Miss Macphail's Weekly Letter

At last the Marketing Bill is carried, on a vote of 85 to 35. The small number of those opposing is accounted for by the fact that the big Hepburn meeting was in progress at the same time, which attracted large numbers of Liberal members from the House, among them Tom Head, M.P. in the kilt, who pipped Mr Hepburn onto the platform at the Auditorium.

It is difficult to understand the obvious opposition of the Liberals to this Bill, since any community of farmers need not make use of it unless they wish. Then, too, the big co-operatives such as the Fraser Valley Milk Producers, the Okanagan Fruit Growers, and the Western pools, have urged for some such legislation for years, and in addition to the Bill this session their representatives were kept in Ottawa during this tortuous passage through the House. Mr. Motherwell has courageously stood for the bill, in opposition to his party, which was a difficult thing for a life-long party man to do.

The Premier has made a particularly able and forward looking speech just before the vote was taken on the Marketing Bill, which sounded about as different from his speeches of a few years ago as anything. However I am thankful for his belated but not unhelpful efforts of the 19th century, when our reformers were seeking to secure legislative action to reduce the hours of labour, abolish child labour and increase the return to the worker, who were strenuously opposed by the laissez-faire advocates of that day, and the Prime Minister. Now, when effort is being made to win for the agriculturalist, return for his labour through orderly and controlled marketing, believers in the same doctrine (every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost) are not taking the Prime Minister's words to heart.

The remarks made by the Prime Minister on farm organization are interesting. "Can agriculture organize? Yesterday and today the veteran former Minister of Agriculture, Mr. Motherwell, gave the long story of the efforts of agriculture towards farm organization. He told the story of the granges and the patrons of industry, he told of the struggle for organization on the part of agriculture and of the failures brought about by certain circumstances. I realize their position is not that of the trade unionists; they have not the voice which trade unions have to make themselves effective in the constituencies in order that laissez-faire may not prevail against them. The time has come when the natural products of this country shall be marketed under conditions which will ensure to those who produce them some measure of return for their efforts, a measure of return relative to that which the trade unions have been able to secure by organization. It is those who represent the farmer in either the political or the economic case, but we could hardly expect the Prime Minister to say that.

Mr Bennett went on to praise the pool and to point out the great changes that had taken place in the world during and since the war, making a return to agricultural conditions of 1913 forever impossible, and reminding the Liberals "you cannot watch progress by standing still to watch the procession go by." Dealing with socialist tendencies, the Prime Minister has this to say: "As I read the history of the human race for the last 25 years or even for the last 15 years I see more and more the tendency that the combined effort of all should assist the efforts of one. This is so whether we like it or not. I am no prophet, but I stand here tonight and say that you cannot read the history of our times without realizing that more and more man is coming to a recognition of his obligations to his fellows, by banding himself together with them for the purpose of promoting the welfare of each and all." This amazing Prime Minister of ours can, in the space of a few weeks, make reactionary and advanced speeches and deliver both with tremendous vigour and an apparent complete belief in what he is saying.

The Price Spreads and Mass Buying Committee, more commonly called the Stevens Committee, heard this week the startling story of the financial set-up of the Robert Simpson Company Limited. It is fantastic enough to sound like something from the Arabian Nights. A hundred dollars invested in this concern in 1902 had grown to three thousand dollars in stock dividends by 1929, plus $7550 and dividends of from 5% to 11% every year.

Way back in 1898 the capital of the Company consisted of 1375 shares then acquired by the late H. H. Fudger, Sir Joseph Flavelle and Mr A. E. Ames. From time to time new issues of shares were made, until in 1917 the outstanding capital consisted of 33,500 preferred shares at a value of $3,350,000, with the same number of common shares at an equal value. These 5,000 preferred and 26,000 common shares were issued as stock dividends. No further change was made in the capital structure till 1925, at which time the common shares were still largely held by the Fudger, Flavelle and Cox families. As already indicated, stock dividends were declared at various times during the years and cash dividends were paid regularly at rates running from 5% to 11 1/4% on both the original 1375 shares and on the further common shares issued as stock dividends.

In 1925 they cut the melon. 'Simpsons Limited, (1925)' was the name of the new company formed. The old company sold to the new company their common shares for $150 a share and a hundred thousand non-par-value shares in Simpsons Limited. Through this transaction, the shareholders received in cash five million dollars, and through the common shares of Simpsons Limited, as public opinion had been educated by radical publications to the point where it could be safely collared and introduced as an idea of their own. "The Stevens Committee on Price Spreads and Mass Buying has been steadily manufacturing C.C.F. campaign ammunition — quite undeliberately and quite unconsciously, but none the less effectively."

As Member for South Grey in the Legislature I have worked in the interests of my Riding and the people of Ontario as a whole. I have voted on the merits of questions uninfluenced by the campaign funds provided by corporations and contractors, or by a party discipline which leaves members little liberty.

I have advocated a clean-up of the Packers' racket and a lessening of charges at the Union Stock Yards. I worked faithfully on the Agricultural Committee in the interests of the farmer as was made clear by special mention being made of me in the report of the Legislature on these matters to the Stevens Committee.

The last session I introduced the Debtors Equity Bill which sought to protect the debt-burdened householder and farmer in proportion to his equity in the property.

Two years ago I introduced a resolution advocating increased trade with Great Britain, forcing the question to a vote in the Legislature.

I have urged that less stress be made by the Government Agricultural Colleges on production in Agriculture and more on the processing and marketing ends. I have assisted in every possible way the First Co-operative Packers in Barrie, a first step toward the mastering of the processing of his products by the farmer.

Long ago I advocated the nominal charge only for the automobile license and the spending of all car levies, whether gasoline or license, on roads, and the providing of a repayment fund to retire the highway bonds out of this revenue. The daily press have several times credited me with vigorous defence of the people's interest. If this is what you want in your member, then vote Oliver on June 19th, as soon after 8 in the morning as possible, but at least before the polls close at 7 p. m. And remember a marked ballot is all that counts on Election Day.

However if you want to support a government that protects the wealthy against the poor, the strong against the weak a government that gives the people beer instead of bread—vote Kernahan.

If you want a member bound hand and foot to party issues, enslaved by party funds, serving his party and not his riding—vote Kernahan.

If you want to support a government that has increased expenditure from 291 million to over 600 million—vote Kernahan.

And last, if you are fooled by the great show of activity and the reckless spending of the people's money in these election weeks, then by all means —Vote Kernahan.

YOUNG WOMEN'S ASSOC'N HOLD RALLY

About 75 members of the C.G.I.T. Groups and Young Women's Auxiliaries from Durham, Knox Normanby, Drayton, Arthur, Holstein, met in Holstein Pres. Church, June 6.

Mrs McAlister presided over the meeting, who also read the scripture lesson from Matthew 13 chapter.

Words of welcome were given by Mrs W. Aitken, Holstein. There was on program, a duet from Drayton. Mrs Marshall gave a short talk, taking her text from John 5: "Search the Scriptures". The roll call was answered by the number in each group and number present.

Mrs. Armstrong, Durham, led in prayer. Miss Mary Hill, Girls' Work Sec'y, Toronto, then addressed the girls on "Girls of the Past, Present and Future," using as her theme "Heirs of the Past, Debtors to the Future, We live in the Present."

A musical number was given by Arthur. Mrs. Armstrong spoke on Mission Work. A few minutes were given over for discussion, after which work that had been done by the groups were on display.

Refreshments were served after the benediction.
