

PRICEVILLE & GLENELG

Good bye 1926, you have faithfully served your time. You have obeyed orders from your higher Master, you have seen many changes during your existence, you have seen joys and sorrows in many a home. At the beginning of your existence many a home rejoiced at having a family reunion. At your closing term, many a home mourns the loss of loved ones.

Welcome New Year 1927! Millions of the world's residents give you a welcome reception. Are you giving a promissory note that all will be well at the close of your sojourn? "No," says 1927, "for many who are enjoying my birthday, will probably not see my funeral procession."

The late Rev. Donald McLeod of Priceville, received a call to Dunvegan in the Prov. of Quebec and accepted it. The congregation were mostly highland Scotch with only one half dozen English speaking families.

Mr Albert Jones who has been for three years bedfast and who died on Christmas morning, was buried on Monday in McNeill's cemetery. Rev. S. G. McCormick officiating at the house and grave. He took as his text, "My peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you," and drew comforting thoughts therefrom to the sorrowing ones.

Deceased was a highly respected citizen and leaves behind as chief mourners his wife and daughter Louisa, both of whom were faithful to the end in their attendance upon him; also two sons, John resident here and George in Durham. Also Mrs Raybould, a daughter, in Walkerton.

Mr Jones was born in England nearly 80 years ago and emigrated to Canada when 23 years old. He settled near Guelph for a while and engaged in farming though later he worked as a silversmith. At the age of 25, he married Miss Amanda Darr of Guelph and they moved in 1886 to Glenelg, north of Irish Lake, which was the home until 5 years ago when they moved to Priceville.

Mr Alex McLean is taking his holidays with friends in Toronto this week. The basement of the new Presbyterian church, Durham, was well filled last Sunday morning and evening.

Mr Norman McIntyre and sister, Miss Minnie of Toronto, spent an afternoon with the McDonalds of Edge Hill. Miss McIntyre is one of those kind ladies whose visits are always appreciated by her entertainers.

We spent a few days at the old home with brother and sister on the Durham Road. We didn't get to Priceville but know its there all the same.

We received a long letter from Rev Mr Matheson of Fenelon Falls. He says he has accepted a call to a Highland Scotch (chiefly) congregation in the Province of Quebec.

native province, coupled with the hope that he will return in good health to resume his work here.

The large number that attended the funeral services Monday from deceased's late home to the Queen St. Church, was a marked tribute of respect and love to one "who had done what she could" to leave her impress for good upon the lives of those left behind.

No fewer than eleven clergymen, local and from the Grey Co. United Presbytery were present to show brotherly sympathy to the bereaved pastor. The pall bearers were Rev's Armstrong, Whealan and Taylor of town; Rev. Chas. Jay, Holstein; Rev. Robt. Young, Elmwood; Rev. Chas. Church, Tara; Rev's F. N. Boves and W. Coutts of Markdale. Other clergy in the procession were Rev's W. H. Smith, R. A. Facey, Mt. Forest and Sydney Martin, Chatsworth.

The remains were carried on foot by pall bearers from parsonage to the Official Board of Queen St. and Zion churches carrying the floral tributes.

In the church, Rev. W. H. Smith had charge of the service and had with him on the pulpit Rev's Boves, Facey, Hackett and Young, who assisted in the service. Rev Mr Boves gave the scripture reading, Rev. Facey offered prayer at opening, and Rev. Young closed.

Rev. Mr Hackett, an old time friend of Rev. and Mrs Peters when in Newfoundland, was present for the sad occasion and gave eloquent testimony of worth of deceased. In reference to Death, there are, he said, some things not explainable, but in the very mystery of it all there is a touch of grace. Just as the anniversary of Christ's birth was about to be celebrated, and the angel's song heard, a life passes out to join the company from whence she came. Mr Hackett stated that 27 years ago he came from the old land to Newfoundland to take up work, and it was there he heard on all sides of deceased's splendid work and ideals as superintendent of the Methodist College. She was there not merely to instruct but to fashion womanhood and in that island her influence and personality still radiate "all that is pure and of good report."

Rev. W. H. Smith, as the chief speaker on this occasion, stated that the only reference we could fittingly comment on, on an occasion of this nature, was "The Lord gave, the Lord took away, blessed be the name of the Lord." It was easy to make the first statement in this passage, hard to say the second, and perhaps impossible to say the third. In her early life deceased gave to her home, in later years she accepted larger service, making the work and under her guidance realize the opportunity, but the art of living. Still later she married and God gave her to the church for her unique service, and Durham was only beginning to know her value. When the Lord gave her to this world, it was as a great expression of His love and that same Lord has now taken her away. In His divine purpose, the taking means as much as the giving.

We're often divided on earth by distances and misunderstandings but Death brings us back again to the proper perspective of things. The finest thought one can have is that Death is coming to all and when God wants to highly favor His loved ones He calls them to himself.

After the closing prayer, the remains were conveyed to the C. P. R. station where the long trip will be made to her burial place at Newfoundland, and she will lie among the people where her best days were spent.

The floral offerings were beautiful and consisted of wreaths from the official Board of Queen St. Church and pastor, officials and members of Knox Church; pillow from Ladies' Aid and W.M.S. of Queen St church; crosses, Red Cross Society; sprays from choir, mission circle, deceased's S. S. class; Grey Presbyterial, W. M. S.; Mrs Meikle (sister), Mr and Mrs P. Gagnon and others.

The pulpit was draped in black and mauve for the occasion as was also a gown in deceased's choir sang. Mr Wm Benson beautifully sang "Safe in the arms of Jesus" at the service.
