Waters Fertilized For Fish Life

Federal Scientists Study Fertilizing Plan Whereby Fish Stocks May be Increased

Interesting tests made by fisheries research scientists working under the Dominion authorities have indicated that water may be "fertilized" in such a way as greatly to increase the plant and animal life within it and thus to make it capable of sustaining a larger fish population than could otherwise be produced.

"For instance," says a progress report by M. W. Smith, who was in charge of an experiment conducted at the station of the Biological Board of Canada at St. Andrew's, New Brunswick, "a pond or lake which has not many fish may lack sufficient food for them, and by adding fertilizer the substances needed by the plants are put in and, as a result, the latter increase greatly in numbers until finally all the life, including the fish, which are most desirable, is increased."

In the St. Andrew's experiment the addition of only a single pound of herring meal to a thousand gallons of water was sufficient to make the pond so fertile that it produced nearly a hundred times as many plant growths as developed in a similar quantity of unfertilized water.

In making his tests Mr. Smith used two small concrete ponds on the station property. From the one source he fed a thousand gallons of water into each pond. To one lot of water he added a pound of dried and ground herring waste from a sardine cannery, but nothing was placed in the second pond except the water.

"The effect of the one pound of herring meal was remarkable," says Mr. Smith's report, "as could be seen by the difference in the plant and animal life between the fertilized and unfertilized ponds. It showed well that those substances which the plants needed for their growth were present in such small amount in the natural water as to limit their growth as well as that of the animals which require the plants for food."

Nearly one hundred times as many plants were found in the fertilized pond as in the unfertilized. In this way increased growth of fish food either in hatchery ponds or natural ponds and lakes may be brought about.

This particular experiment or study was only one of many which Dominion scientists were carrying on last year in connection with fisheries subjects. Research is in progress virtually continually at the four stations of the Biological Board which operates under the authority of the Dominion Minister of Fisheries.

How to play Bridge AUCTION and CONTRACT by Wynne Ferguson

Which are the easier to handle, weak hands or strong hands? Most players probably will reply that strong hands are easier to bid and to play and that is probably true. Weak hands, as a rule, offer more problems than the strong ones, but the latter are frequently hard to handle.

Hand No. 1
Hearts—K, J, 6, 5, 4
Clubs—A, 8, 3, 2
Diamonds—A, J, 8, 4
Spades—4

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one club. What should A now bid with the foregoing hand? A's proper bid at either Auction or Contract is undoubtedly a double of Z's one club. At one table, A doubled and Y bid four clubs. This was a good bid, for it prevented A and B from bidding. He led the ace of spades. As a result, Z made five-odd at clubs.

Hand No. 2
Hearts—6, 5
Clubs—8, 4, 3
Diamonds—K, Q, 10, 7
Spades—7, 3

Z dealt and passed. A bid one heart, Y passed. B bid one trump and Z passed. A passed. Y bid two diamonds. B passed and Z bid two spades. What should A now do with the foregoing hand? At one table A doubled two spades. On the bidding it is a certainty that B has strength in spades and yet there is not a sure game in no trump. Therefore, A should play the certainty and no trump. By opening the king of hearts, he should defeat Z by three tricks.

Contract Bidding
Z should pass. A should bid one heart and Y should pass. B should bid one no trump and Z should pass. A should bid three no trump and all should pass. The play then proceeds as at Table No. 2.

SHE DARE NOT EAT BUTTER Acid Stomach Since Childhood

NOW ENJOYS LIFE— THANKS TO KRUSCHEN

Don't ban a food because it disagrees with you. In nine cases out of ten, it isn't the food that's at fault—it's your digestion. Put that right, and you can eat to the order of your appetite. That is just what happened with this woman:—

"I have been taking Kruschen Salts for about three years. I began its use for rheumatism, to which I was becoming a martyr. Kruschen soon arrested that, and I now suffer very seldom from it. But I have experienced the greatest good in the correction of constant acidity of the stomach, from which I suffered from a child. I could never eat butter, nor very little fat of any kind. Now I enjoy butter especially, and eat plenty with no ill-effects. I have recommended Kruschen in hundreds of cases."—A. M. W.

slacken your nerves, decay your teeth, infect your joints with rheumatism, obscure conditions of ill-health. The immediate effect of the six salts in Kruschen is to promote a natural flow of the digestive and other vital juices of the body. Soon after you start on Kruschen you will begin to feel the benefit. You will find to your satisfaction that you are able to enjoy your food without any distressing after-effects. And, as you persevere with the "little daily dose," you will see that the relief which Kruschen brings is lasting relief.
