PRESBYTERIAN LADIES' AID

The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Annie Weir on Friday the sixth of September with Mrs. Gilbert McKechnie presiding. The usual business dispensed with, the meeting became a surprise party for Mrs. T. C. Ritchie to commemorate her silver wedding anniversary which takes place shortly. She was presented with a beautiful bouquet of gladioli, then followed a very appropriate program in her honor. Mrs. Gowdy gave a piano solo, Mrs. J. Alexander, a reading, a vocal solo by Miss Elsie Ledingham and a reading by Miss Alice Tobin. Miss Weir served a very tasty tea, assisted by Mrs. G. McKechnie, Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Gray and Mrs. Moffa.

A straw vote is being taken by the Orillia Packet and Times, and the first 226 ballots cast, 94 voted for King, 84 for Bennett; 27 voted for Stevens and 21 for Woodsworth.

Since George Young failed to make the grade this year in his "grudge" race against Marvin Nelson, many wonder wherever he had the stamina to stand the twenty-five mile Catalina swim. They think he was pushed to the winning point. George may be a good swimmer, but he has to develop other qualities that will make him a popular hero of the water.

The Chesley Enterprise is conducting a straw vote as an indication of the trend of voting in Grey-Bruce.

The first thing the man who was going to give every man and woman in his province $25 a month does, is to go begging for money.

Premier Bennett's notice, not calling on any of the former Henchmen's Associations, Travellers' Clubs and many more individuals, to induce the Government to change Thanksgiving Day back to Monday from Thursday owing to election falling on that day, are of no avail.

The way Premier Hepburn is travelling through Western Canada speaking for MacKenzie King, reads in the Toronto Daily Star, as a triumphal procession. "Mitch" always carries with him a bag of good stories and jokes that go down well.

United States may have a few advantages in the matter of a warmer winter climate, etc., but we wager the Americans along the Atlantic coast wish they had Canadian climate when these devastating floods and wash-outs take place, as for instance in Florida and New York States.

A Canadian girl has at last won the women's swim at Toronto Exhibition. Charlotte Acres is her name and she hails from Vancouver. The Exhibition Swim committee has paid out thousands of dollars to United States men and women and Canadians are glad to see the money stay in Canada.

The Chesley Enterprise says that the Prodigal Son in the Bible of a tribulation towards national recovery. They claim there is no change in market conditions or manufacturing they have been holding the price at way too high and reaping fat profits. The real reason for the reduction is lack of sale for their high-priced products, which is seen in their remarks, "Thousands of people all over the country have been forced to put off much-needed painting. Thousands more have been misled by 'bargain' prices into using inferior paint of little or no value."

Rev. A. H. Ferry, United Church minister at Corbett, was chosen Reconstruction party candidate for Dufferin-Simcoe, at a convention held in Alliston. Professor W. H. Day, formerly of the O.A.C., Guelph, received the second highest number of votes. 21 Stevens clubs in the riding were represented. H. E. Rice editor of the Huntsville Forester, is the Stevens candidate in Muskoka.

Whatever may be said for or against social credit, either now or after it has been tried in the West, it will have to be admitted that it has given a new and a powerful impetus to the serious study of economics. Every one in Canada seems now to be talking of social credit, and whilst some are enthusiastically in favor and others bitterly opposed, there are multitudes who want to know more about this system upon which a new party has been swept into power in Alberta. The apparent aim of the new party is the financial solution of the problem of wide-spread poverty in the midst of plenty.—New Outlook.

THANKSGIVING DAY STANDS FOR THURSDAY

The heroic efforts of Retail Merchants' Associations, Travellers' Clubs and many more individuals, to induce the Government to change Thanksgiving Day back to Monday from Thursday owing to election falling on that day, are of no avail. The holiday stands for Thursday, Oct. 24. Whoever the party in power then, will have reason to be grateful for their election.

Legal opinion in Ottawa is that if merchants or anybody else want to keep their places of business open on Thanksgiving Day there is really nothing to stop them. No contracts may be made on a public holiday, but the question of doing business on a public holiday is for the business community itself.

The government has been receiving many representations for and against the Thursday date, most of those opposing the Thursday giving business reasons, such as the oil companies who oppose Thursday because the long weekend means more motoring and more gasoline sold.

PAINT PRICES FORCED DOWN

The large paint manufacturers have announced a 20 per cent reduction in cost of first quality paint—from $4.65 to $3.75 a gallon, as "our contribution towards national recovery." They claim there is no change in market conditions or manufacturing they have been holding the price at way too high and reaping fat profits. The real reason for the reduction is lack of sale for their high-priced products, which is seen in their remarks, "Thousands of people all over the country have been forced to put off much-needed painting. Thousands more have been misled by 'bargain' prices into using inferior paint of little or no value."

THE END OF THE ROAD FOR HUEY LONG

One of the tragic deaths of United States was that of Huey Long of Louisiana, who was shot by an assassin in his own city on Sunday last. He lingered until Tuesday morning. The assassin passed the body guard and soon after he fired the fatal shot, he himself was riddled with bullets. Huey Long as Senator of the State or as a private official was a wonderful man. Book Agent, lawyer, legislator and finally supreme power in Louisiana State, he carved a career unique in the annals of American politics.

There never had been anybody just like him before. It is a task for the imagination to picture another Long just like him in the future.

To a great many, he was the epitome of all that was bad in politics, and to countless thousands too, he was an economic savior, crying in the wilderness, his slogan of "sharing the wealth."

Taken as a whole, the man was almost incredible, his exploits breathless adventures in which he frequently snatched victory from seemingly inevitable defeat.

A BRIEF SKETCH OF THE HON. H. H. STEVENS

Hon. H. H. Stevens, like Sir Jno. MacDonald, Hon. Robert Forke, Hon. Charles Dunning and Hon. Martin Burrell, was born in the British Isles. He is a native of Bristol and is in his 57th year.

Mr. Stevens as an immigrant boy knew what it was to go through the mill. His parents settled at Peterborough, and his Canadian education was received there. As a boy he worked on a farm there and recently had the pleasure of meeting one of his former employers. But his restless spirit refused to be tied down on an Ontario farm. He heard the call of the Great West, and went through to B.C., in the nineties, when gold and glamour and adventure were still richly mixed with arduous drudgery. He drove a stage coach, he prospected for gold. He fired a locomotive for awhile, it is said. But his thirst for adventure was not satisfied by these experiments.

The Philippine revolt came along, and he joined the United States army. Later he went to take part in quelling the Boxer uprising in China. It was during this period in his life that he travelled extensively in the romantic South Seas. That was by no means the end of the variety in his life. When he came back to Vancouver he worked in a grocery store, studied and became an accountant, branched out into a financial broker. He was at one time or another, if reports are accurate, a real estate dealer and the editor of a military weekly. He began to take a keen interest in civic affairs, and joined the Banish the Bar movement, became an alderman, undertook to help "Clean Up" Vancouver.

His first active participation in Federal politics came in the year of the Reciprocity Campaign, 1911. He had been working for one of the Conservative candidates as an organizer when it was suggested to him that he let his own name stand as candidate for Vancouver Centre. He won the seat with the handsome majority of 3,256. He was a back-bencher with R. B. Bennett and Arthur Meighen, behind the Government of Sir Robert Borden, in 1911-1917.

He won election after election in Vancouver Centre—indeed, until he was defeated by Hon. Ian MacKenzie in 1920 he came to be known as the man who never lost a fight. In 1917 he had a majority of 8,179, and his majority never dropped to less than a thousand.

His subsequent history is better known to the public. He became one of the front benchers, acquiring a reputation for being fearless, a hard worker and agreeable in manner and word. He developed a talent as an effective debater, with a flair for appealing to the emotions of his listeners. His first big opportunity came in 1926, when Arthur Meighen wanted a capable man to develop and launch the customs disclosures. Although he was ill at the time, Stevens went on at 11 o'clock on the night when his leader thought it was opportune to spring the charges, and made a long powerful address, bristling with facts and figures.

In 1926-30 he was one of the effective critics of MacKenzie King administration. When 1920 came along, although personally defeated, he was chosen for the responsible post of Minister of Trade and Commerce of the post which he resigned in October, 1934.

The service he rendered the country as Minister of Trade and Commerce, is making history, the formation of the Price Spreads Commission, his break with Mr. Bennett and his acceptance of the leadership of the newly formed Reconstruction Party, have been too well-heralded to need comment. Mr. Stevens has irrevocably severed his connection with the Conservative Party. He is well qualified to undertake the task of leadership. Like the prophets of old he recognizes that "Righteousness exalteth a nation and sin is a reproach to any people." Along these lines he is throwing down the gauntlet to the Canadian people and if we want social justice and economic security it is for us, the people to take up that gauntlet.

Harry Stevens is honest enough to be bold and bold enough to be honest.

—Why does Alberta go off at political tangents? Here is the explanation as given to us by a prominent Alberta publisher: He said that between 1900 and 1910 there was an enormous immigration into Alberta from Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and other Central Western States. This was the land of populism, the home of the non-Partisan League. They were originally large followers of Bryanism. They were fine settlers but imbued with radicalism in political and fundamentalism in religion.

W. H. Wood, president of the U.F.A., came from Missouri and was a man of this type—a mystic in religion and an idealist in politics. Their views have permeated Alberta. He added that if this explanation was not good enough the only other one he had to give was the attitude of Alberta was such that the people could not keep their feet on the ground.

PREDICTS EARLY AUTUMN

An early and cold autumn was predicted today by Johnny Thomas riverman in his annual weather forecast. For 70 years Thomas or some member of his family has been forecasting the Niagara border weather.

His forecast was based on: red ahead of time. Robins going south early; squirrels gathering hickory and walnuts with skns still green. Gulls coming back a month ahead of time to winter here from Ontario inland lakes.
