Back to School

With the beginning of September, many thousands of Canadian young people will resume their task of getting an education to fit them for the work of life. The weeks of recreation have given them renewed vigor for the tasks that lie before them. Ten months of splendid opportunities lie before them. It is their privilege to explore the wide fields of knowledge and to bring back rich and satisfying treasures, for their use and enjoyment.

There is no function of the state more important than that of educating its future citizens. The progress, it is not putting the case too strongly to say, the very existence of our civilization depends upon the principles and ideals which become the intellectual and spiritual furnishing of the children and young people growing up among us. No expenditure of public money should be counted too great, which is required in order that the opportunity of obtaining a thoroughly good education may be placed within the reach of the very poorest families in the land. But with increasing clearness, it is coming to be recognized that, all true education is, in the main, self-education. No teacher, however well trained, can educate a child: the utmost he can do is to give the child a chance to educate itself. From the very earliest years the true educator will place upon the pupil the responsibility of gaining and using knowledge for himself.

In the case of older scholars the responsibility for self education is, of course, greatly increased. Boys and girls in their teens should in an ever enlarging measure become independent of the teacher's help. The best teacher is the one who strives to make himself unnecessary to the pupil, and the pupil, who is making the most of his time, is the one who learns most quickly to stand on his own feet and do his own thinking.

To the great army of young people all over Canada the Review gives its heartiest good wishes for the coming months. May this school and college year be for them the happiest and most prosperous they have ever known!

REMOVING RESTRICTIONS
Is the bar coming Back?

There are ominous mutterings here and there that the sale of 4.4 beer has been so unsatisfactory that a loosening of restrictions surrounding it is likely to take place. Premier Ferguson has given utterance to a statement that his government were moving towards the removal of "unnecessary restrictions", because it had been proved for sure that 4.4 beer was not intoxicating.

There are now 700 licenses in Toronto licensed to sell 4.4 beer while there were before the O. T. A. was passed, only 120. We have no means of knowing the increase throughout the country, but it must be considerable. There are hints that the requirements of sitting at tables to imbibe may be abolished which would be but a step and a big one to the return of the old bar, which everyone, even brewers, condemned.

The situation seems to warrant the belief that a section of the Conservative party are ready at any time to bring pressure to bear on their leader to make changes in the law, making it easier to obtain intoxicating liquor as a beverage. Every step in this direction should rouse Ontario to regain what has been lost and the only sure way to do that is to send legislators to parliament that will respect the will of the people.

FREE TRADE vs. HIGH TARIFF

During the next election campaign this old subject is likely to receive much attention. The statement is made again and again that the United States has been made a great country by protection. As a matter of fact the country to the south of us has been built up by free trade, by every one of which is as big as the average European country. They have had free trade among themselves, hence their unparalleled growth and expansion. They have every variety of soil and climate, a abundance of coal and minerals, with the exception of nickel, and these advantages, together with splendid inter-communication facilities, have made the country what it is to-day.

Under their protective system they are not selling as much to Canada to-day as they were through to four years ago. During the last year Mr. Meighen was in office 37 per cent of all we bought came from the United States; last year the proportion was 10 per cent.

Let high tariff enthusiasts bear these facts in mind. Liberals are aware of them and appreciate their importance. The electors of this country are asked to be faithful to the party that kept faith with them in reduced taxes; less expenditure of public money; a sincere desire for retrenchment; and economy and a determination to expand trade, while at the same time lessening the cost of production.

How other Cemeteries are Kept

FUNDS SAFE-GUARDED

The Newmarket Era is very proud of the cemetery in that town, and justly so. In referring to the financial success of its perpetual care system, the Era says: "Not only is Newmarket Cemetery noted as being one of the best kept cemeteries in the Province, but it has the unique record of being the first cemetery to have its Endowment Fund deposited with the Provincial Government, thus ensuring safe keeping and permanent care of lots, because only the interest can be withdrawn. The amount placed with the Government is $26,037.50, being the sum to the credit of the Endowment Fund on Jan. 1st last, as per audited statement. The action of the Newmarket Cemetery in bringing this matter before the Provincial Government has also resulted in the passage of an Act requiring all cemeteries throughout the Province to be better looked after than in the past and if there are any local burying grounds neglected the trustees had better have the weeds cut and fences repaired before a County Constable is called to the operation. Newmarket has had long experience in the operation of perpetual care and it has proved most successful and satisfactory. The cemetery has during all these years, been under the administration of a Commission, the members of which have given their undivided attention to this one unit of public utility, with no responsibility for the conduct of Council matters. Hence the success achieved and the large endowment fund secured."

Home from New Zealand

We had the pleasure Friday night last of an extended interview with Miss Mary McAllister in her home and it is a treat to listen to this observant young lady reel off her experiences on land and sea, as well as dilate on the beauties of the Southern Dominion on the other side of our globe.

Miss McAllister, as most know, was one of the teachers chosen for interchange in our sister colony of New Zealand and the choice, we believe, was well made. Miss McA. has the pep and the intelligence required and her superior over there seem to have appreciated these qualities, judging by a letter of the head of the Education Department of Wellington, which was given to her when leaving the island. In this letter, he says:

"I have much pleasure in stating that Miss McAllister, who has been in New Zealand as an exchange teacher during the past year, has proved herself to be a highly efficient and enthusiastic teacher."

She has shown great interest in her work and has freely adapted herself to the new conditions of school work in this country. In imparting information to other teachers concerning Canadian schools and methods, Miss McAllister has made her visit of distinct value to the teachers whom she has met.

It is therefore scarcely necessary to add that Miss McAllister has been very popular here, and carries with her the cordial good wishes of both officials and teachers.

J. W. Caughley,
Director of Education"

Now there is a hint in this fine recommendation for some Durham body to secure her at first opportunity for an address on New Zealand, its schools, its scenery and other features of which Canadians will be the better of knowing.

Ye Editor was particularly pleased to be brought in close touch with a cousin and his family, with whom he has corresponded for over 50 years. Miss McAllister called on them and gave Durham greetings, and brought home pleasant memories of a kind reception. We hope some day to welcome to Canada some member or members of this family.

The New Zealanders are a most hospitable class of people, in Miss McAllister's estimation and she was delighted with the cordiality extended her on every hand. On leaving Wellington for home, parcels galore were piled up in her state room on the boat, and over a hundred friends gathered on the wharf each holding one end of a streamer, while Mary, standing on the deck had both hands filled holding the deck ends. Then when the boat pulled away the streamers snapped and the tie was severed.

We cannot adequately narrate her impressions of the grandeur of the scenery and the trips she made through the islands. She was royally entertained at Tahiti Island en route home, and after landing in California, two of her most pleasant experiences were at aeroplane trip at San Diego and viewing the wonderful grand canyon of Colorado.

Miss McAllister exhibited many interesting souvenirs from the Antipodes. One was a pretty burnt bird-purse, decorated with the kiwi—their national emblem. A Wai-ohio, also a Maori good luck charm composed of various New Zealand initials inscribed, and a dainty set of tea spoons, with jade handle, were valued remembrances. Two large rings, composed entirely of uniform size shells, each eight inches in diameter, were unusual but beautiful mementoes of the trip.

Durham Fair prize lists are now issued. Ask Secy. Binale for a copy.
