Heat and Length of Session Getting on the Nerves

iss Macphail's Weekly Letter

An Ottawa paper said a day or two ago: "The Parliamentary session is at the stage where, for everyone, work becomes wearisome and there is a common wish to wind up and get home". And truer words were never written. After four mos. of it, the last one in extreme heat, one gets to the place where they must have everything repeated before they know what it is all about, which further delays progress. At this time of year Committees sit while the House is in session and the Beaurhous Com. is meeting morning, afternoon and evening and at that it looks as though it will be some time before the report comes in. The general opinion seems to be that Mr. Gardiner's charges were not ill-founded.

Months of insufficient exercise and much concentration make tempers short. The last week has provided three amusing rows. The Prime Minister answered the Leader of the Opposition in short tones and in one word, Mr King called the Prime Minister a 'Dictator' and a disagreeable dictator, and accused him of indifference to the convenience of members and rudeness. Mr Bennett ignored the reference and simply called the next member on the Order paper. At the hour for private bills, Mr Woodsworth was speaking to his bill which seeks to curtail the activities of city police commissioners in rented halls.

forbidding assemblies in rented halls when Nicholson (Cons.) of Algoma East, gave a dissertation on the evils of communism. He said there were paid agents of Russia in Winnipeg and Toronto. Mr Woodsworth hotly resented it and said Mr Nicholson was inferring that he was a paid agent of the Soviet. Mr Nicholson said he was inferring no such thing, but if the cap fitted to put it on. As a matter of fact the Communists are more bitter against Mr. Woodsworth than any other member of the Commons. And then last and worst an incident occurred between Mr Heenan, ex-Min of Labour and Mr Price, (Cons.) which was wholly unworthy of the Commons and has by common consent been dropped from Hansard. They invited each other to a scrap which afterwards took place in the lobby. The Speaker a week before would not let members remove their coats in deference to the decorum of the House. The behavior on Friday night was much more unseemly than coatless members. The long grind and excessive heat could scarcely account for the behavior of the two gentlemen.

The Tariff Board was not finished until this week when it had an exceedingly rough passage through Committee and a division on third reading, all of which consumed almost three days. Most of the rest of the week was spent on tariff items. It was amusing to hear the lawyers discuss the relative values of corn or barley as chicken feed. The farmers at the House sat in silence drinking in their information voluntarily given. Mr Willis, Manitoba (Cons.) declared that barley was better feed for chickens than corn and Messrs Ralston, Elliott and Hisey were stout advocates of corn. Mr Hackett varied the discussion by giving a few facts on ducks and duck feeding. As one member said "what does it matter to us when our eggs are selling for 3c a dozen"

The Australian Treaty is to be brought down in the House on Monday. The Australian parliament will discuss the treaty on Tuesday. Some clauses of it are apt to be contentious.

A bill passed the House with the approval of all parties, which enlarges the control of the Finance Department and creates a controller of the Treasury, endowing him with exceptional power. No contract is to be valid unless it is registered with the Controller. He must approve all expenditures and generally keep track of the financing, maintaining a sort of running audit. When the Speaker leaves the chair and the House goes into supply, that is to discuss the spending of the money, item by item, or into Ways and Means, that is to discuss taxation, tariff, income, excise, etc. item by item, any member may arise and discuss any public question. I made use of this privilege to put before the House the extreme importance of the approaching world Disarmament Conference. In speaking of it, Lord Robert Cecil said: "It is one of those crucial events in the history of the world that must either succeed or fail." In the preamble of the Covenant of the League of Nations and also in Article 8, all members of the League solemnly promise to reduce armaments by international agreement. Part 5 of the Treaty of Versailles says in effect that Germany was only beginning disarmament, which would become general. Practically all the nations of the world have said they will not again use war as an instrument of national policy. Then one questions, why do not intend to use again. A special Com. of the League of Nations has been since 1925, preparing a plan for disarmament which is to be submitted to the World Conference in Feb. 1932. In speaking of this plan which is usually called the Draft Convention, the Rt Hon. Arthur Henderson, Min. of Foreign Affairs or Gt Britain, said, "the figures written into it will depend upon the public opinion of the world. At the Disarmament Conference the Gov'ts will do what the peoples want. If the peoples want disarmament they can have it; if they will exert their will they can compel results." Lord Robert Cecil agreed that the present plan permits any degree of reduction. According to the best British opinion, the failure of the Conference would mean a rivalry in armaments between two powerful groups of states manouvering for superiority. "Succeed we must," says Lord Robert Cecil. "And there is a way to succeed that those who share the convictions which I have expressed refuse to be sidetracked by expert objections about the technical value of this particular form of armaments or that, and concentrate upon the one form of reduction, which the ordinary citizen can understand and which comes within the scope of every parliament. Let them demand a definite cut in the total military expenditure of the powers represented at the Conference. I believe that it is perfectly reasonable and possible, with dogged perseverance- to achieve at the 1932 Conference an all round reduction of 25 per cent in the military budgets of those countries which did not have reductions imposed upon them by the treaties." I urged that a strong delegation be sent from Canada and that they be men who believed in disarmament by international agreement.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe strongly supported the idea of sending a Canadian delegation who would do creditable work at Geneva and be pointed out that we were in honor bound to work against war, since the soldiers in the last war were told that they were fighting to end all wars and we must honor their sacrifice. He deemed it fitting that the debate in the Commons should take place the same week as the great mass meeting in Albert Hall, London, Eng., which on Saturday was addressed by the Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, the Rt Hon. Stanley Baldwin and the Rt. Hon. Lloyd George.

The Prime Minister, the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, concluded his statement on the coming Conference with the following: "I can say this to the Hon. member for South East Grey; that insofar as it may be possible, having regard to the time of year at which the Conference is held, this country will worthily discharge every obligation that rests upon it. In that regard, and I trust that the representatives we will offer, will not be unworthy of the great traditions of Canada in her struggle to maintain peace, and in her belief of peaceful methods for the settlement of disputes, in her conviction that by recourse to judicial and arbitral methods the differences of people having been settled, the differences of nations may also be included. With that hope and that inspiration and that conviction, this Government, when the conference is held, will do its duty by the Canadian people."
