United Farmers' Co-Operative Co. Ltd., Adopts New Ruling

Only Supporters of U.F.O. Organizations Will Share in Commodity Dividends.

With a view to consolidating the organized farmer movement in Ontario, the United Farmers Co-operative Company Limited, at its last board meeting, made an important ruling regarding the payment of commodity dividends.

As is well known, the Co-operative company is developing its business in accordance with the approved methods of co-operative commodity marketing whereby each department dealing in a separate commodity—or one or two closely allied commodities—will be virtually a separate department under the management of its own expert.

The Toronto Creamery branch was placed on this basis on Nov. 1st last. The Egg Pool and the Seed Pool are already on a similar basis.

Holstein Loses by Death a Loved Resident

After ten days' illness, Mrs. W. J. Sharpe is Called by Death

There departed this life on Friday, February 20th, at 8.20 p.m. Mrs. W. J. Sharpe, aged 71, years, 1 month and 10 days.

When she was seventeen years of age her mother died and she had the full care of three small children, whom she tended with motherly care.

On July 27th, 1881, she was married to her now bereaved husband, W. J. Sharpe, and together they shared all the joys incidental to home life for over 43 years.

The funeral service was held from the family residence, thence to the Methodist church, Monday, Feb. 23, and thence to Mt. Forest cemetery.

Those from a distance who came to pay the last tribute of respect were David Cameron, Mrs. D. Stinchcombe and Geo. Shields of London.

CARD OF THANKS

This is to thank the many friends who so nobly came to our assistance and expressed their sympathy in the hour when we most needed help and sympathy in our recent bereavement.

The Holstein Community Circle entertained the young people at the Epworth League, Mt. Forest on Monday evening.

Three sleigh loads of young people, about 40 in number, came up for a social evening.

The meeting had been opened by a hymn and prayer by Rev. West, the young people were favored by a splendid whistling selection by Mr. Romeo Chapdelaine, who is well known to a Holstein audience.

Following this number, the principal event of the evening was a debate, "Resolved that Canada's gain in the Great War was greater than her losses."

The affirmative was taken by the Circle, Mr. Arthur Smith and the Misses Matilda Christie and Irene West being the debaters, while the negative was taken by Mr. B. Lewis, Mrs. Gilchrist and Miss Patton of the Epworth League of Mt. Forest.

The subject was ably presented by both sides and the debaters are to be congratulated, as they are a credit to both sides.

The affirmative brought out the glory and honor and liberty gained during the war, and even the gain of Women's Franchise, while this was counteracted by the negative with the loss of men and money due to the Great War.

Mr. Forest, acted as judge and decided in favor of the negative. He highly commended the debaters and had special mention for Miss Christie of the negative.

The affirmative was taken by Miss Mabel Lewis and Vera Dymers, while the Messrs Padfield gave an instrumental duet.

Both were well received. Rev. Mr. Facey of Mt. Forest, pastor of the Methodist church, expressed on behalf of the Epworth League, their appreciation of being invited to Holstein to spend a social evening.

After a few numbers of community singing, led by Miss D. Thorne, lunch was served and a good social evening was ended by the National Anthem.

Rev. Dr. Marsh on the Eclipse

A Wonderful Sight as seen from New Haven, Connecticut, U. S.

As we announced some time ago, Rev. Dr. Marsh, an exp-ator of Holstein, was appointed by the Bermuda Government to head an expedition to North America to observe and study the eclipse.

They picked upon New Haven, Conn., as their station and were fortunate in having a cloudless sky. Mrs. Marsh and her son John, both scientists, accompanied the expedition.

A recent copy of "Mid-Ocean," a Bermuda paper, gives a lengthy notice of an interview on his return home from which we quote a paragraph, one of the most graphic we have read:

"The day before the eclipse, the sky was hopelessly unpromising, and we were most apprehensive of the morning. At 2 a.m. Jan. 24th, Mr. John A. Marsh was up and out of doors to ascertain condition of the sky. He reported clouds breaking. Mr. Gauntlett was up at 3 a.m., the sky still clearing and thermometer 4 degrees below zero. Our party were on the ground at 6 a.m. after walking more than a mile with the frost crunching beneath our feet.

At this time the mercury stood 2 deg. above zero. We uncovered the instruments and put everything in order for observing; after which we began a preparatory drill—and continued this despite the cold. The drill finished, we withdrew to get warm, but the tense anxiety would not let anyone remain quiet long.

"At what hour did the eclipse come on?" the reporter asked. "The eclipse was timed to come on at 9.12," Dr. Marsh replied, "but the moon was slightly behind; when it did come on however, it repaid for the delay."

"Description of the Eclipse" "The progress of the eclipse from the time the first contact was made to the last phase, was a spectacle long to be remembered. As the first dark ring made its appearance the first physical evidence of the moon's shadow was evidenced by a weird half shadow which gradually settled over the earth, resembling in a way that certain stage of twilight when an un-earthly semi-gloom presages the dramatic climax of day.

"Every condition and characteristic looked for by the astronomer presented itself at different times during the eclipse. The shadows grew long; their outlines definite and sharp on the north side, and vague and indistinct on the south. The temperature slowly dropped as the light faded and the sky took on a blue-gray tint, while the snow helped to preserve the reflected light making the darkness less intense than astronomers anticipated.

At four minutes past nine a beautiful display of the colors of the spectrum were seen against a white cloud to the left of the sun and blotches of color appeared at intervals on the snowy whiteness of the ground. As totality approached myriads of flickering shadows appeared and disappeared with lightning like rapidity, and just as the last tiny crescent of the sun was visible, a huge shadow rushed from the west with unbelievable speed and the total eclipse was on.

There it hung, not as a blazing ball of light, but as an inky black disc, its outer edge showing blood-red flames that belched in intervals, the solar prominences or chromosphere. From this and extending out were glorious streamers of white light, tinged with bluish grey. Every voice was hushed—every movement stilled and the onlooker worshipped in silence.

To the south there were grouped and plainly visible to the naked eye, Jupiter, Venus and Mercury, and higher up the stars Vega and Altair shone with slightly lesser brilliance.

All too short did the spectacle last. God had walked by and the total eclipse of the sun was over."

VITAMINS

It was while experimenting with cod-liver oil to unlock the secret of its wonderful health-building virtues, that the basis of its great helpfulness to mankind, the vitamins, was discovered.
