Children at the Wheel

A 11-year-old Chicago high school light, driving an automobile along a public highway recently struck a 7-year-old boy who was riding a bicycle. The boy was not badly injured, and witnesses said that the girl did everything an adult driver could have done to avoid hitting him. But it proved on other minds, and the tragic upshot was that after a sleepless night of brooding the girl committed suicide.

It is a plain story, and makes a sad commentary on the automobile. Why should a child of 14 years be permitted to drive a car in heavy traffic—or for that matter in any kind of traffic? Harding, an automobile expert, says that the accident of the 11-year-old girl should have been a lesson to the public. It is a new bulwark for the freedom of the press—Halifax Herald.

Noteworthies Protected

Noteworthies alone, but the public generally will be interested in the new law put into effect recently in New Jersey under which no court, grand jury, or other inquisitorial body could require any reported to divulge the source of confidential information used in news articles. This law simply recognizes what has long been the code of the news-gathering profession: that a reporter is in honor bound to protect the person from whom he gets information of legitimate interest to the public. It is a new bulwark for the freedom of the press—Halifax Herald.

Popping Up Death Gamble

New trains to run 119 miles an hour are being planned for United States railroads. That should pop up the "Let's bet it to the crossing" fans—Ottawa Citizen.

Black couple of years ago, an expert was driven from Wawa to Michipicoten (Michipicoten) on winter days. The driver ticked the Buffalo robe carefully around his passenger and climbed in. "Of course," says the efficiency man, "this is all wrong. There is real hair on the Buffalo robe when you wear the hair inside and the hair outside." Mac looked at the engineer. "Well," he says, "it's quite a joke on the Buffalo robe when wearing it wrong. It's all these years"—Shall Ste. Marie Star.

U. S. and World Peace

America has now formally pledged herself to take from henceforth a direct active part in the guardianship of the peace of the world. That is the effect of Mr. Davis's statement. Mr. Davis promised, in the name of his country to join others in abolishing aggressive weapons, to consult with others in case of a threat to peace, and to "participate in a system of supervision to ensure the faithful carrying out of any measures of disarmament." The last is clearly the most important of these obligations. An American representative on the Permanent Commission of Control will be a solid guarantee of America's active, practical concern in the work of disarmament—The News-Chronicle.

Caste Defended

Castle is by no means the unmitigated evil which Mr. Gandhi and some reformers represent it to be. (And even Mr. Gandhi has stated that he would not marry a daughter of his below her caste.) A former editor of the Spectator, the late Mr. G. H. Townsend, has believed the caste system to be a marvellous discovery, which through ages has protected Hindu society from anarchy and from the worst evils of industrial and competitive life—it is an automatic poor-law to begin with and the strongest form known of trade union—London Spectator.

The United States Newspaper Advertising

We learn that starting there E. Montross, Ward and Company will discontinue advertising through Montreal and give 100 per cent. concession line upon newspaper advertising. Officials of the company, with 500 stores in 46 states, assert this new policy is a test and they will continue it for at least a year, if it yields results. The placing of the newspaper contracts hereafter will be from the central office. Copy will be sent in that form to retail managers a month in advance for merchandising purposes and for insertion of local prices on specified items. Releases will be on a monthly schedule, and frequency of insertion will depend somewhat upon local competitive conditions.

All right, newspapers will gladly accept the challenge. It will pay out intelligently and keeply. After all, the fact that local merchandising is often a hazardous business. There is no comparison between the putting power of a good ad and a handout assuming that the copy is right and releases are sent in the proper form.

Married Women Work To Keep Homes Together

The Welland-Port Colborne Tribune, writing editorially on "Married Women Out of Work," says: "Occasionally there are bitter complaints against married women holding payroll jobs, the attacks usually coming from members of the working class who demand the job of the married women. Most of the protests come from women and the animosity of their remarks suggests some common underlying psychological incentive. Long centuries of custom have implanted in the human mind the notion that when a woman marries she must fit into the stereotyped, housewife mould, as if it were a law of nature. The usual argument is that no married woman should hold a job as long as there are jobless unmarried women. Many exceptions from such a rule must be allowed, and the fact that many married women working outside the home are doing so for the love of work or for love of luxuries their husbands cannot afford to buy them. By far the greater number are in factories, stores, offices and schools because their husbands do not earn enough to keep their family together and maintain their standard of living. Where the single woman has only herself to support greater suffering would result from giving her the job of some mother.

"Where married women are engaged in positions desired by men or single women it is very likely that the employers have been helped to the work. There is certainly no conspiracy among employers against the unmarried."

Ontario Historical Society Annual Meeting at Guelph

Starting June 21st, the Ontario Historical Society will hold a three-day annual meeting in the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

A varied and interesting program is offered which will include trips to Ferguson and Elora, for which arrangements are being made by the Wellington County Historical Society. At Ferguson a visit will be made to the well-known rose garden of Mr. J. C. Templeton on June 22nd.

"What we need today is not new political institutions or new economic systems. What we need today is a new spirit."—Bishop William T. Manning.

Four Killed—40 Injured When Trains Crash

Four people were killed and 40 injured when two passenger trains crashed into each other at a station in Ontario. The accident occurred on a busy line, and the resulting chaos was described as a "scene of horror." The injured were taken to nearby hospitals, and the investigation is ongoing.

Who Makes a Garden

Who rears four walls around a little plot. Some still, secluded spot. And digs and sows therein, has done a thing. Beyond his reckoning, and of it in one small, fenced space. Beauty and deep, untellable content. Make their abiding place. And measureless peace is pent. There times takes note of tender happenings. The shimmer of a butterfly's blue wings. Above the clustered phlox, a sparrow's chirp, and a bird's note. Between two hollyhocks, a hidden cricket's humble prophecies. A brown bird by a pool, and all that goes on around it. Into the lovely lifetime of a rose; into a pansy's lore, and little queeting women; into the sweet, biographical. Who makes a garden plans beyond his knowing, and the old of yesteryear. Old roads to lost old dwellings have their day. For year by year, as April's heart is stirred. Spring after punctual spring, a hand across the little acre's wintry grass. Comes, slowly traced, an old, authentic word. In radiant lettering. A shining script of tendril, vine, and whorl. New green, pale gold, clear lavender, and pearl. Petal by delicate petal, leaf by leaf. Nancy Byrd Turner, in "A Riband on My Reel." (Hartford, Conn., Edwin Valentine Mitchell.)

Paris Opens School For Tourist Guides

Paris—Mark Twain once complained that the ordinary Paris guide didn't know the difference between a fresco and a freplog. To remedy this condition, if it really exists, a "School for Touristic Instruction" has been opened in the Ministry of Public Works, its purpose being to increase the competence and usefulness of tourist guides. Seventy students are already enrolled, following a comprehensive curriculum which includes frescoes if not freplogs, also Gothic churches, Parisian history, and so forth. Montmartre night-life, however, is not included in the studies, since it is agreed that most tourists master this subject without outside aid. This School for Touristic Guides does not purpose, or even hope, to turn its students into expert architects, connoisseurs of the arts, and reliable historians; but plans to give them an accurate if elementary knowledge of Paris, its history, and its artistic treasures, so that they will be able to give an intelligent answer to most questions asked them. Paris guides who successfully pass their examinations at this school, will be given diplomas testifying to their competence; they will also be allowed to wear a distinctive button, so that they can be easily recognized. In the past, the ordinary guide has been a pleasant, well-meaning individual who merely repeated information which he had memorized, and which he understood inadequately. The new school will give the old (and the new) guide an intelligent background and a solid basis for his work, it is believed.

Electrical Fly-Catcher Shown in Germany

A new electrical fly-catcher was shown in operation at Leipzig, Germany. It consists of a metal container, in which a wire screen is placed. The screen is baited with some sweet-smelling substance, and immediately a fly alights on it, a charge of electricity is sent through the screen, electrocuting the fly.

Contagious Cases Increase

Quebec—Contagious disease cases reported to the Municipal Hygiene Bureau during the month of May showed an increase of 11 cases as compared with the same month a year ago. Measles led the list with 59 cases declared, while there were 49 cases of scarlet fever and 12 cases of diphtheria. The deaths as a result of contagious diseases were reported.

Sidewalk Cafes

Ever a pioneer, for all its reputed conservatism, Boston has instituted for itself a very attractive sidewalk cafe. Right in front of the Public Library is a gay blue awning. Beneath it are green tables enclosed in a boxed hedge, and its white-clothed saracens all lend the authentic Continental touch, and, what's more, it is well patronized. You can't get a chair at lunch time any more than you can get a stool at Thompson's Spa in Washington street. There are people there at tea-time, too, slipping chairs and eating. That's all we know, crumpets. Now a little rash of sidewalk cafes is spreading all over town. There are a couple of the West Fifties and a more pretentious one sponsored by a fashionable hotel right in the Grand Central district, and you can have your julep coffee there just as the Central rumbles under you on the way to Chicago.

Two Mahrugs

True poetry is concerned with things undying. John Masfield. Just to make money is no game and more of it. Roosevelt. TWO MAHRUG. The principal drawbacks to sidewalk cafes in Manhattan have been the narrowness of the footways and the dirt. But if you can't have a sidewalk cafe, you can't have a sidewalk cafe. The principal drawbacks to sidewalk cafes in Manhattan have been the narrowness of the footways and the dirt. But if you can't have a sidewalk cafe, you can't have a sidewalk cafe.

Victoria Colonist Comments On Newspaper Trials

A newspaper has a difficult task in catering to the views of many different shades of thought, writes the Victoria Colonist. Its endeavor always is to keep on an even keel and to give the greatest volume of space to those subjects in which it has found by experience the largest proportion of its public is interested. In following this course it often gives offence; not willingly, but simply because judgement affecting matters of the likes and dislikes of the individual. The correspondence columns of any newspaper are a reflection of public opinion. They can, however, if not properly governed, become a happy hunting ground for cranks and for the perpetration of personalities and intolerance in viewpoint. It is often the reason why controversies are not allowed to become prolonged. Conjecture is a general view entertained by the public one of the main problems in connection with a newspaper is what to leave out, not what to print.

Strathroy Student Wins Ferguson Trophy Award

London, Ont.—Don Wright of Strathroy has been made the recipient of the Howard Ferguson trophy of the committee at University of Western Ontario by a majority of 100 votes. The award, granted with athletic ability, academic standing, and general contribution to college life as the determining factors, was awarded for the first time last year to Dr. Paul Hauch, and this year to Don Wright. ## Hooked Trout Revive in Water

Gill Injuries Not Fatal if Small Fish Promptly Returned to Stream

Small trout which have been hooked about the gills by the angler's hook will soon recover, in many cases at least, if they are promptly freed and put back into the water. That statement is made by a Canadian biologist who holds a belief which is perhaps quite widely held but tests made by a Canadian biologist have indicated that it is true, and sportsmen who happen to land small trout when fishing for big fellows should make it a point to get them back into the water at once so that they may have a chance to recover and nature and help to ensure good sport for anglers later on. In some cases, of course, the fisheries regulations provide that trout under certain sizes must be returned to the stream or lake but, regulations aside, it is good sportsmanship to put the small fish back in the water so that they may help to maintain the angling resources.

The Synthetic Home: Of the Future

Everything for the Interior Made From Vinyl Resin—Including Window Panels

The chemists have been telling us these many years that the synthetic materials that would supplant the natural materials of the earth are now being made. They are now being made in the laboratory, and they are now being made in the factory. They are now being made in the home. They are now being made in the office. They are now being made in the school. They are now being made in the church. They are now being made in the synagogue. They are now being made in the mosque. They are now being made in the temple. They are now being made in the cathedral. They are now being made in the basilica. They are now being made in the abbey. They are now being made in the monastery. They are now being made in the convent. They are now being made in the nunnery. They are now being made in the cloister. They are now being made in the refectory. They are now being made in the dormitory. They are now being made in the kitchen. They are now being made in the pantry. They are now being made in the cellar. They are now being made in the attic. They are now being made in the basement. They are now being made in the garage. They are now being made in the driveway. They are now being made in the lawn. They are now being made in the garden. They are now being made in the park. They are now being made in the forest. They are now being made in the field. They are now being made in the meadow. They are now being made in the prairie. They are now being made in the tundra. They are now being made in the desert. They are now being made in the mountains. They are now being made in the hills. They are now being made in the valleys. They are now being made in the plains. They are now being made in the steppes. They are now being made in the savannas. They are now being made in the jungles.
