We felt sad when we read in the papers last week of the death in Everett, Wash., of Jas Meagher. North Egremont Corr:—
One of those pleasant old time picnics was held last Thursday at the now defunct Marl Lake which has in its time turned out many thousands of dollars worth of the slimy stuff. But where did the money go to? We can't help but think that there is still a large quantity of valuable marl still available here for in sailing round the island there is quite a strip left between it and the mainland that cannot be through any manner of reasoning, inferior in quality to that taken out on either side of it, besides large quantities still at the edges, but "Job-abod" is plainly stamped on the face of the old dilapidated and dismantled dredge, which prompted one of our numbers to quote, "Sic tran sit gloria mundi." But the business has gone another way, largely owing, a great many think, to the desires of one, two or three individuals who have a controlling influence.
