YEovil

Cold weather still prevails but Spring for which we are all waiting patiently, must soon arrive, as old Sol is getting stronger each day. The attendance at Sunday Schools and day schools have been smaller lately, owing to the mumps epidemic, which has made victims of many children and some grown-ups also. We hope that all will soon be able to take their different places.

Mr Jas Brown, Weston, was a recent visitor with Mr and Mrs Fleming Reid. Arthur Haas is home again after being engaged for several weeks in work for the 'New Canada Movement', which is making progress in the counties of Ont. Much enthusiasm is being shown by the workers and their supporters and a ready response by the people, is helping this youth movement to go over in a large way. Their numbers have now reached 8000. We wish them success and that great results will follow the winter's work.

Market Hog should be Long and Stream-Lined

Miss Macphail's Weekly Letter

The interest of the week centred again around the Act to incorporate the Bank of Canada and the Committee investigating price spreads. However private members' day directed attention to the mismanagement of coal importation. "Shameful exploitation" was the term applied by Dr. Deslauriers, Liberal member for St. Mary's division, Montreal. He claimed that coal laid down at Montreal at the cost of $5 a ton may cost the consumer $20.00 by the time it gets to him, especially shipped in winter, when ice and snow add to its weight. Even the Government is affected, since it supplies relief money, much of which is spent in fuel. Dr Deslauriers spoke in French, making it difficult for the Minister of Labour to follow, but in reply he said that the Combines Act is there and he stands ready to invoke it. Mr F. H. Pickle, Conservative M. P. introduced a resolution, asking that the grading of hogs and eggs be studied by the Commons Committee on Agriculture. He contended that Government hog-graders were often the "pals" of the packers and favored their friends as against the farmers in grading the animals brought down to the abattoir. This statement was denied emphatically by the Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture. The Minister of Agriculture said it was impossible to grade hogs accurately on the hoof but they were tested as fairly as possible. The best tests would be made on the rail, after the animal had been slaughtered, but this plan had difficulties, the chief of which was the matter of identifying the hogs. Then too, long waits would result to farmers whose hogs might be sent considerable distances before being killed.

J. S. McLean, President of the Canadian Packers, gave evidence before the Committee investigating spreads. The evidence covers 290 pages of the same size as Hansard and the Committee sat all day. By his evidence he gave the packing industry a clean bill of health which did not, I judge, convince the members of the Committee. The day before Mr McLean's visit, the Agriculture Committee of the Ontario Legislature passed a resolution asking the Stevens Committee at Ottawa to investigate thoroughly and immediately the whole livestock industry.

The Committee of the legislature had heard complaints by cattle dealers, who claimed there was no competition among buyers at the stock yards, the large firms' buyers refusing to bid against each other; that bids were cut after the market closed and that the bulk of shipments went direct to the abattoirs without being subject to bidding, and that handling charges were so heavy the farmers' return dropped below cost. While no reference was made to the recommendation by the Ontario Legislature, the points raised in their reference was discussed by the Committee of the House of Commons.

Mr. McLean denied any suggestion of combine among the big packers and laid down the principle that the export market is the governing factor in price fixing and he claimed that when the price went up it was passed on in proper proportion to the farmer. He even went so far as to suggest that the interests of the packers and the farmers are identical, stating their interests do not clash. The Hon. H. H. Stevens, who is Chairman of the Com., interjected at this point: "All I can see is the farmer is the goat. When we come to beef it will be worse than the hog business: the farmer gets into the position of holding the bag".

Mr. McLean admitted that the Canadian Packers made a large profit last year. This had been made on the export trade, he said, the reason given being that sales had been made on an advancing market. Every time the English market advanced, the domestic price was accordingly increased. Not more than 10% selects went overseas, said Mr McLean. This was due to the fact that of the actual number of selects killed in the packing houses, 25% were bruised and made unsuitable for export.

Mr. McLean attributed the difference in the present prevailing price of hogs at Toronto and Chicago, to the fact that we have unrestricted access to the British market for all our surplus, plus the fact that the English Dept. of Agriculture has entered upon a policy to put up the price of hogs in England in order to make the pig industry in England profitable. He might well have added the increased value of English money in Canadian currency, due to the United States forsaking the gold standard.

A farmer, Mr. Kennedy of Peace asked Mr McLean if the packing methods in Canada were as excellent as those of Denmark and he was assured they were. According to Mr. McLean, the hog is to blame, it should be long and stream-lined. The President of the Canada Packers said there was no price agreement by the different packing plants and when asked if his buyers compared prices with Swifts on the Union stock yards and thus settled the price for the day. He replied "I'll say they don't." But as he was not as emphatic in answer to a question regarding the different packers' buyers staying out of each other's alleys on the stock yard. He denied that buyers refrained from buying in the yards until the daily report had gone out to other markets that business was dull, thus influencing prices.

The low price of beef was due, the witness said, to a surplus of 250,000 head a year. This number had been absorbed by the United States previous to the passing of the Forney McCumber tariff. Mr. Sommerville, acting counsel for the Committee, asked the witness if the costs of laying down bacon in Liverpool, were the same on a $9.25 hog as on a $3.25 hog, and received the answer, "The costs attaching to it, yes: the expenses (are the same)." He was questioned very sharply regarding wages paid employees of the Canada Packers, but I have not time to go into that today.

According to a report brought down by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at the request of Mr G. G. Coote, the gross agricultural revenue of Canada fell between 1928 and 1932, 57% and during the same period the total value of field crops in the prairie provinces fell 73% and the total value of field crops for all Canada fell 53%. Is it any wonder that the farmers have not been able to purchase what they need? When the second reading of the bill to incorporate the Bank of Canada was introduced, Mr Mackenzie King, speaking for the Opposition, made a brief statement. The Opposition proposed to allow the Gov't to proceed with the bill though committing themselves to nothing beyond the principle of the establishment of a properly constituted central bank. He was followed by Mr Coote (U. F. A., MacLeod) who objected strongly to the fact that the bank is to be privately and not publicly owned and also that the proposed bank is to be given power to issue legal tender for Canada, a function which since Confederation has been performed by the state itself. "Since ancient times the issue of money was the prerogative of the Crown and jealously guarded as such. The issue of all money is to be turned over to this bank. To me, the principle to be decided in connection with this bill, is whether the institution which is to be given this very great power shall be established under private ownership or public ownership." Mr Coote continued: "I want to make it clear, Mr. Speaker, that we are not opposed to the setting up of a central bank. We think this step should have been taken years ago but we believe that it is vital that the bank should be a publicly owned institution. The two members of the Commission (The MacMillan Commission) who recommended the setting up of the central bank as now proposed, were neither of them Canadians and one had been a director of the Bank of England. The control of currency and credit can in no sense be defended as a legitimate form of private enterprise. Credit is the life-blood of industry and through credit employment and purchasing power is controlled. The very life-blood of the nation, economically speaking, is to be committed by this bill to the care of a privately owned institution." All the speeches made, either criticizing or defending the bill, were excellent. We have not had so good a debate in the House for a long time. Mr Rhodes defended the bill and with eloquence and by quoting authorities proved to his satisfaction that the central banks should not be publicly owned while Mr Gariand and Mr Irvine, Mr. Woodworth, as well as Mr. Coote, contended that they should.

The reception of the wives of the cabinet ministers was held last week but I had no inclination to attend. It is said however, by those who did to have been a very enjoyable affair, above a thousand being present. I did not notice from the press reports that the women in the receiving line wore dresses of white, black or gold, with white predominating. House of Commons, Ottawa, March 10, 1934

Golden Wedding of Mr. and Mrs John Bunston

A pleasant event took place near Dromore, on Monday, March 5th, when a number of relatives and old friends gathered at their home, Lot 11, Con 17, to join with them in celebrating the 50th anniversary of their wedding. The groom, Mr John Bunston, was the second eldest son of a family of six, coming with his parents, Mr and Mrs. Joseph Bunston from Somersetshire, England, at the age of four years to Canada. They lived for a short time in Arthur Tp, later coming to Yeovil.

Mr. Bunston chose as his life partner, Miss Hannah Isaac, the eldest daughter of the late Mr and Mrs Jas. Isaac, the marriage knot being tied by Rev. D. P. Niven, then pastor of Amos Church. Settling on lot 15, con. 15, they lived there until 1907, when they moved to their present abode, the former Isaac homestead—"Melbourne Hall."

To them were born seven children—the eldest daughter Jean, dying in infancy. The others are happily settled in the vicinity of their own home. They are: Mary, Mrs. John Eccles; Robena, Mrs. Allan Haastie; Nellie, Mrs. Wilfrid Renwick; Joseph, near Dromore; James, on 16th; Norman, at home. All were present at the golden wedding, also the six grandchildren.

The dining and living rooms were prettily decorated in yellow and white. At 1 p.m., the invited guests sat down to a fowl dinner. The tables were nicely decorated with yellow marigolds and an attractive three-storey wedding cake adorned the centre of table. At an appropriate time, Master Lorne Eccles and Miss Elva Bunston presented their grandparents with a gold watch chain and gold brooch, set with onyx stone and diamonds. In the absence of Rev. R. Honeyman, Mrs. Honeyman proposed the toast to the bride and groom. Mr John Eccles replied. The remainder of afternoon was spent in social chat, when a number of old neighbors gathered in to congratulate the bride and groom of 50 years ago. Present were the bridesmaid and groomsmen of 50 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Baird; also Mr and Mrs. Thos. Renwick who were witnesses of the first ceremony.

They received many beautiful remembrances, including a sheaf of marigolds from the ladies' aid of the church and many letters of congratulations. The bride has the unique record of having been born, married, and now marking her 50th wedding day on same farm. We extend congratulations and hope they may be spared to mark their Diamond Wedding.

Mr Joe Wilson had a few teams this week moving hay and wood out to the farm he rented near Durham. Pricerville corr. says he heard Mr. and Mrs John Bunston's golden wedding announced over the radio Sunday evening. Well we heard it Sunday morning, while Burton Hill's program was on. We wish to extend congratulations from North Egremont also.
