

Raider Turns Auto Executive

Commander of U-Boat in War Manages an American Company in Germany

WORST 24 HOURS

Baron Spiegel von und zu Waldenburg was a deep sea raider who became an automobile executive during the World War.
He was general manager for the Automobile Company in Germany and attended the Automobile Congress in New York in that capacity.
He was at the Hotel Biltmore he was the thrill and narrow escapes of the war.

In April, 1915, crossing the Atlantic in command of the U-boat, was his most terrible hour of the entire war.
The boat was on the surface that day and was out from Ostend. The boat was with mines. "Heckly the surface because it was said, and the general was of the "Inlets of the Atlantic." Steering through the belt of the mine one yard from the boat would have been a half way through, he no doubt patrolling on the Atlantic.

Mr. Spiegel said the Baron, of half an hour I heard of the side of the hull at the time. If any part of our boat had been on one we'd have been destroyed.

The crew no longer had a chance for a time and set sailing mist and snow, to get out on a channel buoy.
Their pursuer appeared, and into a half dive and as they found they were on the side of the mine. Then they and the waves broke over the boat like Niagara. "The boat was not destroyed by the mine, but by the side of the hull. It turned over, and by lightning struck and putting on full steam got back into the channel.

English coast they saw feet and swam to the surface at eighteen yards depth explosion above them, a few days before the days of the war. They were in a mine the deep dive had saved the ship wouldn't steer and they were entangled in a net. A burst of speed and they went for half a mile. The course, arose and they were still with them.

The other half hour,
the destroyer was right
behind their course.

At five hours and the mine exploded. When the mine exploded and burst as forty meters.
The mine up and the battering submarine to look. At the mine and steamed on the mine. Then the mine exploded. The mine

a bottle behind them on the surface.

Canada Analysed By South African

Delegate to Empire Parliam-entary Union Meeting Reports Findings

NO RACIAL STRIFE

A South African correspondent writes on Nov. 6: Three of the South African Union delegates to the Empire Parliamentary Association's meetings in Canada returned to Cape Town recently. The trio are G. Heaton Nicholls, M.L.A. for Zululand; A. E. B. Fayn, M.L.A. for Tembuland; and G. A. Hay, M.L.A. for Pretoria West. The returned members had much to say of the hospitality extended to them in Canada, but a great deal more regarding the wonderful agricultural development of the Dominion and of its mining and other industries.

Mr. Nicholls' account was exceedingly interesting, the outstanding features of his observations being those comparing the Canadian and South African systems of government, and the attitude of the French-Canadians in regard to the British connection and any nearer relationship with the United States.

"Our tour of Canada," he told a Natal M-curry correspondent, "has been extraordinarily interesting. We travelled thousands of miles, over lakes and roads and railways, held conferences in every Provincial capital, and inspected all forms of Canada's industries and economic activities. We were snowed under with documentary information of all kinds, and I have a trunk full of booklets and pamphlets dealing with Canadian life from every angle.

Everything Good in Canada
"I think," Mr. Nicholls went on, "that the chief impressions we all have of Canada is its bigness—bigness of territory, bigness of accomplishment, bigness of outlook. There is nothing petty or mean about Canada. Everything is done in a big way. They have no time for puerilities either in politics or business. They have no time for platitudes. They ask for business results from their leaders. The political parties—Conservative and Liberal—are being practically no Labor Party—are divided solely upon programs for development.

There is no sign of racialism in their politics. Indeed, strange as it may seem, the strongest, almost vehement, supporters of the Empire and all that it stands for are the French-Canadians, because they realize more than anybody else that under the British Constitution their language and religion are safeguarded. Consequently with the existing system they refuse to abate one jot of the protection afforded them by a Privy Council appeal, and in Quebec, alone of all the provinces, the French have refused to abolish the Senate. Similarly the alien immigrants from Europe, who by their past experience of autocracy are able to appreciate the value of British Parliamentary institutions are at one with the French.

Comparison With the United States
"This at first sight appears all the more extraordinary because of the constant pull of the 130,000,000 people of the United States, with so much capital invested in Canada, and with such an extensive anti-British propaganda carried on by the American press. But the truth is that Canada enjoys under the British parliamentary system a solidly, a freedom and a security from lawlessness which is clearly apparent, and which is entirely absent in the U. S.

The working of the rival systems can be seen side by side and easily studied. In the United States there is an elected parliament which has no power, no executive authority, and an executive which is not elected and has no responsibility. Once the President is chosen by the wire-pullers who secure his party nomination, the people of the United States have completely lost control over the executive government, which is in no way answerable to parliament. The man who conducts the foreign affairs of the United States is not elected by the people, and has no seat in parliament, and consequently foreign nations have no real representative of the American people to deal with; they have no means of knowing whether any particular proposal, when agreed to by the Foreign Secretary, will be accepted by the Senate. The historic case of Wilson, even as a President, concluding a peace treaty which the Senate would not ratify, is a case which illustrates the daily troubles of an unrepresentative executive system.

Canada Has Better Way
"The Prime Minister of Canada, answering daily to parliament, must shape his policies in accordance with the wishes of the people, and when he finally agrees to any line of action, he knows that he has the support of parliament behind him. Hence, despite all the economic pull of the United States, and despite intensive propaganda, Canadianism grows prouder and prouder of their own country and institutions, and their patriotism has something of a deep religious faith about it."

Making the Most Of Furnace Heat

The greatest loss of heat units often takes place at the heating plant itself, exclusive of the pipe system. There is no heating plant manufactured which is 100 per cent efficient in delivering the heat it produces in the places where it is wanted. The plant in the average home is very seldom more than 50 per cent efficient, and this means, of course, that one-half or more of the heat generated by the fuel goes up the chimney or is lost in other ways directly from the plant. The heat which escapes into the basement obviously does some good, but what ascends the chimney is a total waste. These losses cannot be helped, but the other 50 per cent of heat units can be prevented, if one knows how, from escaping out of the house until they have delivered their maximum of heat to the radiators.

Some heat is lost by the piping from the furnace to the radiators, therefore attention must be given to these pipes. Where they are long and exposed to much cold they should be covered with asbestos, even if they are steam or hot water conveyors. All pipes in a hot-air system must be carefully covered with asbestos paper which should be renewed as soon as the old material cracks or loosens from the metal. This kind of heating system, to be most effective, also requires a free air circulation, so that the cold air in every room can rapidly descend to the furnace.

Of course, a considerable amount of heat escapes at the windows and doors by conduction through the glass and the wood, while some is lost out through cracks and ill-fitting sashes. Much of the heat lost through conduction can be retained by using well-fitting storm windows and heavy storm doors. Openings between the window and door-casings and the walls

Duce Quits Giving Photo For Twins and Triplets

Rome—Triplets and twins have driven Mussolini into tactfulness. Hitherto it has been the Duce's custom to send an autographed picture of himself to parents who present Italy with a pair or three of a kind. In one month, however, Rome reported two sets of triplets, while Brescia, Florence and Foggia announced one each. Twins have become so common that no further score is kept of them.

Premier Mussolini ordered a general circular sent to all provinces setting forth that requests for his photograph could no longer be honored.

Good Advice From One Who Had Suffered Much

Discomfort after eating, gas pains in the intestinal tract, pains around the heart, sour rising in the throat called heartburn, are common symptoms of dyspepsia. It is a condition often neglected until it has done permanent harm, yet the treatment is simple. The great contributing cause to this trouble is thin blood. Good blood and plenty of it is required by the stomach to function properly. If the blood is thin the stomach becomes sluggish, food lies undigested, gas forms causing pains, often around the heart. Instead of getting nourishment from the blood the system gets poison. The proper treatment is to enrich the blood, and there is no other medicine can do this so promptly or as effectively as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The sole mission of these pills is to make new, rich, red blood, which reaches every organ and nerve in the body, and thus not only banishes indigestion and dyspepsia, but also all other troubles having their origin in weak, watery blood.

The splendid results following the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is shown by the case of Mrs. Lucy A. Cushing, a former resident of Kempt, N.S., now living with her son at West Bethel, Me. Mrs. Cushing says: "I have no hesitation in strongly recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. For years I was a great sufferer from indigestion. Always after eating I suffered from pains in my stomach and other distressing symptoms that accompanied this ailment. I tried different doctors while residing at my old home and also at West Bethel, but without getting relief. I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so and I must say that I am feeling very grateful ever since to the good friend who gave me the advice. I soon found the pills helping me and by the time I had taken nine or ten boxes I was completely restored to good health. Though I am now in my 76th year I am feeling as well and smart as I did at 35, and am enjoying life once more."

Spying on Limpets Man's 17-Year-Job

Gale Wrecked Raft Just When Success Seemed Assured

London.—It is revealed in the Journal of the Marine Biological Association just published, that for 17 years scientists have been spying into the private life of the Common Limpet, on the bottom of ships.

Really interesting Common Limpets were marked with files and decorated with anti-fouling paint. In one case this was done on a wharf.

The other limpet was observed on a wooden raft. Just when the scientists were hoping to determine the sex of the limpets attached to it the raft was destroyed in a gale, with a total loss of all Common Limpets. "Impossible to Dogmatize"

The watch on wharf limpets, however, is still providing interesting information about the lives of these "individuals," as they are described in the report.

And the Poor Also!

Poverty Only Key to Social Club Opened in Slums of London

London—Poverty is the only requirement for membership in the city's newest club. In contradistinction to the famous clubs of Piccadilly and Pall Mall, Kingsley Hall, situated amid the noise and squalor of the streets of Bow in the East End slums, asks for neither initiation fees nor pedigrees.

It has come into being as the result of a long-cherished desire of Miss Murrell Lester, a London welfare worker, to establish a club for poor people where they might find entertainment and opportunity for improvement at nominal cost. So that its members shall not feel exploited or pauperized, she and some of her friends who are interested in her Voluntary Poverty Movement, undertake to lead a life of almost monastic simplicity during their term of service as workers at Kingsley Hall.

In conformity with her belief in voluntary poverty, Miss Lester last year refused a legacy of $2,000 a year left by her father.

"We felt that it was up to us one day to open a public house for the poor which would not smell of beer—a 'dry' pub whose attraction would be fellowship and frankness," said Miss Lester. "Our members want to read, study, debate, write, play games, practice arts and crafts, act and sing. Kingsley Hall will give them an opportunity to do these things. It will be an educational as well as a social center."

Wild Hogs Devastate British Guiana Farms

Bartica, British Guiana.—Great droves of wild hogs have been devastating this region, destroying crops and attacking the natives. Joseph Robey fought a band of forty hogs with a shovel and, aided by his two dogs, drove the animals back into the bush. A drove of 500 tried to swim the Essequibo River and, being discovered by the natives, hogs were sent out and more than sixty hogs were killed with all sorts of weapons and their carcasses brought ashore.
