Big Timber Areas Being Threatened With Devastation

Northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan Are Scenes of Outbreak

RESERVES INVADED

Efforts of Fire Rangers Powerless to Halt Menace

Winnipeg. - Devastating columns of fires, scattered throughout Northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan, are sweeping through large areas of timber land urabated and fanned by a stiff breeze that made fire-fighting almost impossible. Variously estimated as to number, it was believed that more than a score of separate blazes were beyond control in the northland. Reports stated the ferocity of the flames was accentuated by absence of rainfall, which is badly needed in the crisis. Burning its way steadily northward from the Flin Flon Mines in Northern Manitoba, a five-mile-wide forest fire last night was destroying everything in its path, while fully a dozen other flaming assaults were levelling far more valuable property to the east of the mines.

Rain Urgently Needed Ten conflagrations in Saskatchewan, the most serious being in Pasque and Porcupine Forest Reserves, 80 miles east of Prince Albert, were quickly consuming valuable stands of timber yesterday. Only a considerable rainfall will relieve the situation in that district, it was believed, existing dry weather conditions being against the heroic efforts of firefighters.

Red glows seen on the night sky in the scrubby-growthed portion of North Manitoba, known as the barrens, told a vivid tale of the extent of the damage to forest tracts. The wall of smoke which enveloped the country, hinted of wide-spread destruction and fire rangers, whose efforts have proved entirely unavailing against the attack of the grim fire-field, claim the crackling of flames can be heard for miles.

While fire moved northward toward the mining settlement of Cold Lake, other sparsely-settled communities were endangered as well. - Blazes raged at Mile 69 and at Mandy Mine, the extent of which in neither case has been reported. A changing wind averted possible destruction of Mile 83, though two Indian shacks and small buildings of the Ross Navigation Company were levelled.

Country Is Parched.

Seldom in the history of the northland have conditions been so favorable for vast destruction by fire. Comparatively little snow fell during the winter and disappeared earlier than usual this spring. Strong winds of the past two weeks have thoroughly dried the forest beds. In stretches of muskeg, particularly in Manitoba, incipient fires have smouldered all winter and, fanned by the spring breezes of late, have burst into flame in many places to quickly spread to the bush.

Origin of fires in Northern Saskatchewan are attributed, in some cases, to new settlers and prospectors, who have not token proper care with their fire for cooking.

Two Blazing Assaults Two blazing assaults are in progress in the Big River Forest Reserve, according to reports from Prince Albert, Sask., but the flames here can only destroy young timber. A minor are was reported by wireless from Lac La Ronge, used by explorers as a flying base, but no serious damage was expected as a result. Fire-fighting crews were despatched Sibley Township and the Black Sturgeon District, about forty miles east of the lake-head, where forest fires were reported. Whether the situation is serious there is not known.

The Two Indias

Truth (London). The report of the Committee on the Indian States makes one thing above all others quite clear-that any possibility of India being given Home Rule as we know it is outside practical politics. Sir Sydney Low, who speaks with special authority as the author of one of the best books ever written on India, picks out for particular approval a phrase in the report. "There are two Indias." In other words, the aims and aspirations of the Nationalists and Swarajists are in opposition to those of the native States. It is this which makes so many Indian palitical programs the emptiest claptrap. For whom do the anti-British orators speak? Certainly not for India, since the Princess, ruling two-fifths of its area ,and one-fifth of its population, have expressed their desire not to be withdrawn from the pratection of the Crown. It is perfectl obvious that no native ruler could wish to exchange the British Raj. whatever tis shortcomings for government be the Nehrus and the Gandhis.
