Keep your Credit Good

"Your credit-character is worth more than gold-keep it good." This sentence is an advertisement which appeared in a Minnesota paper and inspired the editor to give this timely tip: "Credit is the faith man has in his fellow-man. It represents integrity, honor, honesty and is the foundation stone of character. This is the season of the year when men who have been given credit should go to the limit in an endeavor to clean their slate and be prepared to close this year with old bills paid up. If a man cannot pay all his bills then he can pay part of them. Pay the interest on notes, and pay par of the principal if possible. Acts of this kind are far reaching in their importance and have much to do with one's standing in town.
