Premier Ferguson has made it clear where he stands as regards this modern way of ascertaining public opinion. He has declared if not boasted, that "there will be no more Plebiscites as long as I AM at the head of the Government! Why this change of front? He supported the principle in 1916, 1919 and 1924.

Mr A. J. Irwin, in a letter to the Farmers' Sun, points out that "until the Liquor interests were defeated in the Plebiscite of 1924, which he authorized, he had nothing to say against it. When the liquor interests were defeated in that Plebiscite, in which they had hoped to win by 100,000 votes, Mr Ferguson took the whole question of Temperance into party politics by the adoption of "Government Control", declaring as above.

The writer closes as follows: "The Ontario Prohibition Union made up as it is, of representatives of church organizations, temperance associations and other forces, is non partizan, but in its loyalty to the The funeral of the late Cameron salesman for the business, there is credit must be given farmer members ledge had been freely givn us and I often thrust at his opponent with the McGillivray Ferguson, son of Mr and no way open to temperance people to in the last House for giving the Hy- fear their leisure hours also.
