The fellow who used to sit and listen to an old Edison wax cylinder phonograph grind out the same scratchy tune hour after hour now says: "For Pete's sake, shut off that danged radio!"

Wife—I can read you like a book, John.
Husband—Why don't you, then? You skip what you don't like in a book, and linger over it in me.

Wife—When I married you I told you you'd have to give up club and friends.
Husband—You didn't say anything about giving up my salary.

What if a man does spend one-third of his time in bed? It's the other two-thirds that causes all his troubles.

Wife—Are all men as stupid as you are?
Husband—No, my dear. Some of them are still bachelors.

There wasn't much sale for the sofa until somebody christened it a "Love Seat."

Woman—What can I do to reduce?
Doctor—Take plenty of exercise. The best form of exercise is to push yourself back from the table three times each day.

Newly-Wed—Just a moment, sir, and I'll give you the biggest collection of bills you ever saw.

Love makes a man think almost as much of a girl as he does of himself.

As long as a man has faith in himself he doesn't despair of his country.

St. Matthew Up to Date

—The common conception of customs officers as a particularly hard-boiled class of people is due for revision in view of a little incident reported in the current issue of the National Revenue Review, that excellent house-organ of the department of the same name.

It appears that a crippled girl living in one of the western provinces recently wrote to the department at Ottawa stating that a special kind of rolling chair which would enable her to move about had been reported by her father and mother, who were in poor circumstances, from the United States. The little girl said that they could not enter in chair at Customs because the family was too poor to pay the duty thereon. There was no way under the law of permitting the chair to be entered duty free, but several of the headquarters officials of the department contributed an amount covering the duty, sent it to the collector at the port, and the little disabled girl got her chair. — Brockville Examiner.

Glinty Evening Frocks And Accessories

New York, Sept. 18. — Sliding-to-the-right toques and round brimmed felt hats, velvet and satin evening gloves, pieced together crepe evening slippers, Alice-in-Wonderland combs, and coral-colored fingernails are among the materialized ideals in the field of "accessories."

Bags for evening, if not of bejeweled velvets are either of glossy metal or a trick satin with a sparkle in it.

The dresses they go with are likewise glinty, but this does not mean an ensemble in its order. On the contrary, contrast is much in the vogue. White gloves and sparkling white bags may go with an evening dress of gold-velvet, deep rich-colored velvet, or pale shaded crepe with narrow silver stripes.

Evening shoe, mostly crepe, likewise have a dash of brilliancy, sometimes combining the qualities of both dress and bag. Hence the pieced-together appearance.

Hats for the theatre are necessarily small. For cocktail parties they are as large as desired, and may sit on the back of the head.

TRAVEL IMPRESSIONS

BY CAPT. F. H. REID

IN THE ALPINE COUNTRY

Switzerland—Another small country—has an area of only 15,737 square miles and, for this area, it is probably the most mountainous country in the world. But the Swiss people know how to capitalize on this glorious scenery, consequently the tourist industry is the greatest business of the country. We have wonderful mountain scenery too but, on the other hand, Canada is so vast that these features have been almost entirely exploited by the railways—not so in Switzerland, there everyone is interested and rightly so. House and church architecture blend into the landscape; wood-carvers use natural objects as models for their wonderful productions; Swiss hotels and hotel managers are known and are to be found the world over. In this connection, one of the finest schools for hotel keeping is at Lausanne and its graduates are much sought after.

A LITTLE GEOGRAPHY AND HISTORY

Switzerland is a federal republic, and is made up of 24 Cantons, the last three of which joined the federation in 1815. It is about the oldest of the present day republics and has been pointed out as a striking example of democratic government. These Cantons are independent, except in matters affecting the whole country, in which they are subject to the Federal Constitution. The languages of the country are four in number; the greater part of the population speak German, after which comes French, Italian and a dialect, allied to Latin, called Romansch. Roughly speaking, French is the language of the south-west; Italian that of the southern slope of the Alps; Romansch of certain districts in the Grisons and German the remainder of the country.

English is spoken as an auxiliary language, particularly in the larger places. Climatically Switzerland has no standard; altitude has much to do with climate and there is a great diversity of vegetation. Because of its central position and neutral attitude, throughout many generations Switzerland has been chosen as the meeting place for many important gatherings of an international nature—this adds greatly to its importance in world affairs.

TWO WEDDINGS

Always of interest to the ladies—sometimes to the men also—is a bridal procession. We saw an interesting one at Lucerne and another a few miles away, as we were travelling along the road. The first one was going into the Cathedral at Lucerne; that interesting building, with its four-sided twin spires pointing heaven ward. At night, flood-lights illuminate this typical Swiss structure and the glory of the sight, as one comes upon it suddenly, causes a gasp of astonishment. The wedding procession differed from ours. First of all, because it was on foot; secondly, the bride and groom headed the procession, followed by the diminutive flower girl and the friends in pairs behind. The bride was demure and sweet—all brides are—and as the party came up the wide steps, leading from the street, passers-by stopped to smile and, I hope, to wish them joy

Girl Millionaire Has Allowance Cut

Chicago—Vivacious Nancy Lester, poor little rich girl whose monthly allowance has been cut to $5,000, is struggling with a new budget and wondering whether she will have to give up any of her ponies.

Nancy's only extravagance is her riding, horses.

Judge John F. O'Connell in probate court decided that Nancy would have to get along the next few months on $5,000 a month instead of the $7,500 she has been accustomed to. Her mother agreed when she learned that only $50,000 is available until next November 14 when Nancy has her eighteenth birthday and becomes a very rich young woman.

On her birthday she will receive $500,000 in cash from the estate of her famous grandfather, Levi Z. Leiter, the capitalist, and $800,000 held for her by her mother.

She also will receive a handsome legacy from the estate of her father, Joseph Leiter, millionaire sportsman and capitalist, and later there will be another million or more from the Levi Leiter estate.

"If Nancy has to get along on $5,000 a month she'll be able to salt away only about $4,500," commented a young debutante at the Casino when she heard of the little rich girl's "plight."

Food Industry Gets New Scale of Wages

Montreal—A new wage scale for the food industry in Montreal and district was set recently by the Quebec Women's Minimum Wage Board, sitting under the chairmanship of Gustave Franco. Rates were set to range from a minimum of $7 for the lower class operators to $10 for higher grades for biscuits, jams, meat packers and "sundries" divisions.

Refuses to Play Opposite Mae West

HOLLYWOOD.—George Raft, screen actor, has notified his producers he will not play opposite Mae West in a forthcoming screen production. Studio officials said another actor would be chosen. Sequences in the picture call for a number of close-ups of Miss West with the back of the leading man's camera. It was this fact to which Raft was reported to have objected.

The Wild Duck

Twilight, Red in the West.
Dimness. A glow on the wood.
The teams plot home to rest.
The wild ducks come to glean.
O souls not understood,
What a wild cry in the pool;
What things have the farm ducks seen

That they cry so—huddle and cry?
Only the soul that goes.
Eager, Eager, Flying.
Over the globe of the moon,
Over the wood that glows,
Wings linked. Necks a-strain,
A rush and a wild crying.

A cry of the long pain.
In the reeds of a steel lagoon,
In a land that no man knows.
—John Masselield.

Canadian Chances In the Argentine

Discussing market possibilities for fish products in the Argentine Republic a recent report from the office of the Canadian Government Trade Commissioner at Buenos Aires suggests that Dominion exporters should "be able to obtain a share of the codfish and herring trade." The report indicates, too, that there is also a limited outlet in Argentina for canned fish and frozen salmon. Canadian exporters who may be interested in further information in this regard can obtain the report from the Commercial Intelligence Service of the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa.
