THE RURAL SCHOOL FAIR

The Rural School Fair which is held in nearly every section of the county will be taking place next month and is always an outstanding event in the lives of the children.

honestly to do his best this year will next year try to get some older person to help him because "the other kids do."

J. J. Morrison & Miss McPhail

Present at Allan Park U. F. O. Garden Party

Thursday evening last, even if it was a good harvest day, found the home and grounds of Thos. Lawrence, Vickers, a popular rendezvous, for there was staged the garden party of the Allan Park Club U.F.O. and in addition to the material delights of the occasion, they had secured the well known J. J. Morrison and equally well known Miss McPhail, M. P. to provide the intellectual. As it happened, Rev. Mr. Kendall, Dundalk, at present enjoying holidays, was present and he kindly took a platform and gave a most interesting address.

Byers of Hampden, showed that young lady has a splendid memory and at home on the platform.

Mr. John Whiteford made an efficient chairman and welcomed to their annual outing the crowd present, estimated by some at 500. Such gatherings are a benefit to all, a breathing opportunity away from the round of daily duties.

Rev. Mr. Kendall thought the U. F. O. had "broadened out" or he would not have been on the platform. He told some good stories and dropped into a very fine address dwelling on the importance of four things "even in the U. F. O.," these being Integrity, Faith, Responsibility and Co-operation.

Mr. Morrison said he used to have friends in Grey; he was not sure if he was now. He deplored misrepresentation in the press and had a fling at the Hanover Post for being too ready to reproduce criticisms of a former Farmers' Sun editor, the object of all such being to destroy the U. F. O. He had criticism too for Mr. Kendall for thinking the U. F. O. wanted to keep everybody out.

She gave a description of the transferable vote regretting it had not been passed into law for the conduct of elections. She had warm praise for W. F. Maclean and McMaster who each refused to line up with their respective parties on Banking and other questions and deplored the sinister appearance of government and opposition voting together every time, even though public interests might suffer.

Speaking of the decline of agriculture, she asserted as her belief that mental and spiritual life will go down if agriculture fails. She again urged the value of co-operation by which sympathy would be broadened.

Mr. Morrison said he used to have friends in Grey; he was not sure if he was now. He deplored misrepresentation in the press and had a fling at the Hanover Post for being too ready to reproduce criticisms of a former Farmers' Sun editor, the object of all such being to destroy the U. F. O. He had criticism too for Mr. Kendall for thinking the U. F. O. wanted to keep everybody out.

The U. F. O., he declared, was an organization built for commercial purposes "in politics we don't bar anybody" but they wished "no new political party." Elections were used, he seemed to think, to put men in high places, and he implied their neglect of the public interests led to such things as the request of a Ukrainian agency to make a settlement in Halton County, a lower class, settling on land sacred by the work of the pioneers.

The morality of the province, he asserted, rested with the rural people. He hardly knew why, but morality falls in towns and cities.

The U. F. O. could not go down, the spirit that brought it into existence still exists, and it is buttressed now by U. F. W. O. and by the W. S. Y. P. O. from whom leaders of the future would be drawn.

Again he urged learn to co-operate—too many rushed into politics and forgot the benefits of united action—too many individualists. "Co-operation is like your pocket—if you don't put anything in it you can't take it out! The great aim must be to lessen the gap between what the farmer has to sell and what he has to buy, and he advised to "lambast" the one that would not stand up for his rights.

After more strong appeals to stand by the organization which was surely going to succeed, he closed amid applause. God save the King was sung and a band of waiters dispersed splendid refreshments.

LOCAL ITEMS

Ladies, tell your friends about Spirilla, then call on your youngsters under the chin, and who never fails to have some peppermints in his pockets? Why, the bachelor friends of the family, of course. Yet you never hear his praises sung. There is a Mother's Day, a Father's Day, but there is no day for the unwed, natural or acquired. Every bachelor is a potent uncle to every kid. Every bachelor responds when Johnny trots out his new shiny pig bank. When Daddy can't find a penny for sister, the old baw who happens to be there sticks his hand in his pocket, remarks that he believes he had a little chickened, and presents Sis with a nickel or a dime invariably. Married folk are entirely too fond of running down the bachelor. Maybe the poor fellow does occasionally need a button, and perhaps he's not just as careful as his friends' wives think he should be. But goodness knows, we all have been known to be shy of buttons. If you think that a man never amounts to anything until he gets married, just consider some of the notable bachelors of history. Michelangelo, the artist, was unmarried, as was Voltaire, the philosopher. Then there were Rafael, Chopin, Beethoven, Charles Lamb, Pope, Henry James, and Swinburne. Add Petrarch, Kitchener, Cecil Rhodes and many others to the list and you will agree that the bachelors have a little Hall of Fame all their own.

IN LOVING MEMORY

Of our dear wife, and mother, Margaret Lamont, who died at Harmony, Ont., Aug. 28th, 1922, after a few days' illness.

"Deep in our hearts there's a picture Of a loved one, gone to rest; In memory's frame we shall keep it Because 'she' was one of the best. Our lips cannot speak how we loved her."

Our hearts cannot tell what we say; God only knows how we miss her. As we journey along on life's way, The world may change from year to year.

And friends from day to day; But never will we one we love From memory fade away. —Inserted by husband, son and daughters.
