

SHEEP RAISING IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

LARGE AND INCREASING LOCAL MARKET.

B.C. Sheep Are of a High Grade and in Demand for Importation Into Other Countries.

Nowhere in Canada, the claim is made, is there greater opportunity to profitably enter the sheep industry than in the Province of British Columbia. Both the topography and climate of the province are admirably suited to sheep raising, but most important of all is the large and increasing local market, and this will more than take care of vast expansion in this branch of farming. British Columbia is a very large consumer of mutton, and only a fraction of the province's consumption is locally produced, with the result that numbers of sheep are imported annually, mainly from the United States.

In the various campaigns which have been waged by governments, railways, and livestock organizations, to encourage sheep raising and wool production throughout the Dominion, British Columbia would seem to be one province which is profiting. In 1925 British Columbia possessed 61,224 sheep, which is less than any province in Canada, but it had increased to this number from 49,749 in 1922, which is at a higher rate than in most areas. Last year the Pacific coast province produced 181,040 pounds of wool which sold for an average of 27 cents per pound.

Many Ranchers Coming In.

There are many indications that the raising of sheep is on the increase in the great interior of British Columbia and some very large acreages are being operated in this industry. In particular, sheepmen show a tendency to move up from the ranges across the line, influenced by the comparative economy of wool and mutton production and the general suitability of British Columbia conditions for sheep raising on a large scale.

It is not long since a Washington rancher brought in over three thousand sheep to the Lillooet country, considerably stimulating interest in sheep raising in that area. A company, capitalized at half a million dollars, recently entered the sheep business in the Creston district, securing control of 200,000 acres for that purpose. Two Oregon sheep farmers not long ago brought in eight thousand sheep to the Pemberton range, twenty miles from Kamloops, and purpose running up to ten thousand animals. Other large sheep ranch establishments are reported in various parts of the interior.

The Livestock Commissioner of British Columbia is working energetically for the development of the province's sheep industry and reports that present conditions in the industry are highly satisfactory, the year's lamb crop having averaged 100 per cent, even on the isolated range. British Columbia sheep are consistently of a high grade and as such are sought for importation into other countries. Several purchases have been made in the province by Russian buyers, a flock of forty-six recently being made up for the Soviet Government. And it is considered that there is every possibility of a permanent trade of some proportions developing.

Indian Summer.

Sometimes when loud the laughter rings
And love and mirth light every glance,
A dainty old grandmother springs
Upon the floor to share the dance:
Lifting her petticoats she shows
That once she tripped on nimble toes,
While all her children's children see
How beautiful she used to be.

Or strangely in an old man's eyes
A twinkle flashes now and then
Which causes him erect to rise
To show his skill to younger men:
A ring is made, and small and big
Applaud while grandpa does a jig,
Giving a brave but brief display
Of splendor that has passed away.

Thus in the proper time and place
Age oft relieves its earlier days,
Youth comes once more to light the face,
And set the tired old eyes ablaze.
A brave brief spell of joy is flung
From one who is no longer young,
An old man jigs upon the mat,
And Indian summer seems like that!

—Edgar A. Guest.

Sifted Opinions.

Think ye are men, deem it not impossible for you to err; sift impartially your own hearts, whether it be force of reason or vehemency of affection, which hath bred and still doth feed these opinions in you. If truth do not anywhere manifest itself, seek not to smother it with glossing delusions, acknowledge the greatness thereof, and thank it your best victory when the same doth prevail over you.

—Richard Hooker.

Tea was first used in England in 1698. To-day you might call it England's national drink.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating," but a little word or two of praise to the cook does not come amiss.

Surnames and Their Origin

JEFFRIES

Variations—Jeffre, Jefferson, Godfrey, Jepsen, Jeff.

Racial Origin—French and Norman French.

Source—A given name.

You might easily draw all sorts of analogies among the great number of famous personages who have borne the name of Jeffries or one of its variations, starting with Godfrey, who with his crusaders of the middle ages finally wrested Jerusalem from the grasp of the Moslems, and including our own Thomas Jefferson, Jim Jeffries, of pugilistic fame, and General Jeffre, right down to little Jeff, Mutt's partner of national fame—fighters all!

As a family name, Jeffries and its variations came into use simultaneously in France and England. As a given name it comes originally from France of the early Teutonic period; that is, the period of the barbarian invasions, following the fall of the Roman Empire. It was brought to England among the followers of William the Conqueror.

In France its development has been from Godfrey, through Godfrey, Jeffrey, Jeffery, to its final form of Jeffre. In England it took on many different methods of spelling, and developed in many different directions, some of them paralleling the French as far as Jeffrey, while in other instances the original form of Godfrey was maintained. In the old English records it is often found as Jofre and Jofor, and even Jephre, from which the variation of Jepsen was developed.

Electric Bovine on Steamer Never Runs Dry or Kicks

An electric cow that gives new milk, skimmed milk, malted milk, cream, fruit-flavored milk and low cream to order is the remarkable animal for which carpenters are building a special shed on board the African steamer Nigerian in the Herculaneum dock at Liverpool. This cow never kicks or flicks its tail in the milker's eye; never is seasick, never dry, and can be milked by a marine engineer or mid-Atlantic as well as a milkmaid on a Chesire farm. All that the Nigerian's cow needs is a quart of milk powder, fresh water and a drink of water.

A load of two tons can be carried by a rail-grown elephant.

Protect the forest is not a phrase but a piece of personal equipment. Use it every chance you get.

Restoration.

(To Margaret, Aged Five).
You ran up to the nursery of my heart,
Fullof click the iron latch and tumbled in;
Tore instantly three boxes wide apart,
That held a broken doll, a wreck of tin—
Once glittering train of cars—a twisted pup
With trembly tail that used to be the friend
I slept with every night; you stood
these up
With magic hands, till I could see the end
Of all their imperfections in the light
Your smile worked out before my wondering eyes:
The doll smiled, too; the cars went ding-dong-bell
And rushed off round the track; the big surprise,
However, came from that long lost white Filo
Barked in his dear old way and cut a dido.
—Wilbert Snow, "The Inner Harbor."

Prayer of the Tree.

Ye who pass by and would raise your hand against me!
Hearken ere you harm me!
I am the heat of your hearth on the cold winter nights,
The friendly shade screening you from the summer sun,
My fruits are refreshing draughts,
Quenching your thirst as you journey on.
I am the beam that holds your house,
The board of your table,
The bed on which you lie
And the timber that builds your boat.
I am the handle of your hoe,
The door of your homestead,
The wood of your cradle
And the shell of your coffin.
I am the bread of kindness and the fever of beauty.
Ye who pass by, listen to my prayer:
Harm me not!
—Eleanor Elinger.

A FINE TONIC FOR NERVOUS WOMEN

Proof That Building Up the Blood Will Strengthen the Nerves.

If you want strong nerves you must make the effort yourself. You can help yourself by refusing to worry, by taking the proper rest, sleep and outdoor exercise. For medicine take only Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which promptly build up the blood and thus feed the starved, frayed nerves.

A case of extreme nervous exhaustion restored by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is that of Mrs. R. Dundas, Peterboro, Ont., who says: "Some years ago I suffered a complete nervous breakdown. I doctored with two local doctors, but got no relief. In fact I was growing worse and weaker all the time. In this condition my mother came to take care of me and urged me to take care of me and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as she had taken them all through the change of life with splendid results. At this time I felt so far gone that I did not care whether I lived or died, but the coaxing of my mother and other relatives finally persuaded me to try the pills. By the time I had taken a few boxes I was feeling a little improvement and was able to move around. As I kept on taking the pills I felt myself able to go out and made a practice of going to work myself, and I gained rapidly from 100 to 185 pounds. I contained taking the pills for several months, and it is impossible for me to express in words the wonders they did for me. Nobody but myself knows the tortures I endured from nerve trouble, and now, thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I am a normal, healthy woman. I do not think anyone troubled as I was can find a better remedy than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

If your dealer does not keep the pills you can get them by mail at 60c a box by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

From the Window.

The little house wherein you dwell
Has no age-old romance to tell,
It has no pride of stately towers,
No arbors, balconies, and bowers,
Simple and unadorned and new,
Its legends will begin with you.
Its outer aspect soon will win
A graciousness from that within.
It looks upon a little street,
Of houses like it, plain and neat,
Of little gardens, little gates,
With scolding names on little plates.
You sometimes wish its windows viewed
Some soaring mountain solitude,
Green fields, a river shining by,
Or like a sea and windy sky,
And not this prospect cramped and tame—
Another house so much the same!
Your little street runs south and north;
Some cloudless midnight, then, look forth
And mark how true your windows are
Towards the Pole, the Venture's Star,
And how amongst the chimneys there
Sparkles the splendor of the Bear.
—W. Kersey Holmes, in "In the Open."

CHILDREN LIKE BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Because They Are Tasteless and Are Easy to Take.

One of the strongest points in favor of any medicine for children is that it is so agreeable that the mother does not have to force it down the little one's throat.

Baby's Own Tablets have no drug taste, may be crushed to a powder if desired, and babies like them. They are perfectly safe for they contain no opiate or narcotic. They sweeten the stomach and remove the cause of fretfulness.

Mrs. Arthur Charlebois, Pawtucket, R.I., says: "I have found Baby's Own Tablets to be a gentle laxative and a safe remedy for stomach disorders in children. Our little boy had been given harsh cathartics but these tablets worked more effectively without the severe griping. I can recommend them to all mothers of little children."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

It Is Not Easy.

It is not easy, the harvest of the ocean,
Nor like wheat to be reaped in a long, hot day
With cider under the hedge, not like potatoes
To be dug for leaning down to finger the clay?
Not like apples or almonds with ladies leaning
Against the fruit-filled boughs, not like milk and cream
Drumming into a pail at dawn and evening.
Not like water-gates gathered in the current of a stream—
No, for fishing a man must be stout armed and hearty,
Dawn and dark he must harness the wind, he must rein
The unbroken wind to his plow and his furrow
Over his own head may close rolling again.
Rain and sleet he must bear blinded and rocking,
He must fight through long nights when the winds cut like flails,
Haul at the lines and hold to the tiller
And struggle half frozen with storm-maddened sails.
It is not easy, the harvest of the ocean,
A hard life have its gleaners and one often cut short,
But they reap without sowing, which is sweet to wild natures,
And it is as conquerors that they storm into port—
A hard life but not dull like the life of the farmyard,
The ruttled struggle with haggardly ground.
The sailors go out to the curve of the ocean,
And their feet have no hedge and their road has no bound!
—Elizabeth J. Coatsworth.

Pasteurizing Milk.

The dairy cow is the most efficient of all animals in the production of human foods. The chief handicap under which she suffers is tuberculosis. In this regard, Prince Edward Island can boast of the Canadian record—95.5% of dairy cattle in the whole island are free from tuberculosis. Because this disease affects the human food, we must build a first line of defense—pasteurize all milk to be used by human beings—and follow it up by a second—eliminate tuberculosis from the dairy cow.

It has been proven beyond all dispute that human beings can—and do—develop tuberculosis from the milk of tuberculous cows. The matter is so serious, for we are faced with the fact that one of every two cases of tuberculous glands in children under five years of age can be blamed upon tuberculous germs in milk. Furthermore, a large amount of abdominal and bone tuberculosis among children is directly traceable to milk from diseased cows.

Milk used by human beings should be free from the germs of tuberculosis. Can we hope to supply such a milk? It is quite possible—keep the germs out of the milk, and kill them if they do get in; that's all. The milk must come from healthy cows. Milking and handling of utensils must be done by healthy persons; if a person is "not very well," let him or her help with other work, but never with milking or anything that has to do with the milk. In spite of our best efforts, germs of tuberculosis will, however, get into milk, and before it is used as food, they must be killed. The surest way to ensure this is by pasteurizing: heat to a point in which the germ cannot live (142°F. for 30 minutes), chilling immediately (45°F.) and keeping it cold until used. This will make the milk also free from tuberculous germs, also germs of typhoid, diphtheria, scarlet fever and septic sore throat. It is a simple matter to treat the milk which any town or country family is to use as food in this way. And no one can say it is too much bother when it means protection for your family against the white man's greatest enemy—consumption.

Tinned meat, a relic of the Franklin Polar Expedition of 1845, was declared fit to eat after the tin had been opened and the contents examined at the Liverpool City Laboratories.

Hamilton, Ont.—I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and would not be without it now. I had a female trouble so bad, I could hardly walk and I was all run-down and could hardly get around to do my housework. I would be in bed three or four days at a time. I was told your Vegetable Compound by a friend to try by the time I took two bottles I was beginning to get around again. I took ten bottles in all, and now I am all right again and doing my own work. I have six grown-ups to thank for, so I have plenty to go. I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and I think it good. But I owe my health to the Vegetable Compound, and I think if more of it was used women would be better off. I would not be without it if it cost more money.

—Mrs. NELLIE HOORN, 28 St. Matthews Avenue, Hamilton, Ontario.

Do you feel broken down, nervous and weak sometimes? Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is excellent to take at such a time. It always helps, and if taken regularly and persistently, will relieve this condition.
