There are not many members of his congregation class living. He was buried in Exeter cemetery where a great many of his relatives are resting. Besides the many floral gifts of family and friends, beautiful flowers were sent from the church of his son, Dr. A. J. Kestle and also from the Toronto Retall Druggists' Association of which his son Luther is Secy and also from employees in the latter's store and James St. Church, Exeter.

The family speak affectionately of him as a kind, loving father, who lived the Christ life in the home every day.

Not for many years have the folks of Dromore and vicinity had the opportunity of listening to a program of such a high order as that given in Amos Church on Monday night. From first to last the large audience were treated to the best by each artiste. Repeated encore showed to what extent the various numbers were received.

The readings by the inimitable Miss Bucknam kept the audience in roars of laughter, while the exquisite violin selection of Mrs Clowes-Britten was extremely well done. Mr Main, who is baritone soloist in the First Presbyterian Church at Hamilton captivated the audience with his splendid voice while the piano work of Miss Biggs was all that could be desired. The general verdict was that "Amos" had enjoyed one of the best concerts ever put on in this vicinity.
