All right, here we go on a streamline swing to romance. It seems that romance will persist only as long as the gentleman in the case may clasp the lady of his fancy easily within his two strong arms.

British War Nurse Dies in United States

Arlington, Mass.—Mrs. Ralph Hill, a nurse with the British forces during the Great War, died recently. Two of her sons were killed in action during the war.

Britain to Build Full Treaty Navy

Will Reach Maximum Tonnage Permitted by End of 1936

SECRET MANOEUVRES

London, By the end of 1936 the British Navy will reach maximum tonnage permitted by treaty, Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, First Lord of the Admiralty, told the House of Commons last week, in presenting his estimates for the year.

Practically all airships he said, will be under the treaty age-limit, at which they can be replaced although the navy will have 60,511 tons in the destroyer category and 4,000 tons in sub-marines which will have reached the age-limit.

The building program, Eyres-Monsell said, was in accordance with "a carefully considered Admiralty policy of replacement—to pursue a steady, annual program of construction."

He pointed out that the treaties permit the laying of 86,350 tons of cruisers in three years from 1934 to 1936 but the current program calls for only 32,000 tons in that class.

He did not favor laying of the entire 86,350 tons permitted by treaty immediately.

"We are still trying to bring about limitation in armaments," he said. "It would be impossible for us, on the eve of a 1935 naval conference, to begin a largely increased building program on the assumption that the conference will be a failure."

Eyres-Monsell indicated that the proposed new aircraft carrier which Britain plans would exceed 20,000 tons.

The proposed increase in personnel he said was one of the most satisfactory features of the estimate. He regretted that "unhappily there is still a surplus of lieutenant-commanders, and lieutenants."

London.—Great Britain's increased naval activity was signaled by secret manoeuvres in which 100 warships operated in the Eastern Atlantic.

So secret were they that until they were ended, the ships did not communicate even with the Admiralty here to avoid any chance of messages being picked up by a theoretical enemy or outsiders.

It was understood the manoeuvres were to determine whether a mythical expeditionary force could be landed on a coast line represented by the length of the Spanish and Portuguese coasts, and approximating one side of Great Britain.

A Mediterranean "Red" fleet left Gibraltar for the Atlantic to act as an intercepting force. At the same time a home "Blue" fleet left the vicinity of the Azores Islands to try to convoy and land the theoretical expeditionary forces.

TO SAVE THEMSELVES The Admiralty has decided henceforth not to try to raise sunken submarines in an effort to save lives of trapped seamen, Sir Bolton informed the House.

Instead he said the crews will be instructed to use the Davis escape apparatus which theoretically enables the men to shoot out individually to the surface.

The United States Navy has reached a similar decision, he said.

HIS CRUTCHES BOILED KETTLE

Once Crippled with Rheumatism NOW BACK AT WORK

He was not wrong, either—this man who concluded that he would never need his crutches again. For it is now six years since he burned them, and he is still quite active. Writing of his experiences, he says:—

"For five years I was a cripple, due to rheumatism, and was given up as a hopeless case. I also had a bad stomach, and I could never enjoy a meal without my food repeating on me. One day an old friend of mine told me to try Kruschen Salts. So I bought a bottle and gave it a trial. "After taking two bottles I was able to sit down and enjoy a good meal, and also have a good sound sleep—a thing I had not done for years. I was also getting about more freely. One morning I got up and lit the fire, and put the coffee on. My mother thought I was crazy, because I sawed my old crutches up and boiled the kettle with them."

"That was six years ago, and I am now back at my old job as a chef—and a chef puts in some long hours on his feet."—H. A. B.

Do you realize what causes rheumatism? Nothing but sharp-edged uric acid crystals which form as the result of sluggish eliminating organs. Kruschen Salts can always be counted on to clear those painful crutches from the system. And more! They ensure such perfect internal regularity that no such body poisons as uric acid are ever able to accumulate again. Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

What Does Your Handwriting Show?

(Editor's Note: Many letters of appreciation have been received from readers who have accepted the author's offer of a personal analysis from their own handwriting. Have you sent yours? See the announcement following this article.)

The value of Grapho-Analysis is never more evident than when it is used to assist Cupid. For it tears aside the veil that love so often weaves, and reveals in unerring fashion, the characteristics of the writer. It is not merely a question of honesty and straightforwardness—although these are points that have to be considered. The emotions and the degree of expressiveness of those emotions—these are of vital importance.

EXAMPLE Take, for example, a girl who has a warm and ardent nature; who feels things very deeply, and who expresses that feeling. She likes to be loved and would be very unhappy without the affection of others.

What chance of happiness would she have, married to a man who is cool and unemotional, who dislikes any manifestation of affection, and who is so governed by his mind that he hasn't a generous streak in his nature?

Only the other day I received a very poignant letter from a girl of 24 years of age. She was married two years ago, but has never been happy, since the first raptures departed. She is of the type I mention above, and asks me why she is unhappy and wonders whether she is responsible.

The writing of her husband, which she enclosed, shows that he has about as much feeling and affection as a garçonne.

These two are mismatched; I can see very little chance of happiness for them. Her's is a case where the advice of a Grapho-Analyst would have saved much unhappiness.

OPPOSITES There is an old saying that opposites make the happiest marriages.

Brilliant Social Season Expected in "Dear Old London"

London.—The most brilliant social season since the world war was ushered in recently with the opening of the opera at Covent Garden before a house packed with bejewelled women and scores of the aristocracy.

Hundreds stood in line all day long to obtain tickets in the gallery to witness both the spectacle of society on opening night and the opera on the stage.

The season continued with the Royal Academy exhibition on May 7th, followed by a swift succession of social events. Highlights include the Ascot and Goodwood race meets; the Royal Henley Regatta yachting week the Richmond Horse Show, the Eton and Harrow Schools' annual cricket match at Lord's and the Wimbledon tennis fortnight.

As a background for all these functions are the traditional four courts at Buckingham Palace in May and June, when the King and Queen receive debutantes and many others of the socially elite from numerous other countries who are lucky enough to be invited.

Wool Industry Records High Level in Years

The wool industry of Australia has witnessed one of the most complete instances of price recovery in the history of that industry. Prices recovered to such a degree that they reached the highest level since the 1928-29 season. Over 60 per cent of the wool which will be available this season has been sold at an average advance in prices of 80 per cent as compared with the previous year's clip.

Dogs - And Cats

Says the Victoria Times—"Albert Payson Terhune, the novelist, who has written so eloquently of his fondness for dogs, broke down the other day and admitted that cats are really smarter than dogs.

They are smarter, that is, in that they are always looking out for number one. A dog will give you his loyalty and stick to you when there is not anything in it for him. But not a cat.

"You, maybe, have had a cat for years and have treated it like a king," says Mr. Terhune. "I come along, I have a warmer kitchen and more milk and liver. Your cat will gladly come to my kitchen and desert you. To find a cat with loyalty would be like finding one with five ears."

Few people who have owned cats will be inclined to quarrel much with this assertion; indeed, the odd thing about it is that it is precisely this unrudded selfishness which makes the cat a nice pet.

For if the dog flatters the ego by plunging headlong into the most unselfish and unselfish loyalty, the cat does it in a more subtle way by means of a haughty condescension.

A dog goes about the house humbly, grateful that you permit him to stay there. A cat goes proudly, regally, looking through you or past you and quietly letting you understand that it is a rare privilege to provide the daily ration of milk and chopped liver.

Even when it submits to being petted—or, for that matter, even when it comes over and demands petting—it does so with an air that lets you know that it is strictly an impersonal matter, and that it is not committing itself in any way by accepting such a favor from you.

And all this, for some reason, is rather agreeable. The unmitigated snootiness of the cat is actually flattering. In a world where most people in one way or another, have to put up with a good deal to keep the daily bread in the pantry, it is somehow cheering to find one pensioner who neither scrapes nor cajoles.

"If," says Mr. Terhune, "I could sponge like a cat, please God, I'd do it. The only thing a cat will ever do is something for herself."

"The greatest man is he who chooses right with the most invincible resolution."—Seneca.

You Have Heard?

Girl—You fresh thing! Who said you could kiss me?

Wife—The new washwoman has stolen two of our towels.

Hubby—The thief! Which ones, dear?

Wife—The ones we got from the Hotel Prince Edward in Toronto.

We learn from reliable sources that it was only recently that a greatly agitated woman, carrying an infant dashed into a local druggist. She cried:

Woman—My baby has swallowed a bullet. What shall I do?

Druggist (calmly)—Give him some castor oil, but be sure you don't point him at any one.

Bride—Did I appear nervous during the ceremony?

Bridesmaid—A little at first, but not after Fred said 'Yes'.

The trouble with getting henpecked, is that you have nothing to crow about.

The Young Bride—I'm looking for an apartment.

The Friend—What style?

The Bride—One of those where it is illegal to cook.

A compromise is an agreement by which both parties get what neither of them wanted.

Cautious Gentleman—What time do you have to be home?

Girl—How much money have you got?

Gentleman—Five hundred dollars.

Girl—Thursday.

Nowadays it's a question of whether the engagement ring is a symbol of a trusting heart or the symbol of a trusting jeweller.

Minister (who was filling out the marriage certificate and was uncertain of the date)—Let me see, this is the fifth, isn't it?

Bride (indignantly)—No, sir! This is only my second.

So live that none of your kindfoks will deny the relationship.

The Boy—Wouldn't your mother be awfully angry if she saw you in that scant bathing suit?

The Lass—I should say so. It's hers.

The Art of "Getting Along" Sooner or later, a man, if he is wise, discovers that business life is a mixture of good days and bad, victory and defeat, give and take.

He learns that he who loses his temper usually loses.

He comes to realize that the business could run along perfectly well without him.

He learns that carrying a chip on his shoulder is the easiest way to get into a fight.

Farmers Get Better Sows

Government and Packing Firm Co-operate in Distribution

Merlin.—Gordon Drew, hog buyer for the Swift Canadian Company, Toronto, is assisting the farmers in Essex, and Kent to improve their breeding stock and recently distributed among the farmers of the Tilbury district a carload of choice breeding sows.

These sows are made available to the farmers through the co-operation of the Swift Canadian Company and the livestock commissioner of the Dominion Government are ordered in advance and are sold to the farmers at market price, the government paying the freight charges in lots of 20 or more. The government also under approved conditions will supply boars free.

These sows are carefully selected by the Swift Canadian Company at their plant and are all of good bacon type.

Farmers are allowed to send any marketable sow to the packing company and receive one of the selected ones in exchange.

The object of the packing house and the government in assisting in this way is to try and hold for Canada its share of the English bacon market, thus assuring the farmers a better price for their hogs.
