

Death of Prof. Fessenden

Noted Radio Inventor spent Boyhood Days in Fergus

(Fergus News Record) Professor Reginald Fessenden, the greatest of all inventors in the development of radio telephone, died in Hamilton, Bermuda, on July 22, 1932, at the age of 65 years.

Reginald A. Fessenden was born at Bolton, Quebec. His father was the Anglican rector of St James' Church, Fergus, from 1870 to 1876. Young Reginald Fessenden came to Fergus at the age of four years and was about eleven when he left to go to Chippewa, near Niagara. He obtained practically all his public school education in Fergus and a year after leaving here, went to Trinity College School at Port Hope, where one of his teachers was the late Peter Perry, who was later the Principal of Fergus High School for many years.

Mrs Fessenden became noted as the founder of the Daughters of the Empire and later she was the one who suggested the holding of Empire Day in the schools of Ontario.

Professor Fessenden perfected the first radio telephone, a device now in half the homes of the country under the name of radio. He has some 300 other inventions, including the relay wireless, used when chain programs are broadcast; the heterodyne principle, used in all "super-heterodyne" radios; the wireless compass used to guide ships and aeroplanes in a fog, and the tracer bullet, used in aeroplane fighting during the war. His greatest invention in his own opinion, was the periscope, a machine that would allow us to see by radio, but which has been held up for ten years or more by radio interests who control the invention.

He also had the world's first broadcasting station, which he established for experimental purposes and with which he was the first man to talk across the Atlantic.

Some five years ago, Professor Fessenden sued the "radio trust" as he called it, for the sum of sixty million dollars and retired after he had won the suit and the amount had been settled out of court.

A PLAIN MAN'S CREED

You don't get flowers unless you sow the seeds: Until you work and dig and pull up weeds Your garden won't be clear. Who values pleasure till they've felt some pain? The rainbow's glory only follow rain; Relief comes after fear. You can't buy knowledge, not the smallest bit. For men get gold by digging deep for it: Down in the earth it lies. You don't win races if you only trot; You've got to sprint, and sprint a jolly lot. If you would win a prize. You can't have friends worth anything unless You show yourself a friendly soul, I guess. And stop to have a chat; And if you take a nasty knock one day Some good thing comes to smooth the lump away. For life is just like that!

NO SNORING

A minister observed during his sermon that one of his flock was asleep. He would have taken no notice of this, but the snoring of the sleeper disturbed the congregation. Leaning over the pulpit, he said, "Jock! There'll be no snoring in hell." At which Jock—started from his slumbers—rose and said "And no for the lack of ministers."

Kellogg Products Gain Medal in Palestine

An unusually interesting example of the international scope of the appreciation accorded Kellogg's ready-to-eat cereals is provided by the gold medal award given Kellogg's Corn Flakes at the recent Levant Fair at Tel-Aviv.

This is the first international exposition held in Palestine's rebuilt and modernized city. Presided over by Lieut. Gen. Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchope, High Commissioner for Palestine, the fair attracted exhibits from a large number of manufacturers whose products are sold in the Levant.

The certificate, awarding Kellogg's Corn Flakes the gold medal in the foodstuffs section of the exposition, bears the signatures of M. Dzenzoff, Mayor of Tel-Aviv and Chairman of the Fair Committee and R. E. H. Corstie, District Commissioner and Chairman of the Committee of Judges.

We have entered the last summer month. How do you feel about it?

A Penny Saved is a Penny Earned

Economy's the thing, nowadays. It's got to be a habit not only with individuals, but with governments, and the old-fashioned motto "A penny saved is a penny earned" has been dusted off and put into general use to fit the picture. Take the postal service for instance. Penny postage went out of favor this spring and the three cent stamp came into being for out-of-town letters. The government at Ottawa found itself with a big supply of 2-cent stamps on hand. Did the government chuck them away? No such thing. The stamps were run through the printing press again, the figures "2" blocked out and the figure "3" substituted, as Durham folk found out when mailing letters.

THE WEDDING

It was the swellest wedding That Manhattan ever saw; The bride's bouquet was cauliflower With shower effect of straw. The decorations formed a bower Of cabbages and beans. With spinach and asparagus And other garden greens. Aigrettes of splendid seakale trimmed The bridesmaid's hat of lace, And in the best man's left lapel A radish found a place. The wedding cake was decked with beets. Cucumbers and tomatoes. And princely was the bridegroom's gift.— A barrel of potatoes.

Where Four Centuries Meet

Uniting the sixteenth and twentieth centuries as typified in the lower left hand and the upper right hand corners of this group, stands the lordly Manoir Richelieu, the fashionable holiday resort at Murray Bay on the north shore of the St. Lawrence and the site of the activities of the "One Hundred Associates" of New France. The Casino, shown at the upper left, designed after the famous Chateau de Ramezay built in Montreal in 1705, now houses one of the most complete sound and talking picture installations on this continent. Acoustic engineers of the Northern Electric Company have been working for some time with engineers of the Canada Steamship Lines, to effect the necessary treatment for the perfect reproduction of the best products of the moving picture studios, thus affording visitors to the Manoir Richelieu still another addition to the many attractions of this famous pleasure paradise.
