reply to "Veteran"

To the Editor of the Durham Review

Dear Sir,— I have read with some interest and a little amusement the articles in the Review and Chronicle of last week signed "Veteran" and on account of my association with the Committee under whose guidance the Soldiers' Monument was erected, will be glad if you will permit a little space to reply to the remarks contained in the article.

After reading the article last week the first thought that occurred to me was the heading contained in many copy books, "Empty vessels make the loudest sound," and although misstatements and criticism occur frequently in the letter, the writer may have had some good intentions in the matter but writes in such a manner that very little good could be expected.

First of all let me say that considerable earth has been drawn on the lot several days work with teams in plowing and harrowing, as well as a great many loads of stone removed. Finally the grounds were seeded and a row of trees planted but the great want for the grounds was water which could not be obtained this spring or summer. This will now be remedied and water supplied to the lot, fresh mains having been laid. Rome was not built in a day and it takes a little time and a good deal of work to get this lot or any other in reasonable condition and to satisfy outside readers of your paper who may not know all the conditions existing, I have every confidence that the citizens of the town in conjunction with the Monument Committee will yet have a pleasant little park and beautify the grounds in a manner creditable to the town.

Now a few remarks to "Veteran." I do not pretend to know who he is, but if his article was worth writing there could not have been any mistake in signing his name to it, then an opinion could have been formed if the writer of it was genuine. Readers will no doubt ask the question if "Veteran" would be a person who would lead or assist to carry out any of the improvements he has suggested, if so then he had a right to write the article. If not he was only suggesting something he apparently had no confidence in himself. If he will give us his name your readers will know his past and can easily ascertain if he had any part in helping to erect the monument or in any other way commemorating the memory of his comrades and those who gave their lives for us.

Now a few suggestions in conclusion. There is room enough for "Veteran" and all other citizens of the town and those interested in the upkeep of the monument to combine their efforts to make the lot a pretty little park, many can give a little work, others can give a little cash for the purchase of bulbs, flowers, shrubs and trees and the buying of hose, tools and other articles to keep the grounds in shape. Thanking you for valuable space. Yours truly,

W. Calder
