Paris Notes

New Underground Line

The Canal Saint-Martin had to be drained for fifteen days while the walls of a new line of underground railway which crosses beneath it were being constructed.

A Robot "White Wing"

The municipality is trying out a new kind of pavement sweeper driven by a motor, which is the invention of a city engineer, M. Monnier.

City-Owned Churches

The Paris Municipal Council has been very busy of late voting large credits for different purposes.

International Bibliography

The International Committee of Intellectual Co-operation at its last meeting held in Paris gave instructions for the publication of an international bibliography of translations in accordance with the recommendations made by congresses of writers, publishers and librarians.

A New Perspective

The Boulevard Malesherbes, which goes from the Madeleine to the Place Saint-Augustin and beyond, is straight and wide and lined with giant plane trees which used to stretch right across the road.

Success and Happiness

The happiest faces of grown-ups seen in London are the faces of the country parsons, their wives and their gardeners, who come up every year to the Chelsea Flower Show.

The passer-by may look anxious because of the traffic and its perils, or he may look pleased because, at this stage of our nation's history, he is hastening to pay his income tax.

The modern movement reveals the confusion of pleasure with happiness, impatience with obstacles and difficulties, a search for tangible rather than spiritual satisfaction—a desire, in other words, to eat your cake and have it.

The great moral leaders of the world have taught us that the indispensable thing for happiness are few and simple—food, shelter, health, love, work. That is why happiness is so often found among ordinary folk and is so often absent from those who have these elements in excess.

The Father's Will Back of the loaf is the snowy flour. And back of the flour the mill; Back of the mill are the wheat and the shower And the sun and the Father's will.

It is certainly a very important lesson to learn how to enjoy ordinary things, and to be able to relish your being, without the transport of some passion, or the gratification of some appetite—Sir Richard Steele.

COMFORT for COLICKY BABIES... THROUGH CASTORIA'S GENTLE REGULATION

The best way to prevent colic, doctors say, is to avoid gas in stomach and bowels by keeping the entire intestinal tract open, free from waste. But remember this: a tiny baby's tender little organs cannot stand harsh treatment. They must be gently urged. This is just the time Castoria can help most. Castoria, you know, is made specially for babies and children. It is a pure vegetable preparation, perfectly harmless. It contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics. For years it has helped mothers through trying times with colicky babies and children suffering with digestive upsets, colds and fever. Keep genuine Castoria on hand, with the name: Castoria CHILDREN'S OWN TABLETS

How to play Bridge AUCTION and CONTRACT by Wynne Ferguson

ARTICLE No. 21

The following hands have been mis-played in some way and have been sent in for criticism:

Hand No. 1 Clubs—K, Q, 9, 8 Diamonds—7 Spades—A, Q, J, 9, 7, 6, 2

No score, rubber game, and the hand is equally applicable either to Auction or to Contract.

Z dealt and bid four hearts. A bid five diamonds and all passed. Y opened the bidding with two spades (a fine preemptive bid by the way). A doubled. Y passed and B bid five hearts. Z and Y now passed and Y doubled. When all passed what should Z have opened? This hand offers an excellent example.

Hand No. 2 Hearts—5 Clubs—9, 8, 6, 3 Diamonds—7, 6, 2 Spades—A, K, 8, 7

No score, rubber game, and the hand is applicable to either Auction or Contract.

Z dealt and bid four hearts. A bid five diamonds and all passed. Y opened the bidding with two spades (a fine preemptive bid by the way). A doubled. Y passed and B bid five hearts. Z and Y now passed and Y doubled. When all passed what should Z have opened? This hand offers an excellent example.

Hand No. 3 Hearts—K, Q, 10, 8, 4 Clubs—K, Q, J, 4 Diamonds—J, 7, 6, 2 Spades—9, 5

No score, first game. The point of the hand is applicable to either Auction or Contract.

Z dealt and bid one heart. A and Y passed and B bid one spade. Z and A passed and Y bid two hearts. The final bid was four spades due to the fact that Y raised the heart bid twice more. He also doubled four spades. What should Z open?

This hand is similar to the first one in that Z has bid a suit and his partner, Y, has doubled. Under the rule set down in the analysis of that hand, Y certainly expected a heart lead by Z. Irrespective of that fact, however, Z should have led a heart in the endeavor to set up a trick in that suit before he lost his re-entry in clubs.

Instead of doing so, however, Z opened the ace of clubs and then led the four, hoping, as he said, for a ruff. This led to a B game that they couldn't have scored if Z had opened the king of hearts.

of crude concepts, or "the random, blindfold jolts of ignorance."—From "Table Talk," by William Hazlitt.

Shakespeare's Choice of Words

We have a great living instance among writers, that the quality of a man's productions is not to be estimated in the inverse ratio of their quantity. I mean in the Author of Waverley, the abundance of whose pen is no less admirable than its felicity.

Shakespeare is another instance of the same prodigality of genius; his materials being endlessly poured forth with no niggard or fastidious hand, and the mastery of the execution being (in many respects at least) equal to the boldness of the design.

As one example among others that I might cite of the attention which he gave to his subject, it is sufficient to observe that there is scarcely a word in any of his more striking passages that can be altered for the better. If any person, for instance, is trying to recollect a favorite line, and cannot hit upon some particular expression, it is in vain to think of substituting any other so good. That in the original text is not merely the best, but it seems the only right one. I will stop to illustrate this point a little. I was at a 1 as the other day for the line in Henry V.

"Nice customs curtsy to great kings." I could not recollect the word nice; I tried a number of others, such as old, grove, etc.—they would none of them do, but I seemed all heavy, lumbering, or from the purpose; and the word nice, on the contrary, appeared to drop into its place, and be ready to assist in paying the reverence due. Again,

"A Jest's procreancy lies in the ear Of him that hears it." I thought, in quoting from memory, of "A Jest's success." "A Jest's renown," etc. I then turned to the volume, and there found the very word that of all others expressed the idea. Had Shakespeare searched through the four quarters of the globe, he could not have lighted on another to convey so exactly what he meant—a casual, hollow, sounding success!

I could multiply such examples, but that I am sure the reader will easily supply them himself; and they show sufficiently that Shakespeare was not (as he is often represented) a loose or clumsy writer. The bold, happy texture of his style, in which every word is prominent, and yet cannot be torn from its place without violence, is (one should think) the result either of vigilant pains-taking, or of unerring, intuitive perception, and not the example of the proper opening lead after a double. If a player doubles after his partner has made a bid, he expects his partner to lead the suit he has bid. If a player has made a bid of his own and later doubles, he expects his partner to lead that suit.

In this example hand, Z has bid four spades and his partner, Y, has doubled five hearts. Under these conditions, Z should have opened his set of spades. This opening would have set the contract one trick. Y had a single top spade and doubled with the expectation of a spade opening. Z, however, thought of none of these very good reasons for a spade opening. He made his bid and thus scored game and rubber. This hand is a fine example, so study it over carefully.

The following is another fine example:

Hand No. 2 Hearts—5 Clubs—9, 8, 6, 3 Diamonds—7, 6, 2 Spades—A, K, 8, 7

No score, rubber game, and the hand is applicable to either Auction or Contract.

Z dealt and bid four hearts. A bid five diamonds and all passed. Y opened the bidding with two spades (a fine preemptive bid by the way). A doubled. Y passed and B bid five hearts. Z and Y now passed and Y doubled. When all passed what should Z have opened? This hand offers an excellent example.

Hand No. 3 Hearts—K, Q, 10, 8, 4 Clubs—K, Q, J, 4 Diamonds—J, 7, 6, 2 Spades—9, 5

No score, first game. The point of the hand is applicable to either Auction or Contract.

Z dealt and bid one heart. A and Y passed and B bid one spade. Z and A passed and Y bid two hearts. The final bid was four spades due to the fact that Y raised the heart bid twice more. He also doubled four spades. What should Z open?

This hand is similar to the first one in that Z has bid a suit and his partner, Y, has doubled. Under the rule set down in the analysis of that hand, Y certainly expected a heart lead by Z. Irrespective of that fact, however, Z should have led a heart in the endeavor to set up a trick in that suit before he lost his re-entry in clubs.

Instead of doing so, however, Z opened the ace of clubs and then led the four, hoping, as he said, for a ruff. This led to a B game that they couldn't have scored if Z had opened the king of hearts.

Mrs. Beare Thankful for Way in Which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Helped Her Back to Health

I can truly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, writes Mrs. Mabel R. Beare, New Westminster, B.C. "After a long and very trying illness, I was down to 90 lbs. in weight. I could not eat a hearty meal. In fact, I have had to go away from the table hungry, from a dinner I had often read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, so thought I would give them a trial. I soon found I was able to eat with any one, and life began to look brighter. My weight came up to 118 lbs. and my lips and cheeks had lots of color. I am more than thankful I ever took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I only hope others will try them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually create an abundance of new red blood, which is the reason they have given new vitality and strength to thousands of such nervously exhausted men. Equally helpful for growing girls. Try them. At your druggists in the new glass container. 50c

When a gold digger starts chasing after a Scotchman, she gets a good run for her money. When the meek inherit the earth, their hardest problem will be trying to collect rent from the unmeek. Every now and then we come across a house-to-house salesman who is so rude we don't know whether to slam the door in his face, or to slam his face with the door.

Leap year doesn't signify that girls should jump at conclusions. Flattering a man is like after dinner speaking. The whole thing depends on knowing when to stop.

Spring in Norway After the snows of Norway have begun to melt, there follows a period of dull monotony. It is not the black and white of a gray winter's day, but rather a curious, colorless atmosphere, which seems to envelope the landscape. Grand it may be but cold. Then, magically, the bare maples, birches, and aspens take on live tones of mauve, brown, and yellow, changing into a light green veil against the background of dark firs and gray rocks.

On bare spots under the firs the blue anemone buds peep out; the white flowers follow, until the forest ground is covered with their stars. A little later, between the wintry gray heather and tall, strong red-stemmed pines, in the mountain-side, the tender, shining stars of the flowers soften the landscape with beauty.

On the mild west and south coasts spring usually begins in February, or even earlier, commencing with the refreshing days when snowfalls rise out of their white beds, and continuing until the time of the sweetly scented twin-flower (linnea), and the purest of pure wild flowers, the lily-of-the-valley.

In eastern Norway, on the other hand, the flowers arrive in quick succession. Trees burst into bloom, and suddenly the promising, fragrant spring is everywhere, called forth by the rising sun, the ever growing daylight, and the luminous skies of the wonderful northern nights.

OLD BOOKS. In literature I am fond of confining myself to the best company, which consists chiefly of my old acquaintance, with whom I am desirous of becoming more intimate; and I suspect that the same times out of ten it is more profitable, if not more agreeable, to read an old book over again than to read a new one for the first time.—T. Knowledge is Power

Tommy was fond of squeezing tooth paste out of his shiny new tube. His mother, finding it necessary to limit the amount to the purpose in view, warned him one morning not to take too much.

Tommy—"How much may I take?" Mother—"Oh, a little bit, about the size of a bean."

Tommy gave the tube a tremendous pinch and out shot a long ribbon of paste.

Mother—"Tommy! Do you wish to be punished? Is that the size of a bean?"

Tommy—"Sure, Mom. This is a string bean."

Henry—"How sweet of you to back that horse because it had the same name as mine!"

Jane—"It had the same habits, too. It got there half an hour late!"

Wise—"When was tennis first mentioned in the Bible?"

Otherwise—"I'll ask you."

Wise—"When Joseph first served in Pharaoh's Court."

The Six Ages of Women Five, Fifteen, Twenty-five, Thirty-five, Forty-five, Fifty-five.

A woman's favorite sport is shopping for things she knows she can't afford—a man's is doing things he suspects he ought not to do. Maybe some of the flappers kiss so much now, before they're married, because they see how few mother gets. If wives and stenographers would only co-operate, no man would have a chance to get far from the dotted line between his desk and his door mat. A musician is defined as one who can hear new music and recognize the old scores it was stolen from. And even some of us who do not claim to be musicians can do that.
