U.S. HIGHWAYS ARE EXCELLENT

Entire Trans-Continental Highway 3,220 Miles. Open to Traffic

Boston.-Tourists of 1927 will be agreeably surprised at the improvements in American highways since last year, according to a report made by the national touring board of the American Automobile Association, according to a Washington dispatch to the Christian Science Monitor.

During the last year, according to the statement, additions to the Federal Aid System alone total 9,400 miles, bringing the aggregate federal aid improved highways to 55,903 miles. Equally important extensions have been made to the state primary systems and, in particular, to the iamntenance of east and west and north and south roads.

"An outstanding route because of its significance as a mid-continental connected highway from Atlantic City N.J., to San Francisco," says the report, is U.S. Highway No. 40. This touches such important cities as Baltimore, Wheeling, Columbus, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Salt Lake City and Reno. The entire length is 3,220 miles and the route is paved throughout, from Atlantic City to St. Mary's, Kan., a distance of 1.302. West of St. Mary's the roadway is chiefly graded earth or gravel, except between Auburn and San Francisco, where there is a continuous stretch of pavement. This route crosses the Great Salt Lake Desert over the Wendover cut-off.

"Another United States route of importance to the tourist is No. 30, from Atlantic City to Portland, Ore., coinciding with the Lincoln Highway between Philadelphia and Granger, Wyo. At ranger, Wyo., Route No. 30 divides into 30 North and 30 South, the southern branch going through Evanston to Ogden, Utah, while the northern division continues into Idaho through Montpelier and Soda Springs: At Pocatello the route follows the Snake River rather closely and in Nebraska, Idaho, and Oregon it coincides with the old Oregon

"Route No. 20 will carry the motorist from Buffalo and then over a highly improved Canadian road to Detroit. The motorist who seeks a route to follow still farther westward may take No. 10, through Saginaw to Ludington, where Lake Michigan is crossed by ferry to Manitowoc, Wis., and then touching Minneapolis, Fargo, Bismarck, Billings, Missoula, to

LAND HUNGER IN THE WEST

Eager to file on certain blocks of land in the Burnt Land district, west of Red Deer, Alberta, these three men, John Pohanson, Sergus Jorgenson and C. W. Long who already have farms in that district, took up their positions on the steps of the land office Monday morning. May 23, and remained there until the morning of June 8 when the land was thrown open for filing. A chilly north-east wind making them shiver, they erected a shelter made from a carpet within which they placed their bed rolls. C. W. Long was caught by the camera as he occupied the chair by the door on his tour of sentry go. They were not after the same piece of land and therefore worked in cooperation, delieving each other for meals and during sleep hours. The photograph shows the eggerness with which land is snapped up along the lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Artificial-Silk Trade Boomed by Process; Even Furs and Velvets Are Successfully Imitated

London-Artificial silk is displacing the genuine article in England to such an extent that artificial silk-making is now one of the leading and most profitable industries in the country.

The secret of the recent boom in artificial silk is the fact that manufacturers have succeeded in taking the peculiar sheen out of their product which formerly brandmarked it as

"imitation." The second annual Artificial Silk Show, now arousing great attention here, proved that the new processes have eliminated this feature successfully, and many of the satins and crepes shown there are mistaken for natural silks.

London women of all classes are now wearing artificial silk stockings. which are indistinguishable from the "natural" kind and cost less than half the price for natural ones of similar,

An innovation at this year's show is the artificial silk furs which successfully imitate anything from fox to finest lingerie silks are now made from paper with the help of chemicals.

This year's exhibition also sees the inclusion of "imitation" glass printing on artificial silk, but in the form of THE LITTLE ONES , "Give me the next line after: 'Shoot, The secret of "imitation" glass belongs to Dr. Pollak, of Czecho-Slovakia, who is now the director of an Mothers, do you think it fair to tor- "Shoot, if you must, this old gray English company turning out the glassprinted fabrics.
