Snake Skins Going Up

Reports from French Indo-China tell of the noticeable increase in the rat population supposedly resulting from the diminution of snakes thereabouts. These snakes have been killed wholesale and their skins sent to the United States to be made into ladies' shoes. helts, handbags, etc., and, believe it or not, airplane upholstery! In their search for means of saving aircraft weight plane builders have found that the skin of the lowly serpent is much lighter than the conventional upholstering materials and almost as durable as leather. This new use for reptile hides makes possible the saving of many pounds in weight in the upholstering of a large passenger plane.

There is a rare species of squirrel in Central America which is almost black in color, but the black squirrels commonly seen in North America are not a separate species, but merely a sport from the gray squirrel stock.

Soon after the breeding season each year all male deer shed their entire rack of antlers.

High Flyers

Some birds, such as condors, buzzards, hawks, gulls and albatrosses, can ascend to great heights and soar about for hours without any apparent motion of their wings. They are able to do this by taking advantage of minor air currents through imperceptible movements of different parts of the body. The principle is similar to that by which a kite or glider is flown. bird which is flying forward and upward against the wind without flapping its wings is in effect riding on an ascending current of air.

Birds Pair in Flight

The U.S. Biological Survey informs us that "both the chimney swift and the white-throated swift pair while in flight." The Britannica Encyclopedia states that further observation is needed to confirm the assertion that swifts actually mate in mid-air.

Tige, an English bull pup of nine months, was a pet in high standing at Lakehurst naval hangar. One day a navy blimp started aloft after word was given to "let go," but Tige, who had snatched one rope-end in his jaw, didn't understand, and he sailed away with the ship-until he got tired of holding on. TEETHING makes HIM FUSSY

One of the most important things you-can do to make a teething baby comfortable is to see that little bowels do their work of carrying off waste matter promptly and regularly. For this nothing is better than Castoria, a pure vegetable preparation specially made for babies and children. Castoria acts so gently you can give it to young infants to relieve colic. Yet it is always effective, for older children, too. Remember, Castoria contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics-is absolutely harmless. When your baby is fretful with teething or a food upset, give a cleansing dose of Castoria. Be sure you get genuine Castoria
