"IF"___(For the Girls.)

(With apologies to Rudyard Kipling.)

If you can dress to make yourself attractive Yet not make dress and hair your chief delight; If you can swim and hike, be strong and active, But of the gentler graces lose not sight:

If you can dance without a craze for dancing, Play without giving play too strong a hold; Enjoy the love of friends without romancing, Care for the weak, the friendless and the old.

If you can master speech and language, And not acquire, as well, a priggish fein; If you can feel the touch of silk and satin Without despising calico and jean;

If you can ply a saw and use a hammer, Can do a man's work when the need occurs: Can sing and play, when asked, without excuse or stammer Can rise above unfriendly snubs and slurs;

Can sew with skill, and have an eye for dust, If you can be a friend and hold no grudges, A girl whom all will love because they must: If you sometime should meet and love another,

And make a home with faith and peace enshrined,

If you can make good bread as well as fudges,

The plan that's been developed thro' the ages, And win the best that life can have in store; You'll be my girl,— a model for the sages, A woman whom the world will bow before.

The Hard Luck of Janet McGee.

When Janet McGee went to rest by the sea. Far away from the noise of the town, In her mind she had planned that some rich guy she'd lan By pretering, some morning, to drown.

"I'll venture right in, where it's up to my chin. And then throw up my hands in the air. And let out a yelp as a summons for help." So she said, "and be rescued right there!"

So Janet McGee took a dip in the sea, And she looked at the men on the beach, And she wished that she knew just which one of the crew Would be first her poor body to reach. Then she'let out her cry: "Help! I'm going to die! O, the current is dragging me down!"

Said: "We can't let that young lady drown." So they jumped in the wave, little Janet to save, And they raced to be first at her side, But soon a fine chap, with a grip like a trap,

And right there and then, twenty-two gallant men

Just lifted her out of the tide. In his big arms he bore Janet up to the shore And over a barrel he rolled her,

But the rough usage there, she was willing to bear For the thought of the wedding consoled her. "O, brave man and good," she remarked when she could,

"For me you have ventured your life." Then a dame, who stood near, whispered low in her ear, "Forget it. I'm that fellow's wife." She jumped as though struck, and she said: "Just my luck, My fondest of plans has miscarried."

And all day long she raved: "Who'd have thought I'

Considerable interest has been aroused in London, England, over the arrival there of 8,000 peony blooms for exhibition in the Canadian Pacific pavilion at Wembley. The peonies were grown by W. Ormiston Roy of Montreal, and have been sent to England to dispel the belief that Canada's climate is excessively cold.

A delegation of prominent newspaper proprietors and journalists from Great Britain passed through Canada recently on their way to attend the Third Imperial Press Conference to be held at Melbourne, Australia, during September. Besides the delegates from the British Isles, representatives of Canada and the other Dominions have been in-

In the first accident the car ran into the first car behind the engine and in the second struck the side of the engine itself. Public attention has been directed to these accidents as Illustrative of the results of negligent driving.
