V. 10. The reason of the popular excitment is again stated in the clearest terms. Jesus' work as a healer had produced a sensation throughout the entire length and breadth of the land. It was considered that even his touch would restore the sick to bealth. Jesus himself, as we know, was more anxious to minister to the spirit than to the body, but, nevertheless, he had never turned the sick away. "Plagues" is a Biblical word for diseases. It was popularly believed that disease aws a "stroke" or "geourge" from God.

Intelligence To Be Well-Tests Needed Know the Worst

Discussed by Ottawa Speaker

Ottawa.-The future policy of the Federal Immigration Department with regard to the inflow of population into Canada should lean more toward quality than quantity, Dr. Sandiford warned his audience, which included Hon. Robert Forke, Minister here. of Immigration. His subject was "Intelligence and Immigration," and he declared that intelligence tests had shown Japanese in British Columbia to be of a high rating.

"We should be very careful in Canada as to what class we permit to enter this country," the speaker continued, "and we should take in most of our immigrants from the British Isles, where intelligence tests have shown this class to rate very high. People from Northern Europe were also desirable. There should be intelligence, health and moral tests at the port of embarkation."

In thanking the Toronto professor for his lecture, Mr. Forke declared "Re-examination of applicants for that he agreed that intelligence tests insurance some years after their first were admirable and also believed the examination, impressed me with the immigration policy of this country fact that, frequently, incipient dismust be on a basis of quality rather cases, appearing after a first examinathan quantity. "My own interest in the subject originated,' he said, "when as a life insurance examiner, I saw the value of medical examination-not only as a service to the company concerned but also as a means of impressing applicants, especially those rejected, with the necessity of looking after their own health. This action has, many a time, meant prolongation of life and hence a service to the individual and to the country.

"The other day, I saw two men waiting in a doctor's office, both of whom had just been refused insurance. One had locomotor ataxia and the other had heart disease. Yet, between them, they had insurance policies amounting to $125,000,00, taken out years before."

Dr. Bates went on to explain that a regular annual medical examination would have revealed these diseases at their commencement and given the two men in question opportunity to take action while they were still in a preventable stage.

"The loss to the country because of unnecessary illness and death is astonishingly large, 'he said, "so large, indeed, that it seems to me to be amazing that our governments have not taken cognizance of it earlier." Investigations had been carried out in Ontario by a special investigator for the anadian Social Hygiene Council who, with the assistance of statistical information from Dr. Louis Dublin of the Metropolitan Life, had come to the conclusion that at least 34 per cent, of the deaths in the Province were postponable.

A concentrated campaign of education, by means of which the average citizen would have an opportunity to secure accurate health information was put forward by Dr. Bates as the most effective means of getting at the source of the trouble.
