A TURN-OVER IN BRITISH ELECTIONS
 Ramsay MacDonald and his Labour Party on top
LIBERALS HAVE ONLY 58 SEATS

The British Elections last week had some distinct surprises. The Baldwin Conservative Government has been ousted by the Labour Party under Premier Ramsay MacDonald. Lloyd George and the Liberal Party made a poor showing, but may be able to bring things his way for not one of these parties has a majority over all.

The question as we write is whether Baldwin will resign or form his government and meet the House. His party is divided on this. Ramsay MacDonald and his party clamor for their rights as the largest party, and there seems no doubt that Britain will again have a Labor government. MacDonald is a good man with no Communist taint upon him and no matter who forms the government, Britain will pull through.

Out of 69 women contestants no fewer than 14 have secured seats and one of them is slated for a government position. Minister of Health, the three leaders were elected with huge majorities.

There seems to be a Liberal hoodoo in polling subdivisions. They polled three-fifths as many votes as their opponents, but have only one-fifth as many members. No wonder Lloyd George demands electoral reform. No fewer than 30 of his candidates lost their election deposits. Prominent Labour winners are predicting that they will abolish private property by giving $12.50 weekly to a man, his wife and four children, where the man is unemployed. We shall see.

KING GEORGE AGAIN ILL
 But not seriously. Doctors report that a scar of some kind has healed too quickly before all the pus was out and was causing a fevered condition. They have it now well in hand and it is expected nothing serious will follow. He is now attending to matters of State since his recovery. The result of the election will no doubt give him some unusual anxiety. The 16th of June was talked of as a day of National or Empire Thanksgiving for the King's recovery, but in all probability it will be put forward.

A WAR ON POTATOES
 Walkerton Couple dispute over how Potatoes should be planted, ends in Calling the Police.

Walkerton citizens are forever getting into trouble and the town cop is one of the busiest men in the district. But that the innocent potato should be the cause of a quarrel that had the police as a background, is hard to conceive. But the potato planters in Walkerton have different ideas of how to prepare the tuber for the ground and one couple, according to the 'Herald Times' agreed to disagree. They tell it this way: "As the War of the Roses proved the big excitement in England for some years, so the Potato fight in Walkerton on Victoria Day furnished the sole sensation in which the police were called to interfere."

It seems that a hubby who had been twice married wasn't in humor for taking advice on cutting seed potatoes from a frau who had also gone through the marriage ceremony on two occasions. Both knew what married life was before they had seen the other and consequently each was acquainted with his or her respective rights in a home. Unlike amateurs none were for eating humble pie and 'turning the other cheek' when things didn't exactly harmonize as it were.

Each of them had also been raised on a farm and what he or she didn't know about cutting potatoes wasn't probably worth going to school to learn.

Hubby had the knife and was slicing the murphies as he saw the light, while his wife, who thought he was not cutting to the best advantage, didn't forget to tell him so. According to the police, who arrived later on the scene, she insisted that he either change his methods of slicing or hand the job over to her, and as hubby wouldn't do either, she up and biffed him over the knuckles with a stick. This fired the ire of the husband and he proceeded to give her a stick of the matrimonial sketch, and according to the story, he grabbed his Missus and began choking her.

If matches are made in Heaven, as has been said, then the angels must have blushed at what they saw transpiring in this neck of the woods on that occasion.

Be this as it may, the wife later got to the phone and summoned the Chief Ferguson and son, High Constable Arch. Ferguson answered the call and got to the home in record time. After hearing both parties unreel, Walkerton's chief baton wielder tried to pour, as it were, oil on the troubled waters, but the wife wasn't apparently in the mood for making up, as she claims to have been devoted to thinking the man had let her in not only none too flush with collateral, but he can't, to her way of thinking, even cut the praties right way without seemingly affecting, at that particular time, anything resembling a reconciliation.

FORD CAR HOUDAILLE HYDRAULIC SHOCK ABSORBERS

Positive—Smooth—
Double Acting—

HOU DAILLE Hydraulic Shock Absorbers, four to every Ford car, are entirely defensive in their action since they remain inactive and in neutral position on smooth roads. Let a wheel encounter the slightest depression or bump, however, and they respond with the velvet precision of a cat's paw.

Houdaille Shock Absorbers were not adapted to the Ford car after it was built, but were part of the specifications laid down by the Ford engineers as they planned the car. Therefore, Houdailles, their powerful operation coordinated, became integral parts of the complete chassis. It is for this reason that they function with such perfect efficiency on the Ford car.

Houdailles absorb both the upward and downward thrust of the shock through slowing the spring action by means of a heavy glycerine solution, which is forced through a small valve from one compartment to another. They check the rebound of the car softly, exert no tension on the springs and are always ready to offer resistance to the blow when and as required. In fact, the more severe the shock, the more effectively Houdailles operate.

Different from any other shock absorber, the Houdaille connecting link between the frame and the axle of the car is a steel arm, not just a fabric strip to wear out and be replaced. Adjustable to suit differing road conditions and various loads, the Houdaille is more than a shock absorber and more than a snubber.

Inspect the Ford car carefully part by part. Then know the thrill of driving it. By its performance you will realize the easy riding comfort of an Houdaille equipped Ford.

Drive it Yourself—there is no better it
