Beautiful Ontario

It was our privilege last week to have a motor drive through ten or a dozen counties in Ontario and at this time of the year, he must be a cynic indeed who would not be stirred to declare that we have a beautiful province.

The farm activity on the way was largely in connection with the hay crop which also seemed to be a large one, both in quantity and acreage.

Our tour lay through Guelph and Hamilton, the latter especially a stirring city and seemingly a prosperous one.

The stiff climb from Grimsby to the table land above lands the traveller in new surroundings. The garden aspect is gone and finely cultivated fields abound, some of the fields in stooks, though even here much hay still to save.

A new feature now appears—ditches, which must be or has been an expensive feature of this flat country.

We cross at one point a "feeder" canal which comes from the Grand River at Dunnville and at one time was much used for transportation of goods, timber, wood, etc., but nothing of this done now and a few cement bridges cross it at intervals.

The works on the new Welland Canal is making of Port Colborne an important place. It is the intention to deepen the canal to 25 feet, possibly to 30 feet, to allow of ocean vessels to go through in days to come when the St. Lawrence waterway is similarly treated.

The shores of Lake Erie have undergone a transformation in recent years. What with Erie Beach, Crystal Beach, Long Beach, etc., what with the number of private residences dotting its shores the population in summer must number thousands.

Even in a year we noticed a difference on the roads, good roads almost everywhere, but in this part of the province we have yet some way to go.

We exceedingly regret that the tie that bound us together as workers in the Ladies' Aid is about to be severed.

During the years which you have worked with us as President you have endeared yourself to us all, proving to us what an ardent Christian worker you are.

Now duty has called you to a new field of labor where new associations will be formed, new opportunities presented themselves and while you are busily engaged in these, your memory will be cherished here by old and young.
