Prairie Indians Make Progress

Continued Advance Noted in Farming and Stock-raising on Western Canada Reserves

Prepared at the direction of Dr. Duncan C. Scott, Deputy Superintendent General of Indian Affairs, by Mr. W. M. Graham, Indian Commissioner. In keeping with the generally prosperous conditions which prevailed throughout Canada during 1928, Indians on reserves in the three Prairie Provinces continued their steady progress toward a condition of self-support and independence. Very satisfactory reports have been received on the advancement made by the natives in their various activities but the most striking is that made in agriculture. Notwithstanding severe losses suffered through inclement weather, the total yield of grain from Indian farms in the West was estimated at over one million bushels (the greater part of which was wheat) while conspicuous successes were also scored in cattle raising and in other farm activities.

According to recent reports of the Department of Indian Affairs the Indians in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta have under cultivation 105,000 acres of land, having increased their total during the past summer by breaking 6,000 acres of new land and summer-fallowing 33,000 acres. The major part of this large acreage is sown to grain. Gardening is being more generally practised and many of the reserves boast some fine plots

The cattle herds of the prairie Indians are among the best in Western Canada due to the fact that unusual care has been taken by officers of the Department in the selection of the sires, which in most cases are paid for from the Indians own money. The herds now number 22,500 head, which includes an increase this year of approximately 5,000 calves. During 1928 the Indians sold beef cattle to the value of approximately $184,000 and in addition they provided beef for their own requirements valued at

The high standard of the Indians' herds is shown in the success of entries made at feeder and stocker shows during the summer and autumn of 1928. First prize for the best car of steers. Shorthorn breed, and -What a dreadful handicap for a serious thing. second prize in the class for carload womanlots of three-year-old steers of any breed, were captured by entries from the reserves. It has only been in recent years that the Indians have shown a lively interest in their cattle but successes in open competitions and the good returns from their herds have resulted in increasing the attention given to this phase of agriculture. In northern Alberta and in Saskatchewan and Manitoba the cattle are stabled or put in shed shelters and fed hay during the winter months, which means that a large quantity of hay and green feed must be cut each summer. During the past year 70,000 tons of feed! was cut and stacked for use during the winter season.

Good, heavy horses are rapidly replacing the pony type among the Indians of the West. Nearly all of the farming Indians own fine work horses, of which there are about 8,000 on the different prairie reserves. There are about 15,000 of the pony type of Horses to the value of over $10,000 were sold from the various reserves during the season of 1928. More interest is also being shown in the raising of poultry and pigs.

The situation among the Indians on reserves in the three Prairie Provinces is most gratifying and the efforts of the Federal officials in charge of Indian Affairs are reflected in the generall advancement. Increasing interest is being shown in every phase of agriculture due in a large. measure to the number of young Indians graduating from the various schools who are taking up farming.

The Paramount Power Observer (London): Internal questions of Dominion policy are, of course, no direct concern of ou.s. But the native question in South Africa is not a purely do.nestic issue. In the last resort Africa is one, and the ideas behind policy are not held up at the Zambesi. In Equato al Africa this country is committed to the principle of trusteeship on behalf of natives. In the Union the Government proposes an emphatic ssertion of white supremacy. These are conflicting polfeies. Rhodes showed the way for their recondiliation.

Both the wives were on the youngish side, and both were discussing the merits and demerits of their respectiye husbands. 'Do you know, dear," began the first, "I think your husband has such a clever face. He looks as though he knows practically everything." The other drew in her treath with a sudden gasp as she thought of her dressmaker's bill. "Know everything!" she echoed. "My dear, thank beaven he doesn't even suspect."

The many smaller State enterprises on which Australia has embarked also show heavy losses. These definite results fully justify the Duckham Commission in their strong recommendation to Australia to look for prosperity to private enterprise, facing its own risks in the hope of securing profits, rather than to State interference with trade and industry.
