MURDERED A BANDIT

Alex. Hodge, a bachelor farmer, living near Beeton, Ont., has caused an unwelcome sensation. He had just come home from the town when he heard his name called from the roadway and on going to see who wanted him found it was the man who had bought stock from him and by the light of the car headlights (9 p.m.) they paid him $610. Without a thought of danger, he returned to his lonely home all in darkness and had just finished placing the money safely away when suddenly a flash light and pistol opened before him and a voice declaring "I'll kill you" met his ears. Without hesitation he knocked pistol and light aside and closed with the man in the darkness, for the light had gone out.

Then there was a struggle, easier imagined than described. In that dark kitchen, Hodge got a blow over the head but struggled away with varying success till the bandit's head struck on the stove: the advantage was followed up, fists and feet and teeth being used in the death grips, which lasted for about 45 minutes and incidentally made a wreck of the kitchen furniture.

At last the bandit lay quiet and "Breathless all Fitz-Hodge arose" and went to a neighbor's house to narrate a story seldom heard.

On returning they found the man dead and evidence aplenty to show that he was a professional crook; pistol, flashlight, chisel &c and some articles belonging to a neighbor who missed them a short time ago. Over $150 was found upon him but nothing by which he could be identified.

Hodge is 47 years of age and came from Scotland 17 years ago. He was smaller but stronger than his opponent. Beyond getting his fingers chewed up and his eyes blackened, he is none the worse but the bandit is unrecognizable. It was so plainly a case of self defence that no charge will be laid against Hodge. Some recognition of his heroism is likely to be made.

How many readers of this article could face a similar situation like this if they had to and come out as well?

ALL HORSE DRAWN VEHICLES MUST CARRY LIGHTS

A new regulation requiring all horse-drawn vehicles to be equipped with a white light ahead and a red light behind on the left hand side of the vehicle comes into force Aug. 1st.

Many accidents have been recorded as the result of horse-drawn vehicles being unlighted on the public highway at night. The farmer may not take too kindly to this regulation at first, but it is sure to prove a boon to the motorists who heretofore had no indication that another vehicle was on the roadway ahead of him until right on the top of horse.

Honor Jack Marshall

Recently the Chesley Enterprise had a picture of John C. Marshall, son of the well known Duncan Marshall, Dominion Liberal Organizer and hands the following bouquet to a young man, who, despite a calamity, takes hold vigorously of life's duties. It calls him "the man with a handicap," whose spirit has risen to great courage and undimmed he has conquered. Hardly had he entered the university with the hopes of his friends fixed high for his life when the awful calamity of blindness overtook him. Undaunted he fitted himself for the legal profession, and the overtaken by the night early in life, he is confident of the morning and we predict that this masterful young man whom the blows of circumstance could not beat back has a brilliant future before him.

The Lethbridge Herald says of him: "Unable to read, he had to take his instruction wholly from the lectures he heard in the class room. Deprived of his eyes he depended upon his ears. He was active all the time in university affairs and led the campaign to build a University rink. The tendency of course is to realize when we compare Jack Marshall and his disability with other young men possessing all their faculties. The one is not discouraged by his handicap but by an ambition, strikes boldly out to achieve what his mind is set upon. The others, far too often, allow their gifts to go to waste, take life easily and end up with a blank score as regards worthwhile achievements. Canada is all the better for the youths with the spirit of 'Jack Marshall'."

WHOSE MONEY IS IT?

Since the Conservative weeklies of the Province have been carrying large and handsome ads, from the Ontario government about good roads, weed control and drivers' licenses, the question arises as to whether it is public money or Conservative money they are spending in this fashion. The idea of using advertising to tell the people of changes in the law which affect them seems to be a good one but why those ads. should be confined only to papers friendly to Premier Ferguson is not so clear. It is a matter of spending party campaign funds, the Conservatives do quite justified in sending their advertising where they like, but when it is public money which is paid into the treasury by every one alike, the present system is not far from being a misappropriation of public money. Incidentally, when election time is here, and it is campaign funds that are being spent, the ads. are usually sent where it is felt they will do the most good, because then it is a matter of life and death for the party—and then the papers that are now being ignored get their share of the advertising which is intended to turn the votes of the electors. When it is a matter of casting a ballot, an attempt is made to reach all the electorate, but when it is a change in the law that may result in the newspaper reader landing in court, the public money becomes fruit on the political plum tree.—Fergus News-Record

Distinguished Visitors Will Reach Canada Saturday

The Prince of Wales, Prince George and Premier Baldwin of Britain are, as we write, on the Atlantic speeding towards Canada. Mrs. Baldwin and Secretaries accompany the Premier and the Prince has a big retinue ahead. At Ottawa the Prince will perform some dedication duties and he and the others are expected in Toronto the beginning of next week. The distinguished visitors, the swimming match, and the C. N. Exhibition will give Toronto an unusual thrill.

A baseball team from our community journeyed to Welbeck Tuesday week and played a picked team from that locality. Our boys and girls brought home the ribbons, having defeated the Welbeck team 19-23. The return game was played at Sandy McDonald's on Monday and the visiting team walked off with the honors with a score 15 to 10, thus winning by 1 on the two games.

The P. S. met on July 21st and the meeting was opened by singing "Come, let us sing of a wonderful love", after all joining in the Lord's Prayer. Miss Laura Kaufman read the 21st Psalm, while Mr Jas and Miss Blanche Boyce rendered a pleasing duet. A paper on "Joan of Arc" was read by Miss Mary White. Singing was next, followed by a reading by Miss Blanche Boyce entitled "In League with the stones of the field." The meeting closed by singing that beautiful hymn "Breathe on the Breath of God" and prayer by Miss Nellie Stinson. All enjoyed a contest after the close of the meeting.

HYMENEAL

LUNDGREN — FERGUSON

(The following account of a pretty Chicago wedding carries local interest as the bride is a niece of Mr. D. McQuarrie, Mrs. Neil Livingstone of Glasco; Mrs. L. McLean of the Rocky and Mrs. Jas. Ledingham of Durham.)

"The Second Presbyterian Church of Chicago, 20th St. and Michigan Ave., was the scene of the marriage of Miss Edna Ferguson, 7920 Indiana Ave. and Harry J. Lundgren, 7950 Indiana Ave., Dr. W. Clyde Howard officiating at the ceremony.

A reception for 100 guests was given in the English room of the Blackstone Hotel following the wedding. After a honeymoon trip to Saugeatek, Mich. Mr and Mrs Lundgren will live at 6124 Vernon Ave.

Miss Betty Pierson, 8204 Laflin Ave.; Miss Tracy Naninga, 8237 Lincoln St.; and Miss Marion Enke, 6915 Michigan, a cousin of the bridegroom, were the bridesmaids. They wore sleeveless bouffant taffeta frocks with bodice waists in colors of orchid, blue and peach, respectively. The dresses of Miss Pierson and Miss Naninga were similar with long collars that extended to the waists and two rows of silver lace around the skirts. Miss Enke's dress had an insert of peach georgette in the skirt, around which were peach and blue flowers. At the waist was a bow of silver ribbon. Each bridesmaid wore a necklace of pearls, the gift of the bride. Their bouquets were roses in harmonizing shades.

The maid of honor was Miss Sadie Ferguson, a sister of the bride, who chose for her costume a long waisted dress of peach georgette with cream lace, flesh colored stockings, silver slippers and a bouquet of yellow tea roses, larkspur, lilies of the valley and babies' breath.

The bride's gown was of white satin faced canton crepe with full skirt, standup collar and long sleeves with Dutch cuffs of white moire. Her net veil was cap shaped with a wreath of orange blossoms and lilies of the valley. She wore a silver necklace and a platinum bow pin set with diamonds both gifts of the bridegroom. White roses, lily of the valley and babies' breath formed her shower bouquet.

Preceding the processional played on the organ by Edwin McDonald, Albert E. Overton, choirmaster of the Augsburg English Lutheran Church, 73rd St. and Wash Ave., the church of which the bridegroom is a member, sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly."
