

The heart of your home

YOUR home—every home—is at the mercy of the kitchen range at least three times a day. Knowing the importance of good meals and the amount of work it takes to prepare them day after day the knowing home-manager realizes the necessity of the right range. When you compare a Happy Thought Range with any other at any price, you will understand why more than 300,000 Canadian women praise them three times a day. See one this week.

Three Reasons:

Are you a "Dry"? Why? Because I want alcohol banished from the home as a beverage, I want to defend weak ones against themselves. I want safety on the highway, but mainly I want to protect the women and children who pay with deprivation, suffering and degradation for the palaces and motor cars of the brewers and distillers.

slaves of the drug, it is partly a disease with them. Some others want it because they can make money out of it? They care nothing for any one else.

Are you a Moderationist?

The principles of the League are used in many cases as a cloak to cover the aims of the second class. But it contains also men who desire only a moderate consumption of alcohol, a moderate waste of money; they want the happy drunkard's home to flourish in the land but only in moderate numbers.

They are broad-minded—they say so themselves—they want only a moderate amount of vice, in other words, starvation, illiteracy, rum-running, just to show they are not fanatics!

The O. T. A. may not be perfect, but to change it in the direction of the moderationist, would be putting back the clock of progress, would be floating the church and every uplift movement, would be putting a new burden and blight on many homes.

In docking the tail of the liquor dog, it is best to use a sharp axe and operate just behind the ears.

Varied Topics Discussed at Women's Institute

Subjects of Present Day Interest Discussed Intelligently

The October meeting of the Durham Branch Women's Institute, met at the home of Mrs C. Ramage on Friday afternoon. After preliminary proceedings conducted by the President, Mrs Graham, Mr Rowland of the Royal Bank, gave an interesting and instructive address on "Banking," tracing the development from its earliest beginnings to the present branch system and showing the advantages of that system over those preceding it. He also showed the many ways in which banks are of service to the public and discussed the proper use of the various bank papers.

The Temperance Question which is, or should be, engaging the attention of the Ontario voter at the present time, was ably handled by Miss Winnie Blyth in a solo and Miss M. McGirr in an address. Some of Miss McGirr's points were: 1. The O. T. A., though far from perfect, has lessened both drunkenness and the chance for the young learning to drink.

II. Government Control in operation in the various provinces, particularly B. C.: (a) Since liquor cannot be drunk in Gov't stores, it brings saloon conditions and saloon influences into the home, thus the home is demoralized, divorces increased and places of immorality flourish as never before. (b) More women and children buy liquor under Gov't Control than under any previous system. (c) There are 8 to 10 times as many bootleggers under Gov't Control as under Prohibition. (d) Business men who voted for Gov't Control now declare that it has simply killed business. (e) Gov't Control instead of lessening taxes has raised them for the increased revenue from liquor does not nearly meet the increased expenditure for police, administration of justice, and upkeep of jails and hospitals, which the sale of liquor makes necessary.

III. Ontario is the key which opens or bars the door to temperance progress on this continent. The liquor party knows this, is bending his best efforts to win and counts on the indifferent temperance voter to help him out. After this address a motion for the support of the O. T. A. by the Women's Institute was carried unanimously, as was also another motion to donate $10 to the local Temperance Campaign Fund. At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Ramage served a dainty lunch.

ON LIFE'S HIGHWAY

Do something good on Life's highway Before the sunset ends the day. The grave is but a dark abode. And for us all doth end the road.

The man who slaves for self alone, To build himself a gorgeous home. An empty heart to that home will take And die alone for avarice' sake.

The man whose heart is full of grace, Who happily works in another's place Though his home may be a humble cot Has something that the other has not.

He knows the joy that service brings, His life's made up of little things: It needs not much to fill his needs, He finds true joy in loving deeds.

At home he meets a smiling face, And little ones his table grace: When evening shadows end his day, He's done his bit on life's pathway.

The One who died that we might live Has taught us well the way to give: And though He was a King, 'tis said He had no place to lay His head.

He never cared for wealth or fame, The rich and poor were all the same: To follow Him from day to day Is the safest path on Life's highway.

—Phoebe Hendry, 391 Gerrard St., Toronto

TWO PRINCIPLES

1st—Principle of Prohibition
2nd—Principle of Government Control of the sale of liquor for beverage purposes.

Vote for the first question on the ballot. To vote for the second is to put back the clock of progress, to endanger life, to become a partner in crime.

Government Sale, Not Control in B. C.

Rev. W. W. Peck Lays Bare the Fallacy of Government Control

With rather imperfect announcement, the Hall was nearly filled on Thursday evening last and those who heard Rev. W. W. Peck will henceforth have no illusions about the fallacy in the words "Government Control." Mayor Dr. Smith was in the chair and in his opening remarks dwelt on an evil of alcohol not often spoken of, viz., its enervating effect on succeeding generations as well as on the individual. He called on Rev. W. J. Burnett, Drumore, to open with prayer, after which the Methodist quartette gave a delightful number "He's a brother of mine, did you just let him go on with his load."

Rev. Mr. Smith was called upon to introduce the lecturer, whose work he had admired. The comparison between present days and ten years ago was all in favor of the former, but many young people have forgotten, it was a "great campaign," funds abundant in the hands of the "wets," for liquor interests in Scotland, Ireland, England and France are boasting they are helping to finance this Ontario campaign. He asserted that if the women only realized their strength, they could strike the strongest blow.

Rev. Mr. Peck opened with a reference to Lloyd George, showing that the economic situation was most important. It had been proved that 29 per cent of workmen failed to turn up on Monday and 10 per cent on Tuesday, under old conditions, but with alcoholic influence down, production went up. "The nation that best had alcohol under control is the nation that will most advance" was a statement of Lloyd George.

He proposed to confine himself to B. C., because it had the so-called government control longest, but he was convinced the other provinces which had adopted it, would show the same degrading tendencies. Not a single man took the platform in 1920 nor in 1924, and we have no illusions about the so-called "Moderation" League in British Columbia.

"How many communities do you know that have drunk themselves rich?" was one of his searching questions. Gov't control, he asserted, does not exist. He gave illustrations to show the evils of the present system: one doctor gave 4004 prescriptions in one month; three others over 1000! It would almost seem the purpose of Gov't control was to demoralize the people. "What Ontario is being told today in this campaign is to use in B. C. a joke." He read printed evidence of the Police Commissioner of Victoria to show that where there was one bootlegger under prohibition, there were ten now. He reminded them that if they were defeated on Oct. 23rd, there would then be no bar to importation, and he declared government sale was simply a cloak for the bootlegger. Of every dollar spent in liquor 69 cents goes out of the province. "Do you wonder how business men feel as they see the money flowing past them?"

The promise of reduced taxation he graphically showed up: holding a sheet of his own tax bills since before 1920, he read the annual amounts which began at $62 yearly and year by year grew till last year it was $140. "I don't want any more reduction like that!" From police records he showed that houses of ill fame were increasing, and in other ways the tone of the province was being lowered. He told with telling effect the story of a mother whom he knew, her husband debauched by government sale, she weakly, and lamenting in agony for her children: "If I should die and poison in their blood."

No report can give the effect of listening to this powerful advocate. As may be expected he is booked ahead for the campaign. One of his closing shots was "Of all the methods for control of liquor, government sale is the worst."

MULOCK

A number from here attended the mass meeting at Durham on Thursday evening which was held in the interests of Prohibition. The speaker, Rev. W. Peck, showed that the laws now governing the sale of intoxicating liquors, are the most effective that have ever been in Ontario. He explained how Government Control was in force in different provinces, much to the detriment of the people. There is more drunkenness in Manitoba and more convictions for bootlegging and illegal sale of liquor under Government Control than there has been under the O. T. A. This shows that the liquor laws of Ontario are well suited to the needs of the Province and no one could do better than to vote on Oct. 23rd that the O. T. A. be kept in force.

The Anniversary services were held on Sunday last at Mulock Church with a good attendance, both morning and evening. An inspiring sermon was delivered by Rev. H. Crichington, in which he brought out the mediums which bind us to the throne of God, symbolized by the binding of the evening offering to the horns of the altar in the days of ancient Israel.

A beautiful duet was sung by Mrs. Dougald McDonald and Mrs John McKechnie. At the close of the service, Mrs (Rev.) Crichington gave a lovely rendition of a consecration hymn.

At the evening service the text was from Ex. 32: 26. The pastor pointed out that those who are really on the Lord's side, should show plainly that they are. Only those who enjoy fellowship with the Father, know what joy there is for those who choose God as their portion. Mrs Crichington and Miss Nancy Boyd sang appropriate solos in a delightful manner.

Saturday.

Yes, youngsters, half a holiday—mind the maples blazed Like flames against the smoky sky the goldenrod was brown. Across a stretch of searing hills the lacy white snowdrops;

And all the little neighborhood was on its way to town. We clanked across the crisp field tired lay by tired gray— The house was primed for company from roof to shining floor;

White, starched curtains blowing fresh hung for Sabbath Day, And spicy oven smells about the end the kitchen door. Fresh garments lay upon the our were lolly rooms.

We shared a cloudy luncheon with wait conscious happy pride. To wash our new and shining and teared a bloody down. As, yawning on cheek and chin, felt their looseness slide.

Yes, youngsters, half a holiday—maple road at last! And other wickets to race our in a sunspattered way. For some good things slide on in when all the rest were past. And consecrated it is perhaps called it Saturday.

Interesting Facts Regarding Fox Raising.

Some interesting facts regarding fox farming are forthcoming from the Veterinary Director, Toronto. In an article in the Cultural Gazette of Canada, the writer tells us that the difficulty connected with the raising of foxes in captivity is the taming of them from disease. It is true that the female foxes give birth to a litter of four or at times as she does when rarely produces more than two average for the farms in Prince Edward Island being at the rate of one and a half. Individual fox runs however, by care and improved methods do succeed in securing increases of three or even four pair. With a view to making success more general, another direction of Dr. Torrance, and work has been undertaken. Last year a number of foxes were imported from the United States and the Ontario Animal Branch employed, six of foxes from the Island raising method, and a small laboratory, up for the studying of the disease and parasites that affect the fox.

She Took the Next Train

Short cuts, if the road is long may not prove short; and gloves are near together may not be reached from one another. The snating impossible directed her to our childish years. We find an inconvenient coin in the fact. "Straight down the crooked and all around the square." As they frequently come to the aid of a distracted shopper in a great department store.

"I want some shoestrings, sarjins, a pair of gloves and a brush," the woman said. "I'll catch a train, and have but a teatime."

"Yes, madam!" the floorwalker smiled briskly. "That's the best department store—get anything you want, right under the one roof! elevator to eleventh floor, eight, eight aisles to the right, main passageway, for shoes at hairpins in notions department, side of basement, three aisles hardware; gloves in women's fifth floor of annex; reached a sagway over street; toothbrush and toilet articles deposited on balcony, reached by moving way, which you will find on you as you pass the fountain in the shop in the centre of the main."

Electricity in the Bath

Speaking of deaths in bath which electrical appliances attached, the British Medical Association says:

No one with the most elementary knowledge of the danger of an current would immerse himself in an ordinary household bath and proceed to administer treatment to a piece of apparatus connected with an ordinary lighting circuit; nor would he allow anyone else administer such treatment. It is really useless to attempt to an ordinary bath, fitted with water pipes and a waste pipe person immersed in a bath.

An excellent conductor for electricity. In a properly fitted bath switches, lights and wires are so arranged that it is impossible to connect the bath to anyone, while in the bath to anyone of them with any part of. Furthermore, all these fittings be at a distance from the person should be taken that it is possible, and that the best perfect.

The foreman had rebuffed for not taking a full load of the ladder every trip, and he promised not to attend again morning the supply of bricks and Cassidy, after gathering one in sight, found he was the proper number. He worked on the fifth floor.
