British M.P. Pleads for Palestine Labor

Mandatory Power Sharply Criticized at Last Convention of Unions in Jewish Homeland

The question of protection of labor in Palestine bobbed up again in the British House of Commons when Miss Susan Lawrence, a Labor M.P., demanded to know of the Colonial Office if the draft of the contract with Moses Novomejsky for the exploitation of the salts of the Dead Sea contained a fair wage clause, say a London dispatch of March 5 to The Jewish Telegraph Agency.

Major Ormsby Gore replied in the negative, but added that any concession granted would be subject to future legislation of a general character affecting employment conditions in Palestine and Transjordania. However, the concessionnaire was not obliged to accept conditions other than the law imposes.

Miss Lawrence further asked whether a law had been introduced recently concerning corporal punishment. Major Ormsby Gore replied in the affirmative, stating that a recent law reduced the number of offenses for which corporal punishment may be inflicted.

Considerable dissatisfaction with the social and labor attitude of the mandatory power was voiced by delegates to the fourth regular convention of the General Federation of Jewish Labor in Palestine, and in the report of the executive, according to a summary sent out by the Amsterdam Bureau of the International Feedration of Trade Unions, with which the Palestine organization is affiliated. The Amsterdam account of the situation reads, in part, as follows: "The British Government, as the mandatory authority, does practically nothing to change bad conditions of long standing. Complaints are raised concerning sanitary conditions, intolerable ill treatment of workers by foremen, changes for the worse in such matters as holidays, sickness pay = and workmen's compensation, very low wages, long working hours and

A mill equals about 1/2 cent.

"There are four distinct wage classes In the country, Arab rural workers earning 120 to 150 mils per day, Arab town workers 140 to 170 mils, unorganized Jewish workers, 150 to 200 mils, and organized Jewish workers, 250 to 300 mils. All the organized and some of the unorganized workers work eight hours a day, the others nine or ten hours. Where the differences between the different strata of the population are so great, there is little chance of establishing more friendly relations among the different peoples, and of the country settling down. Hence the trade unions demand a minimum wage for the whole country, based on decent living con-

THE SPACING OF POTATO

PLANTS. For the growing of certified seed potatoes there is an advantage in planting the seed fairly closely in the field. An investigation conducted at the Fredericton and Charlottetown laboratories of the Division of Botany of the Experimental Farms demonstrated that the close planting not only tends to improve the quality of the seed but increases the total yield. The Dominion Botanist, Mr. H. T. Gussow. in his report for 1927, published by the Dept. of Agriculture at Ottawa, reports that the information gained from the investigation gives evidence of useful possibilities towards producing a greater amount of tubers ranging from 3 to 12 ounces and so rendering the largest possible amount of tubers from the average crop intended for seed purposes eligible for certification. Mr. Gussow hesitates to make a definite pronouncement on the matter until at least another season's work is carried out. His report, which included tables showing the actual results of different spacing, does recommend spacing the sets from 10 to 12 inches, which distance makes it convenient for roguing the crop which could not be successfully done when the plants are closer.

Scotch City Has Fine Women's Club

Aberdeen, Scotland-The women of Aberdeen seem to have been particularly successful in their achievements in 1928, particularly the Aberdeen Business Women's Club. This club is unique in Great Britain, outside of London, and deserves the admiration it has aroused in other Scottish cities. Its example may well be followed by Aberdeen's neighbors, as the need is great. Miss Bettina Clark, the warden of the club, welcomed all inquiries, and Miss B. Walker, who was its founder, was enthusiastic over its possibilities.

It was felt, Miss Clark said, that Aberdeen had .nany young business women who needed a social center and residential club, but the difficulty was how to get it financed. Help has flowed in from all sorts of quarters, but the chief support came from the Y.W.C.A., which generously supplied the initial sum of £2000 at a small rate of interest. Two beautiful old houses in one of the best squares in the city were purchased, and on these there is a bond of another £2000. Over 700 business women have joined, which gives the club £350 in subscriptions alone. The letting of their beautiful dance hall also is a source of income, and altogether the finances of the club are in a most satisfactory position. The residents have charm-
