DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE

FREE TREES

Orders for free trees expire on April 1, therefore if any farmer is contemplating sending for the same, the earlier they mail their order the better. The Dept. of Agriculture, Markdale, will have some order forms left on hand which could be sent out by return mail.

The trees are given free of charge for reforesting in waste places, steep hill sides, windbreaks and shelter belts around buildings, etc. Order immediately if any are wanted.

LONG TERM LOAN ACT

In 1921 there was passed in the Provincial Parliament an Act known as the Long Term Loan Act, the purpose of which was the lending of money to farmers for purposes of paying off mortgages, erection of farm buildings, charges existing under a will, tile drainage, purchase of breeding stock and consolidation of debts incurred for Agricultural purposes.

A large number of farmers are availing themselves of the opportunity.

The main features are as follows:

1. The maximum amount loaned to any farmer is $12000.00.

2. Subject to this maximum any qualified farmer who is a Canadian citizen living on his farm can borrow up to half the value of his farm as determined by Government inspection.

3. The farmer is allowed 20 years to pay for his farm but he may pay it at any time before the 20 years elapse if he desires.

4. The rate of interest is 5 1/2 per cent.

5. Repayment is on the amortization plan. This simply means that a man pays $33.68 for every $1000.00 borrowed. This covers the interest and payment on the principal.

6. No inspection of farms is made when the inspection of farms is made when the inspection fee is $12 and if the loan is granted a charge in proportion to the size of the loan is made to search titles, and complete necessary legal documents.

The Dept. of Agriculture, Markdale, are supplying the forms to many farmers this spring. Full information can be secured from that source at any time.

"TELL HIM NOW"

If with pleasure you are viewing Any work a man is doing, If you like him or you love him, tell him now;

Don't withhold your approbation Till the parson makes oration And he lies with snowy lilies o'er his brow.

For no matter how you shout it, And the noise you make about it, He won't know how many tears-drops you have shed;

Now's the time to slip it to him, If you think some praise is due him For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead.

More than fame and more than money Is the comment kind and sunny, And the hearty, warm approval of a friend;

For it gives to life a savor, And it makes him stronger, braver, And it gives him heart and spirit to the end.

If he earns your praise, bestow it; If you like him, let him know it; Let the words of true encouragement be said:

Do not wait till life is over And he's underneath the clover. For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead.

—George A. Turner

KEEPING HENS HEALTHY

DRAINAGE AND VENTILATION BOTH VERY IMPORTANT.

In Wild State Birds Look After Themselves, But If They Are To Work For You Then You Must Do Things for Them.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

If poultry are to be kept free from disease their living quarters will require as much attention as those of other stock. The specialists give the poultry this attention and more, but the great majority of poultry-keepers neglect the housing conditions.

First of all the house should be supplied with drainage that will insure a dry floor at all times. Dampness promotes the growth of bacteria and makes birds subject to colds, roup and other diseases. Ventilation without drafts is very necessary, fresh air coming in and foul air going out. Large amounts of moisture are eliminated from the lungs of birds. There are no sweat glands and the bird metabolism is much more intense than that of other animals. The exhaled moisture must be removed or the house will become damp and unsanitary. Provide four square feet per bird, face this house south and provide a large, open front through which the sun's rays can enter and reach every inch of floor space. Arrange the interior of the house to facilitate easy cleaning and disinfection. This means movable nests, roosts and feed hoppers, that can be lifted out to permit thorough cleaning, at least once every three weeks.

The Huns.

Don't fence in the poultry if it can be avoided. Better fence in the garden and give the birds the run of the farm. The green feed and insect young birds growing and healthy at no cost. If the birds must be reared under intensive conditions, then two fenced-in runs should be provided. These should be lined, spaded and seeded to some green feed crop, be- fore used for the birds alternately. The use of lime and the application of the spade frequently will do much to keep the yard in fair condition.

The Utensils.

Most diseases spread through contaminated feed and water. To prevent contamination, the utensils should be of such a design that the bird cannot get its feet into them. Feed hoppers and water fountains clear of scratching, and have a narrow platform on which the bird can stand while feeding. Wide platforms will mean contamination. One large hopper or fountain is much better than a lot of little ones. Utensils in which milk and antiseptic drinks are used should be of crockery or enamel ware. Feeding utensils, if of such type as can be acted by the birds, should be given frequent attention and kept in sanitary condition.

The practice of throwing scratch feed on the same spot of ground is not the best. Those attending poultry try should keep in mind that the bird soils or contaminates whatever ground it passes over, and the greater area of range the less the degree of contamination. The chicken cannot use a fork or shovel to clean the yard, in which you keep it prisoner.

In the wild state the bird looks after its own hygiene; as a creature of domestication under your charge, you must do it. If conditions are to be the best.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

Services Rendered by Stock Yards.

The service generally performed by the Union Stock Yards and for which charges are levied on its patrons, is that of supplying a suitable place for assembling, sheltering, feeding, grading, dealing in live stock with all the protection facilities and conveniences needed for such operations.

On arrival at the stock yards the company accepts the responsibility of the live stock. Its employees unload and deliver the stock to the alleys of the different commission firms to which it is consigned; the cattle to the cattle alleys, sheep and calves to the sheep building and hogs to the hogs building. The pens are padlocked until the commission firm signs and takes over the consignment. This is the service and protection the Stock Yards Company render for their usual fee of $1.00 per car.

In addition to the services of unloading and yarding, the Stock Yards Company supply and operate weigh scales over which all stock sold must be weighed, guaranteeing correct weights to the vendor and purchaser. No additional charges are made for this service, it being included in the yardage charges.

The employees of the company feed and water the stock when requested and keep track of pens and alleys cleaned and in repair. They also do a great deal of healing about the yards and assist the Government Hog Graders.

These are services that have additional value to the farmer. The company also maintains a traffic department whose services are available to shippers at no expense in making arrangements with the railways for cars or in case of disputes over loss and damage in transit. The company also maintains an office building for the use of commission firms, banks and Government officials, so that the business of its patrons may be quickly and conveniently dispatched. Live stock is insured against fire while in the yards, for which 15 cents per car is charged against the seller of the stock. The alleys and pens are also cleaned and disinfected against outbreaks of contagious disease under restrictions laid down by the municipality and the Health of Animals Branch of the Federal Department.

—A. Lettch, Dept. of Economics, O. A. College.

Keep eggs in the coolest place possible and market them often in hot weather. Eggs that are fertile will begin to spoil in twenty-four hours or less if the temperature is as high as 80 degrees.
